of the Hamilton, Ont., association the first Monday of December was accepted.

E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., was an unexpected and welcome visitor. It is hoped that at an early date he will return and give the association one of his illustrated lectures on rose growing. He made a short address, pointing out the need of cultivating new varieties and studying the papers to follow what was being done in the different countries in plant culture. He asked the members to support the botanical garden scheme and promote flower shows. In other countries where real flower shows are run, the attendance reaches as high as half a million, and this only to see rose seedlings.

A public meeting to promote a botanical garden for Toronto was held November 13, and was addressed by J. K. M. L. Farquhar, of Boston. There was a big attendance and Prof. R. B. ance. They are being used mostly for corsage work. Roses are fine, especially in the longer grades. Columbia, Russell, Ophelia, Sunburst, Milady, Premier and Dunlop are the varieties most in evidence. Carnations are making rapid improvement and some good stock was seen last week. A few callas, Easter lilies and calendulas are coming in. With stock so plentiful, there should be excellent Thanksgiving business.

In potted plants the sale is a little slow yet, although there are some fine plants in chrysanthemums, cyclamens, primulas and begonias.

Duluth has experienced one of the best autumn seasons in many years. The bulb trade has been exceptionally good. The call for poppies for Armistice day was greater than last year.

Various Notes.

J. J. Le Borious has some fine chrysanthemums which he is just beginning to cut. They are the varieties Bonnaillon, Enguehard and White Rager. His carnation houses at Woodland are in splendid condition and will be in heavy crop at Christmas. The Quality Flower Store reports business good. It is making some nice window displays of large chrysanthemums.

of funeral work. He had a good many table decorations for Thanksgiving.
William Hasselmann, of Independence, Kan., was a recent visitor.

The Alpha Floral Co. has installed a 2½-ton Lippman automatic refrigerat-ing machine. This is the largest and latest model put out by the company.
For the last fifteen years the Alpha Floral Co., like various other business concerns, has been getting its refrigerat-ing service from the Missouri Valley Cold Storage Co. In August this company gave notice that it would discontinue service and the Alpha Floral Co.
decided to put in its own machine.

The Pinehurst Floral Co. had in its exhibit at the Mid-West Horticultural Exposition, at Council Bluffs, Ia., ten entries of mums. These won nine first prizes and one second prize.

Table decorations have been the main business with the Muehlebach Flower

The Market.

Business was good during the week before Thanksgiving, with almost everything in cut flowers a little scarce. Carnations are perhaps the heaviest in supply. Prices remain the same, $4 to $6. Roses are excellent in quality, but barely meet the demand. Chadwicks are about all that are left in chrysanthemums and the pompons are going fast. Sweet peas are arriving in greater quantities and better quality, but are still short of the demand.

Mum plants are gone. There are plenty of fine begonias and cyclamens to be had, as well as Boston ferns.

Various Notes.

Fred C. Schumann is bringing in some nice sweet peas and calendulas.

The Elitch Gardens Co. is cutting some fine Yellow Chadwick.

The Central Flower Shop last week had an attractive window display of large vases of carnations set off by Boston ferns and small baskets of sweet peas.

Many out-of-town florists were visitors last week. Among them were Waldemar Fleischer, of Pueblo; Carl Espelin, of Fort Collins; Mr. Hansen and Mr. Erickson, of Hansen & Erickson, Greeley, Colo., and Mrs. Ed. Hemphill, of Sidney, Neb.

The Market.

The chrysanthemum season is in its decline. Some good varieties still remain, but most of them are gone. In the large types there are still Whittier, Seidewitz, Chadwick and a few Turner. Of the pompons, Wilcox is a favorite.

Roses are scarce and prices have remained almost stationary. In spite of the mums, roses have been in good demand and all available have been selling readily.

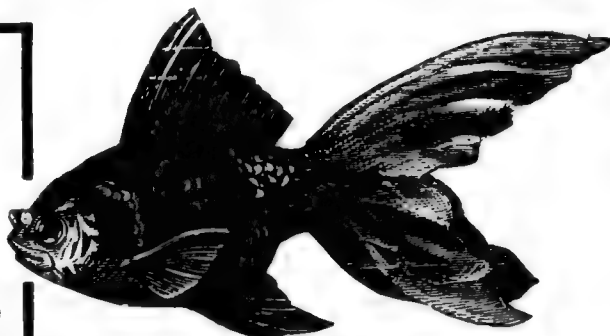

With the decrease in the quantity of chrysanthemums, carnations are now resuming their place of prominence in the market. The quality has been good this fall and the price of good stock has remained all season at about $4. With the increasing demand, they have risen in price from $5 to $8 per hundred. Some good Laddie has been coming into the market at $8 per hundred.

A few calla lilies have been putting in an appearance and are welcome additions. There are no Easter lilies. Sweet peas are a little more in evidence, but are by no means plentiful. A few yellow and white narcissi also add variety to the stock in the various store windows. A few early shoots of stevia have been flowering. Calendulas and a few violets are available.

The variety of potted plants remains the same—mum plants, Jerusalem cherries, ferns, begonias and primroses.

Various Notes.

Anders Rasmussen, of New Albany, Ind., has been shipping some good roses into the local market.

Mr. and Mrs. Len Elder and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kiel visited Richmond, Ind., last week.

David Vesey, of Fort Wayne, Ind., visited this city last week.

The December meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association will be held in Indianapolis the evening of December 7 at the store of the Smith & Young Co.

George Gause, of Richmond, Ind., was in the city last week, attending a meeting of his Scottish Rite class and the Shrine ceremonial. Mr. Tweedie, of Richmond, was also here attending the ceremonial.

Baur & Steinkamp have a new pink seedling chrysanthemum of the reflex type that comes in at Thanksgiving time. This is its second year and it bids fair to be a fine bloom, both because of its beauty and its lateness. This firm is cutting good Dolly Dimple and Fall Beauty.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The market in general seems to have improved during the last week. There is a steady increase in business and all kinds of stock are cleaning up. Mums in this market are still holding their own, both in price and quality of stock. The new crop of carnations is in now, and, though short of stem, is of good quality. Violets are good, owing to the previous rains, which are essential for good violets. Winter peas are a little more plentiful, but are bringing good prices. The first Paper White narcissi in the market last week, though early, were never better. Roses seem to be scarce, because all the rose growers are cropping for Christmas.

Various Notes.

The E. C. Amling Co. is bringing in some fine valley and cleaning up every day. Walter Garbett, manager, said business was fine, and he was at that time superintending a shipment of 100 dozen mums. Fred Burki, president of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., was in this office and with him was T. P. Langhans, secretary of the company, who came out to Los Angeles to talk over business, as Mr. Burki is a permanent resident here.

E. H. Volkman was all smiles the morning the writer made his visit and no wonder, for a 9-pound baby boy had arrived at his home! "Mother and baby doing fine," he said, as he handed out cigars to everyone he met.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club of Los Angeles was held at the Christopher cafe, with a good attendance. The members sat down to a nice spread of good eats at 6:30 p. m. President Walter Armacost called the meeting to order about 8 p. m. A. F. Borden, secretary, gave an interesting talk concerning his trip to the F. T. D. convention. Before the meeting adjourned a special meeting was called for Friday, November 19, at the same place. After a steak dinner, some special business was to be discussed.

George J. Hall & Co. report good, steady shipping business, especially in mums and roses.

S. Murata & Co. are always busy and it seems to be on account of the increase in shipping.

Los Angeles Floral Co. is handling large quantities of stock at present and the way this firm cleans up every night shows good business.

The buyer for Walter Armacost & Co. was busy on the market last week and his activities helped to clean up the stock.

P. C. Miller, of the California Floral Co., was proudly introducing his new wife.

Darling's Shop has added another employee to the staff in T. Vogel, formerly of Wright's Flower Shop. John Gordon, the manager, reports business good so far this month.

The store of Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson was filled with funeral work—even the floor was piled with it. This firm is making a wonderful display of cut flowers and plants in its windows.

Fred Dostal, of the Dostal-Wolters Flower Shop, was more than satisfied with business and expects big things for the holiday season.

From the amount of work the Broadway Florists turn out in a day, one would think it was made by machinery, but a visit to the store will explain. There one finds fifteen or twenty workers as busy as a swarm of bees.

The Alexandria Florist, in the Alexandria hotel, is making fine window displays and credit is due George Eschen, the manager.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

A generous precipitation of rain proved untimely for the California growers and shippers of chrysanthemums, rendering stock of the large-flowering varieties suitable for long-distance

Thanksgiving orders scarce. The limited number of first-class blooms naturally are held at high prices. As far as shipping business is concerned, it looks as if the season were about over for mums this year. From now on the large flowers will be practically confined to two varieties—Helen Frick, the large lavender pink, and a limited supply of Appleton. There are still plenty of the smaller mums, however, which will probably be on the market for some little time yet, and an ample supply of second-grade large ones, which can be used to fairly good advantage locally.

The rain has been as beneficial to the violets as it was detrimental to the chrysanthemums. There is as fine a crop of violets on hand as was ever known here, and shipments are being made clear to New York, North Carolina and other distant points. The weather of the last week has been ideal for these flowers, the rain being followed by warm weather instead of frost, as usually happens.

NEW REPUBLICAN ZINNIAS

(FRASER'S GIANT PICOTEE, PRIZE ZINNIAS)

The blossoms are of new colors, coral-pink, carmine-rose, garnet-red, snow-white, orange and rich apricot-yellow, with various hues at the ends of the petals. Some are tipped with chocolate, terra cotta or rich crimson. This giant strain of ours made its appearance in the Los Angeles market and was highly prized by growers. Highly recommended by William Rapp, President of the Horticultural Society of Pasadena, California. Large trade packet, $1.00; 1/2 trade packet, 50c.

R. G. FRASER & SON, Seed Growers, PASADENA, CALIF.

Roses are becoming more plentiful from day to day, but the supply cleans up readily and larger offerings could be handled on days when there is any extra demand. Russell shows excellent quality, and the same may be said of Ophelia and Columbia.

Various Notes

The Retail Florists' Association of San Francisco is becoming an active factor, although it is of recent organization. An advertising campaign is being started, beginning in the local papers, but it is hoped to advertise nationally in a short time. Half-page advertisements regarding the aims of the association have been prepared for all the San Francisco Sunday papers. After January 8 all the florists' stores will be closed all day on Sunday. The committee on by-laws, consisting of Angelo Rossi, B. M. Joseph and P. Matrara, has presented its report and the by-laws are now in the hands of the printer.

A new wholesale and shipping establishment has been opened at 501 O'Farrell street by Silvio Rosalia, of Colma. Mr. Rosalia stated that he has been shipping from his violet ranch, at Colma, but he finds it better to make San Francisco his packing place. Mr. Rosalia states that he is already feeling the benefits of the change. He has six extra men working for him, as the result of increased business.

F. C. Jaeger & Son, whose wholesale department is in the basement of their store on Powell street, are having changes made in the retail store. Mr. Jaeger states that the wholesale department has grown so much that he is obliged to take space from the retail department in order to devote the room to the shipping department.

Some extremely elaborate decorations were done last week. Albert C. Stein had the decorations for the coming out party of the Misses Senon, at the Fairmount hotel. Mr. and Mrs. T. Senon, with their two debutante daughters, received in the Red room before a square hedge of huckleberry, clipped to give Often on bright days we see Mr. Darling, of Darling's Shop, flying high over our greenhouses. We always wondered what the plant looks like from up there.

Having a wife and four children to support, we have always declined his kind offers to take us up—besides, we were afraid.

So we had Mr. Darling snap it for us. The above is the result.

It shows very well the 15 acres of greens—three entire blocks—and the spread of glass. But it does not show what is inside. Houses crammed full of good stock—you couldn't find an empty space with a search warrant. And the quality! It makes your mouth water to look at our Roses and blooming plants. Come and see for yourself. We know then where you will place your standing order.

the appearance of boxwood. The hedge was draped by crescent-shaped festoons of orchids. In the center of the room a fountain played, banked by flowers and ferns. Baskets in autumn colorings were the table decorations.

Much interest was aroused by the sunken Japanese garden arranged by the Bertrand Flower Shop for a dinner tendered to his golf club by the manager of the Palace hotel. The sunken garden, which occupied the center of a large table, represented miniature golf grounds with tiny golf balls. One hundred Japanese dwarf trees, seventy-five Boston ferns and a hedge of primulas gave the effect of shrubbery in a garden, which included a miniature fish pond and an electric fountain.

Funeral work has been exceptionally active during the last week, as several prominent San Franciscans have passed away. Joseph's was busy with four big funerals.

Shellgrain & Ritter were busy last week with funeral work.

Podesta & Baldocchi report an unusual number of funerals, which have kept their staff busy, in conjunction with table decorations.

The Thomas Floral Co., at the corner of O'Farrell and Jones streets, have found business picking up steadily during the last two months, especially in funeral work and table decorations. The branch store, at 1605 Polk street, is proving a highly satisfactory venture. It is under the management of D. Thomas, brother of M. Thomas, who is general manager of both establishments. This Polk street store is in a thriving business center.

Thanksgiving is adding considerably to the business of the California Floral Co. There is a special demand for red decorations. Potted plants, such as primroses, cyclamens and begonias, are coming in and are selling well for house decoration.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. has an unusual amount of funeral work. This establishment was visited recently by four members of Meldrum's Floral Shop, Sacramento. They were Fred Moore, manager; Frank Corato, assistant manager; H. Cleveland, in charge of the delivery department, and C. Buderer, designer. They came by automobile.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is starting to cut a fine new crop of roses, with Rus-

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

A shorter cut of roses is probably the only notable development to report for last week, so far as stock was concerned, while business ran along as usual. There were a few more social decorations, but less funeral work.

The local growers are now offering mums in such quantities as to really produce an oversupply on the market, and both wholesale and retail prices have been cut as a result. The Japanese growers' crop of mums is at its height. The quality of the mums is everything that could be desired.

Columbia is the leading rose. Russell, Premier and Butterfly are also popular and the trade finds it difficult to keep a large enough supply of Brunner roses on hand. The popularity of small corsages of Brunner roses and violets is, undoubtedly, the reason for this.

A little improvement may be reported in the carnation supply, but there is still too small a cut to care for the trade needs. One large retailer has been drawing on California entirely for the last three weeks. California is also being used as the chief source of the violet supply.

Orchids are a little more plentiful. Lily of the valley is short and gardenias clean up as fast as offered.

Potted offerings present no new features. Pompons in small pots are still the newest offering and by virtue of this are probably featured more than any plant outside of ferns. The latter continue to be big sellers, especially those sizes which can be retailed at less than $1.50. Cyclamens are improving in quality, but are still too high to be popular.

Various Notes.

Seattle's newest retail flower shop was opened November 13 at 325 Pine street by Carl Melby and F. A. Allen. While the store is not large, practically the entire front of the shop can be used for display purposes. It has a 16-foot window. White and cream enameled stands are used throughout the shop. The woodwork is entirely in white and light tan has been used on the walls.

when pink bouvardias and Ophelia roses were combined with green ribbon for the maid of honor's bouquet and the same flowers with lavender ribbon for the matron of honor's.

Northwest shippers say that eastern florists are already beginning to express an interest in the supply of cedar ropes and Christmas greens and that from present indications this is to be a popular year for them. Plans are already being laid for handling car-lot shipments of Christmas trees as well.

McCoy's, through the aid of the recruiting service of the U. S. Marine corps, produced an effective Armistice day window. Crossed rifles were set in the foreground, with white doves perched on them. Broad white ribbons ran to an explanatory card in the rear and varicolored mums were used for a background.

The Orpheum Floral Co. is handling large regular shipments of California roses now. This shop also showed several new varieties of mums from local growers last week.

The Hollywood Gardens found the recent showing of miniature Japanese gardens so popular that another assortment has been produced. Some of the designs were strikingly original.

Kenney's Home of Flowers has been showing some nice Kelley Red and Turner mums and reports a growing sale of small mums for corsage uses. H. M.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Thanksgiving will find the market well supplied with such leading varieties of mums as Bonnaffon, Enguehard, white and yellow Turners and Mensa. Wholesale prices range from 50 cents per bunch to $4 per dozen for Turner. Retail prices will remain the same, as there is plenty of stock to be had.

In potted plants there will be an abundance of chrysanthemums, cyclamens, primulas and ferns.

Roses and carnations will be sufficient to meet the demand. Bouvardias, forget-me-nots, snapdragons, sweet peas and violets will make up the rest of the supply of cut flowers.

Various Notes.

Mr. Scott, of Scott Bros., Moscow, Idaho, was a recent visitor to Spokane.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held at the Spokane hotel November 8. Mr. Scott was chairman. The chief topic was the cooperative ad-

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

BERRIES are lacking on the holly this year and a short supply is expected.

S. F. LEONARD, Chicago, was elected a director of the Wholesale Seedsmen's League, at Detroit, last week.

THE seed trade looks forward to a good season in 1921. It is the almost unanimous belief that the trade has ahead of it another long period of profitable business.

W. W. BARNARD left Chicago this week for the Pacific coast, where he will spend the winter. He goes first to San Francisco and will motor from there to Los Angeles.

FORTY-ONE cases of valley pips arrived at New York November 15, on the steamer W. A. Luckenbach, from Hamburg. They were consigned to Bernard, Judae & Co.

ACCOUNT of the death of Charles J. Bolgiano, president of J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md., Friday morning, November 18, from gas poisoning, appears in the obituary column on another page of this issue.

C. D. COVENTRY returned to Chicago November 21 from a western trip on behalf of the W. W. Barnard Co., visiting Denver, Salt Lake City and St. Anthony, Idaho, where he spent some time with John T. Wilcox, formerly a salesman for the W. W. Barnard Co. in southern territory, who now is a seed grower there.

VALUE OF THE JAP BULB CROP.

In 1918 no lily bulbs came from Japan, shipment having been prohibited by the War Trade Board, then in charge of many of our activities. In that year the plants and bulbs sent from Japan to the United States had a value of only $6,690. Early in 1919 the prohibition was removed and practically the entire Japanese crop of lily bulbs came to the United States last year. United States Consul General George H. Seidmore, at Yokohama, now makes available the record of importations to the United States for 1919. The bulbs exported to this country in 1919 had a value of $444,449.

MILWAUKEE SEED CO. FIRE.

As a result of a disastrous fire Monday night, November 15, the Milwaukee Seed Co., Milwaukee, Wis., suffered almost total loss of its stock and machinery, valued at more than $250,000, according to Edwin L. Rosenberg, president and treasurer of the firm. This seed company is one of the pioneers in Milwaukee's seed trade and was founded in 1860 by Mr. Rosenberg's father, Louis Rosenberg. It occupied almost the entire building at West Water and Clybourn streets, where it has been located for more than forty years. The annual volume of business is estimated at something over $5,000,000. The Milwaukee Seed Co., besides a large export trade, particularly with Great Britain, does the largest business in Wisconsin-grown clovers. The vice-president is John C. Lawrence.

The total loss as a result of the fire is not that kind of poppy, either. These were Shirley poppies at the seed farms of James Vick's Sons, in the vicinity of Rochester, N. Y. This was one of several good fields of poppies which the firm had this season. To the left of the field of poppies are annual larkspurs and just beyond the latter can be had a glimpse of a field of pansy violet. This year, according to its own report, the firm had good crops of candytuft, larkspur, pansy violet, Phlox Drummondii, Gaillardia grandiflora, calendula and sweet william. James Vick's Sons have been growing these crops for a number of years in addition to their aster crops and have good success with them. They believe that the seeds grown at Rochester produce better crops than those grown in an entirely different climate.

The photograph of the fields was taken a few weeks ago by James A. Wiebens, manager of the wholesale department. At a distance, in the illustration, can be seen a dry house, with a barn at its right, and at the left the superintendent's house.

SEED PRICES HIGHER?

Danish Firm Thinks So.

As was stated in an article in The Review last week, the seed crop this year in Denmark is much smaller than usual. Hjalmar Hartmann & Co., of Copenhagen, prophesy that this reduction in production will result in increased prices for seed for the new crop of 1920. They claim that, as the culture has been reduced on account of the decline in seed prices, so the reduction of crop will result in a remarkable advance in prices. The remaining acreages under cultivation, even when in good shape and promising comparatively large yields, cannot make up for the shortage.

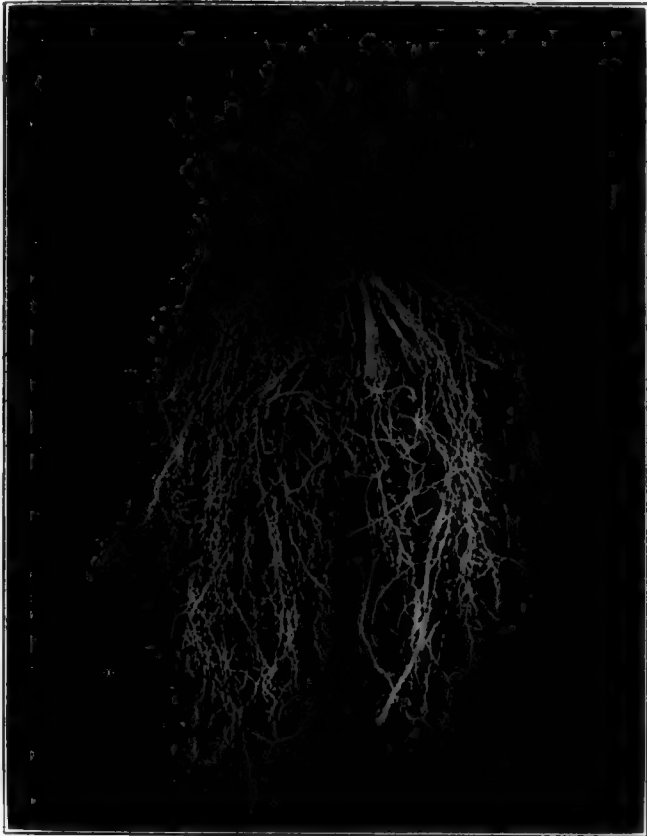

The following is a summary of the garden seed situation in Denmark:

Beans, Peas—Small acreage planted. The summer was unfavorable; the harvest will be small.
Cauliflower—The planting was difficult, as the spring weather hindered cultivation of soil. Planting, therefore, was considerably delayed. Nevertheless, the plants developed amazingly well and a good yield is expected. It is, however, rather difficult to conclude upon the final turning out of this kind of seed, as many a time the same promising signs for a good yield prevailed, while the threshing brought disillusionment.

White Cabbage, Savoy Cabbage, Brussels Sprouts—The early varieties will yield small crops only. The culture was started on rather reduced acreage, and sowing and wintering succeeded well, until, as often is the case in early spring, unfavorable weather partly destroyed the plants. Much acreage had to be partly or entirely plowed up and the remaining had to struggle against several enemies during the development, blooming and seed setting. The weather was unfavorable; moreover, attacks by insects occurred, so that many a field which on an earlier date was called promising rendered a small yield. The earlier cabbage varieties are likely to yield less than half of a normal crop. Late cabbage varieties as well as Savoy cabbages and Brussels sprouts were promising during a certain period in summer and apparently yield better than the earlier sorts. They will, however, most likely give below a medium crop.

Red Cabbage—Planting considerably reduced. Otherwise the same prospects as of the late cabbage varieties.

Carrots—Sowing was considerably reduced. Wintering succeeded well, but the cold and damp summer proved unfavorable to the development of the plants. It seems, however, that the seed setting was quite satisfactory, so that normal yield may be expected. Nevertheless, only small parcels of this kind of seed will be available to the trade this year, chiefly on account of the small acreages.

Radishes—Small acreages only were planted. The early summer was unfavorable. Somewhat later the weather improved, but the harvest will remain backward and be difficult for that reason. A certain amount of seed of comparatively low germination will probably be offered in the market. We anticipate the yield of good trade seed to be one-half of a normal crop. The same applies to the late radish varieties, of which only small acreages were planted.

Spinaches—Owing to the large stock carried over from recent years, small acreages were planted. They will yield normally, but the crop is so limited that earlier or later shortage of this seed is anticipated.

Table Beets—Plenty of root material for wintering was at hand in the autumn of 1919, but the declining prices caused the farmers to abandon seed growing and rather feed their cattle upon the roots in spring. The present crop is half the size of last year's. Although the fields have stood promising hitherto, it is yet impossible to estimate the final turning out of seeds. If beet seed is offered at low prices, it is of former years' crop and a great deal of it might show poor quality.

Table Turnips, Table Swedes—The cultures of these kinds of seed were reduced more than those of any other crop. Only one-third of former years' acreage was planted and even this, to a large extent, was plowed up. The summer was comparatively favorable to its development and during a certain time the prospects were apparently good, but attacks by insects reduced the crops so that the yield of turnips in particular may be called a failure. Swedes yielded somewhat better; nevertheless, only small quantities of new crop will be offered for sale this year. The planting for 1921 being still more limited, a considerable advance in prices will be a mere question of time.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

The week before Thanksgiving started out with a rush, but suddenly Wednesday, November 17, it let down. Thursday it began to pick up again and Saturday was a real clean-up day. The weather probably accounts for the slump.

Mums are not so plentiful as they were a week ago, although there are still enough to go around. Pompons have been plentiful in all except yellow and bronze. There are enough roses, but they are all medium or short grades, white being rather scarce. Carnations clean up daily and the demand is greater than the supply. Mignonette, myosotis and yellow daisies are beginning to appear on the market.

Various Notes.

Miss M. Jackson has taken a position as stenographer at the wholesale store of J. M. Gasser Co.

L. F. Darnell has opened a retail store at Daytona, Fla.

F. J. Piggott had a narrow escape from serious burns when a flue blew out.

George Bates returned from a hunting trip with fifteen rabbits.

F. B. Griffey will handle the delivery work for the J. M. Gasser Co. with a Dodge truck he recently purchased.

O. E. Cunningham has gone on a hunting trip. W. A. R.

Tiffin, O.—The E. J. Ullrich Floral Co., although remaining under the old name and doing business as usual, has changed hands. W. B. Shumway, of Waldron, Mich., has purchased the interest of E. J. Ullrich and will undertake the management himself.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

PLANTINGS of perennials seem to be augmented for next season.

PREDICTIONS are general that the scarcity of nursery stock will be almost as keen in 1921 as it was this season.

SOME nurserymen will be interested in the opportunity offered them by the Federal Board for Vocational Education to take returned soldiers as apprentices in their establishments, as explained in the article on another page of this issue headed, "Here's a Chance for Help."

CALIFORNIA NURSERYMEN.

Meet at Pasadena Next Year.

Pasadena, Cal., was chosen as the next convention city of the California Association of Nurserymen at the closing session of its convention, reported in a previous issue of The Review. The last session was Saturday morning, November 13, and, after a lively debate, Pasadena's invitation was accepted. The election of officers for the coming year was also held at this session and resulted as follows: President, Roy F. Wilcox, of Montebello; vice-president, J. W. Barnicott, Newcastle; secretary-treasurer, Henry W. Kruckeberg, Los Angeles. The executive committee is composed of J. D. Meriwether, Ontario; Fred H. Howard, Los Angeles; Max J. Crow, Gilroy, and E. B. Washburn, Pasadena.

Interesting Addresses.

Some interesting addresses given during the convention included "Fruits that Pay and Some that Don't," by the new vice-president, J. W. Barnicott, who is a director of the Nurserymen's Bud Selection Association, Newcastle, Cal. The subject of bud selection was discussed at length in the various addresses presented before the convention, among the speakers on this subject being Max J. Crow, secretary-treasurer of the Nurserymen's Bud Selection Association, Gilroy, Cal., who gave an account of the organization and development of this association. J. H. Bonesteel, of Kingsburg, and William T. Kirkman, Jr., of Fresno, also spoke on the subject of bud selection.

The new president, Roy F. Wilcox, addressed the convention on the subject of "Growing Plants Formerly Imported." The subject was an interesting one and showed what strides California has made in introducing the culture of foreign plants in home nurseries.

Ladies Join Convention.

Friday evening, November 12, there was a joint meeting of the association and the ladies' auxiliary, and a most enjoyable evening resulted. Besides some excellent musical numbers, the following addresses were given:

"Parks and Trees as Memorials," by Mrs. W. A. Fitzgerald, of Fresno.

"Upsetting Theories," by Mrs. F. E. Cook, of Fresno.

"The Home Garden," by Mrs. J. H. Pierson, of Fresno.

"The Garden Hobby," by Johannes Reimers, San Leandro.

"To Better Serve the Canning Industry," by Mrs. H. C. Merritt, Jr., Tagus Ranch, Tulare.

"Observations on Farming," by Mrs. Robert Hargrave, Madera.

"A Bigger and Finer California," by A. G. Wishon, Fresno.

"Rotarian Message to Nursery Craft," by Jerome O. Cross, Fresno.

Mrs. W. A. Fitzgerald, vice-president of the California Federation of Woman's Clubs, acted as chairman for the evening, which closed with an address of farewell from the retiring president, J. E. Bergtholdt.

BLUE SPRUCE FROM SEED.

When and how should seeds of blue spruce be planted to insure best results?
L. K. F. C.—N. Y.

Sow early in May in open frames. Prepare a fine compost, free from stones and weeds; make a level surface and water well. Then broadcast the seeds, covering them with soil sifted through a fine screen. Give them a mulch of half-decayed leaves and remove this as the germination of seed starts. Protect the sides and top of frames with fine wire or lath screens to keep out birds and animals. Leave the lath screens on except in showery weather, when they are better removed. These screens should be left on the little seedlings all through the summer. No transplanting should be done the first season.

C. W.

PAINESVILLE, O.

The local nurseries have been held up for several days by the recent snow storm. The weather now is moderating and operations are again under way with increased speed.

The Storrs & Harrison Co. has an extra large force digging roses and transplanting shrubs to get them in the cellars for winter.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

No great change has taken place in the last two weeks. Mums are still plentiful, yellow being the only color to diminish in supply. Prices are a little better than they were last month. Roses are cleaning up better than in previous weeks. The cut has not been quite so large this week, on account of the dull weather, but the quality is fine and most varieties move well. Columbia, Dunlop and Ophelia have the big call.

The carnation cut is increasing and the supply can nearly meet the demand at present. Laddie is scarce at $10 per hundred.

Paper Whites are plentiful at $6 per hundred. Sweet peas are beginning to appear and bring a high price. Violet shipments are heavy, the stock being of excellent quality.

Orders for Thanksgiving came in fast and, without a doubt, this was the best Thanksgiving the florists ever had. Prices are a trifle higher than last year, but this does not seem to have any effect on the orders.

Various Notes.

Daniel MacRorie, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco, stopped at Salt Lake City Monday and Tuesday, November 15 and 16, on his way home from the east. Mr. MacRorie was the guest of Robert Miller, of the Miller Floral Co. He visited the greenhouses at Farmington, Utah. The company's new rose, Wasatch, met with much favor.

Charles Soter, of the Walker floral department, who has been ill for the last few months, is able to be around again.

Lewis Ferber, formerly with Clarke Bros., Portland, Ore., Smith & Fettes, Cleveland, O., and later with moving picture companies in California, has joined the force of the Miller Floral Co.

Mr. Coombs, of the Evans Floral Co., is taking a two months' vacation, during which time he will go to Nevada to look after mining interests. G. J. B.

FERNS

We wish to call particular attention to our fine stock of Ferns which we are offering at this time. We can give extra value in all of the sizes, and would recommend that orders be placed at once for shipment during November and before the cold weather sets in. There is no danger now of frosts, and later on, ahead of the holidays, there is always a risk in shipments being delayed and plants damaged, whereas if you have your orders shipped this month, they will go through promptly and you will have them on hand when you want them for your holiday trade. Besides, we can give you exceptionally good value for shipments now.

The Market.

The chrysanthemum is the king of flowers just now and is in great demand for all occasions. Funeral work constitutes the chief demand. Roses and carnations are good and in fair supply.

The temperature has been rather below normal for this early in the season, going as low as 18 degrees last week. All Souls' day and All Saints' day were two big days for the florists here, there being an immense amount of stock used, mostly mums and pompons. Everybody is preparing for a brisk Thanksgiving trade.

Various Notes.

The Lockyear Floral Co. received its lily bulbs a few days ago and Mr. Klutz says of course they will be late for Easter.

M. H. Lockyear, who is president of the Lockyear Business College, is negotiating with eastern school men for the sale of the college here, he to remain as president. There will be but little change in the business except for improvement. Mr. Lockyear is spoken of as a probable candidate for mayor next spring.

Mrs. J. C. Elsperrmann is enjoying good business. All Souls' and All Saints' days were extra big for her, as her Catholic trade is big at all times.

The Blackman Floral Co. is cutting extra fine mums, carnations and roses. Business is excellent.

Karl Zeidler reports lots of business. Niednagel & Sons are enjoying a good trade. Their mums, roses and carnations are fine.

Royston & Fenton have things pretty well in shape for the winter. They have a little more piping to do yet in order to keep warm enough. They are working up a large stock of geraniums for wholesale. The varieties are Poitevine and Ricard. E. L. F.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are now about in their prime, and the number of varieties coming into the market is larger than at any time before this season. In addition to the large flowers, the small varieties are plentiful. The frosts have killed the dahlias, cosmos and other outdoor flowers. Florists are looking forward to excellent business when the social season gets into full swing.

Various Notes.

Philips Bros., 938 Broad street, report a considerable amount of funeral work of late. General business has been fair, but not what it ought to be.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

NEED HEAT ECONOMY.

To Cut Coal Costs.

Whether high-pressure steam, low-pressure steam, vacuum, hot water, gravity or forced circulation—no matter what system is used—the heating medium has a definite cost value and consequently the question of heating your greenhouses is one of the most important factors in the greenhouse business.

In the days gone by, many florists were more or less indifferent about the heat losses and boiler losses, but with the increased cost of fuel, it becomes a matter of the greatest importance, and I shall endeavor to point out, briefly, some of the commonplace conditions resulting in fuel waste.

Many have learned by experience that any kind of boiler or trust-to-luck piping system will not make a practical greenhouse heating system and consequently there is a growing and active desire among florists to adopt modern equipment and methods. This is a progressive habit, commendable, business-like and profitable, and it pays.

Eliminate Leakage.

Air leakage in boiler settings need no longer be tolerated, because the heat losses so incurred may be entirely eliminated by applying any of the numerous compounded cements made for this purpose. Make the boiler walls air-tight and insulate exposed surfaces of your boiler.

Proper furnace design and accurate boiler setting dimensions are vitally important, and it is a mistake to consider the masonry work of any boiler simply as a matter of so many bricks and some mortar. We find it pays to engage an experienced boiler masonry contractor for this class of work, and many of the florists for whom we have supplied large high-pressure steam units will verify this statement.

Should Remove Soot.

Soot-covered heating surfaces should not be tolerated. When you stop to think that one-sixty-fourth of an inch of soot has the same heat resistance as five-sixty-fourths of an inch of asbestos, it is needless to say that soot should be removed at frequent intervals.

For hot water and low-pressure heating boilers hand-cleaning must be adhered to, and for it we recommend the single blade adjustable type cleaner. Make it a rule that the tubes be cleaned down to the surface of the metal every time. High-pressure steam units should

TO THE MAN WHO NEEDS A BOILER

"The customer's interest first"—is the basis of the KROESCHELL standard. This principle makes the KROESCHELL Policy the most liberal of all in the Greenhouse Boiler business. The great variety of boilers that we make places us in a commanding position. It is the KROESCHELL principle to supply only the type of boiler best suited for the conditions. For this reason we always furnish the most efficient boiler unit in every case.

The KROESCHELL has proven its worth in many of the large establishments in this country. It has frequently been selected by the most careful buyers in competition with all other types of boilers. Its efficiency and capacity are completely beyond any other boiler.

KROESCHELL BOILERS have no bulky, soot accumulating surfaces—you avoid the disagreeable work and trouble indispensable to cleaning boilers with complicated and tortuous back and forth passages.

The superiority of our boilers has resulted in the removal and abolishment of hundreds of cast iron sectional boilers—in every instance KROESCHELL BOILERS give more heat with the same piping with less fuel.

"X" BOILER LIQUID FINDS AND FIXES LEAKS IN THE GREENHOUSE HEATING EQUIPMENT

rust and scale is the best and cheapest insurance.

Add "X" Boiler Liquid to the water in the boiler. It works from the inside, keeps the heating system clean and repairs all leaks instantly. A permanent, metal-like repair in half an hour which will stand 500 lbs. pressure.

Scale in the boiler or on the boiler tubes is a detriment and consequently water treatment is recommended. For large installations, a water-softening apparatus quickly pays for itself.

For hand-firing, it will be admitted that the shaking and dumping type of grate has many advantages over the stationary grate. Shaking grates thirty-six inches to forty-eight inches wide and not exceeding forty-eight inches in length should be arranged to shake in two sections. Grates forty-eight inches wide and longer than four feet should be arranged to shake in four sections and for large boiler units we recommend shaking grates with rear dump facilities.

Pipe lines, connections and valves should be kept thoroughly tight. Heat-distributing pipe lines should be of proper area for the work intended. I shall not attempt to go into details in regard to various pipe sizes and connections and other pipe requirements.

There is, at this time, at least one device I wish to point out in connection with high-pressure steam installations, and that is the advisability of installing stop check valves.

When two or more high-pressure steam boilers are connected to a common header, each boiler should be constructed with a stop check valve. As a safety first measure, this is a necessity; in fact, many city and state laws and insurance requirements demand it.

Valves Regulate Steam.

Stop and check valves regulate the flow of steam from boilers and headers, so that in firing each boiler maintains the proper pressure. Should one boiler, owing to incorrect firing, etc., drop in pressure, the stop and check valve will cut out this particular boiler until it reaches the correct pressure. Each boiler must supply its quota of steam and this means increased efficiency.

For large establishments high-pressure steam and vacuum systems are preferable. For plant growing and vegetable ranges, hot water is extensively used. Each system has its advantages. There are many vegetable ranges over 500,000 square feet of glass area which are successfully heated by hot water forced circulation.

Generally, hot water is advisable for the medium-sized establishment, except where roses are grown. There are many large ranges of glass heated by hot water in this country and this accounts for the necessity of big hot water units shown by us at many of the national conventions.

Of late years the self-contained water tube steam heating unit has come to the front. This type of boiler is most desirable for ranges requiring boiler capacities of 100 horsepower or less. For large establishments, the 150-horsepower horizontal return tubular boiler is considered the most practical. For the big ranges covering half a million

Fuel Oil Problem.

As many florists have become more or less interested in the question of fuel oil, and as it bears somewhat upon the question of greenhouse heating, it may not be amiss to say a few words in regard to oil fuel.

Oil is the most perfect fuel from an engineering standpoint, with the exception of natural gas, but unfortunately its supply is distinctly limited.

If oil were sufficiently plentiful and cheap and if a constant supply could be guaranteed as a certainty, it would, of course, be an ideal fuel for greenhouse heating.

It no doubt will be of interest to many to obtain some data to enable you to compare the cost of oil fuel with the cost of coal. For a quick calculation of this kind, one may double the price of oil in cents per gallon, and call this dollars per ton of coal. In other words, oil at 10 cents per gallon is equivalent to coal at $20 per ton. This method, however, does not include any other cost than the fuel cost, and it does not take into account the labor of handling.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The weather has been unusually cool for the last two weeks and business has been good. Numerous social events have created a great demand for flowers. A number of prominent weddings have taken place recently and the florists have come in for a good share of the proceeds in the way of decorations and bouquets. There has also been a heavy demand for funeral flowers.

A hard freeze early in the month put an end to outdoor flowers, and the only source of supply now is greenhouse stock. The growers are cutting some excellent stock, which under ordinary conditions would be an ample supply, but owing to the unusually heavy demand there has been a scarcity, and on several occasions of late the florists were forced to use a few artificial flowers in funeral work.

The current retail price of chrysanthemums is $4 to $15 per dozen; pompon chrysanthemums, $2 to $3 per dozen sprays; roses, $2 to $12 per dozen; carnations, $2 per dozen; narcissi, $2 per dozen; sweet peas, $4 and $5 per hundred; orchids, $2 and $3 each. In plants, cyclamens sell at $3.50 to $10; begonias, $5 to $10; pompon chrysanthemums, $1 to $3, and ferns at $1.50 to $10.

Various Notes.

The prospects for Thanksgiving business were good. The only drawback seemed a possible scarcity of stock, but the growers believed they could furnish enough for all demands.

The Knoxville party at the state convention at Memphis was made up of Addison J. McNutt, G. M. Bentley, Charles L. Baum, Karl P. Baum and Roy L. Baum. They report an enthusiastic and interesting meeting.

Baum's Home of Flowers held its fall opening Monday, November 22, from 12 until 10 p. m. The interior of the store had recently been remodeled and was beautifully decorated for the opening. There was a gorgeous display of chrysanthemums, roses, carnations, orchids, ferns, cyclamens, begonias, palms and everything that goes to make up a beautiful decoration. Every person visiting the store was given a flower as a souvenir, and the opening was a great success from an advertising point of view.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

The Pittsburgh market has been fairly active, the wholesale houses cleaning up every day, with a shortage of chrysanthemums and carnations.

Roses are up to the winter standard of quality, but there are not enough of the better varieties. Some good stevias and calendulas are helping out and lilies are more plentiful. Yellow daisies are good, but the stems are still short. Orchids have been scarce and in good demand. Pompon chrysanthemums are more popular than ever. Boxwood and ground pine are the active greens, as everyone seems to be calling for his stock now, to avoid the experiences of other years. Florists getting boxwood early can put it in a cool, damp place and keep it for months.

Business is generally reported good. Among the larger houses a number of weddings helped to increase the volume of business.

Various Notes.

David Geddis, of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., St. Louis, was a welcome visitor among his old friends in the trade.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. has added a 1½-ton delivery truck to its fleet of trucks. The slogan, "Say It with Flowers," is conspicuously displayed on this truck.

Notice has been given the florists of Pittsburgh and the surrounding suburbs advising them that the Pittsburgh Retail Florists' Association will hold its monthly meeting December 2 at 7 p. m. at the Seventh Avenue hotel. Dinner will be served.

The slogan "Say It with Flowers," is going to be displayed extensively along the public highways and in prominent places in the vicinity of Pittsburgh. The Pittsburgh Retail Florists' Association is distributing slogan signs.

E. J. McCallum, president of the McCallum Co., has just returned from a hunting trip in Forest county.

Some beautiful and artistic window displays have been seen at the stores of Mrs. E. A. Williams, A. W. Smith Co. and McClements Co. H. J. H.

VITAPLASTIC

GLAZING COMPOUND

Will Save You Fuel and Keep Your Greenhouse "TIGHT"

VITAPLASTIC GLAZING COMPOUND is a gum and asbestos product that clings to the side bar as well as the glass and forms a perfect union, remaining in a plastic condition, never getting any harder than tough rubber.

VITAPLASTIC expands and contracts with the expansion and contraction of your greenhouse, in this way sealing your greenhouse and not permitting the heat to evaporate, and also prevents the melting snow from seeping in through loose lights.

The Market.

Weather conditions the last week have been fine for November. The temperature, a little below freezing at night, is often 5 or 10 degrees higher in the daytime, with more clear weather than usual.

Some fine cyclamens are on the market; also chrysanthemums. Business was not so active as usual early in November, but has increased on account of the football games and the consequent entertaining. Chrysanthemums are later than usual this year in this section.

Fine chrysanthemum shows have been maintained for the last two or three weeks at the Minneapolis and St. Paul park board greenhouses. There was also a smaller one at the University Farm.

Association Meeting.

The Minnesota State Florists' Association met at the Minneapolis park board greenhouses November 18. After inspecting the fine showing of chrysanthemums they retired to the paint shop, where one of the biggest meetings of the year was held. Max Kaiser read an excellent paper about lilies, which brought out considerable discussion. John Sten, of Red Wing, Minn., was present with some Mrs. W. C. Cook roses. They scored eighty-seven points.

Holm & Olson showed some cyclamens, which scored ninety-five points. The Merriam Park Floral Co. showed a few cyclamen plants, scoring eighty-five points. These exhibits brought out interesting discussion and added much to the interest of the meeting.

Arthur Mosseau, J. Juhl, R. M. Anderson, Martin Arneson, C. I. Lindscoog, H. F. Baker, Herman Schoen, G. R. Burse and Ewald Hermes were elected to membership. The next meeting will be held in the West hotel, December 8, when films showing greenhouse construction will be shown by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. Greenhouse construction will be the topic for discussion and those who use glass are urged to be present.

Various Notes.

At the last meeting of the Minneapolis Florists' Club officers were elected as follows: President, Hugh Will; vice-president, J. F. Kimmy; secretary, H. Philpott.

A committee, consisting of C. Rice, R. A. Latham and Anthony Forchas, was appointed to handle the advertising campaign. C. N. Ruedlinger and John Rovick were appointed on the entertainment committee, and J. H. Lundgren and C. Rice on the club committee. Systematic advertising is to be tried out this year.

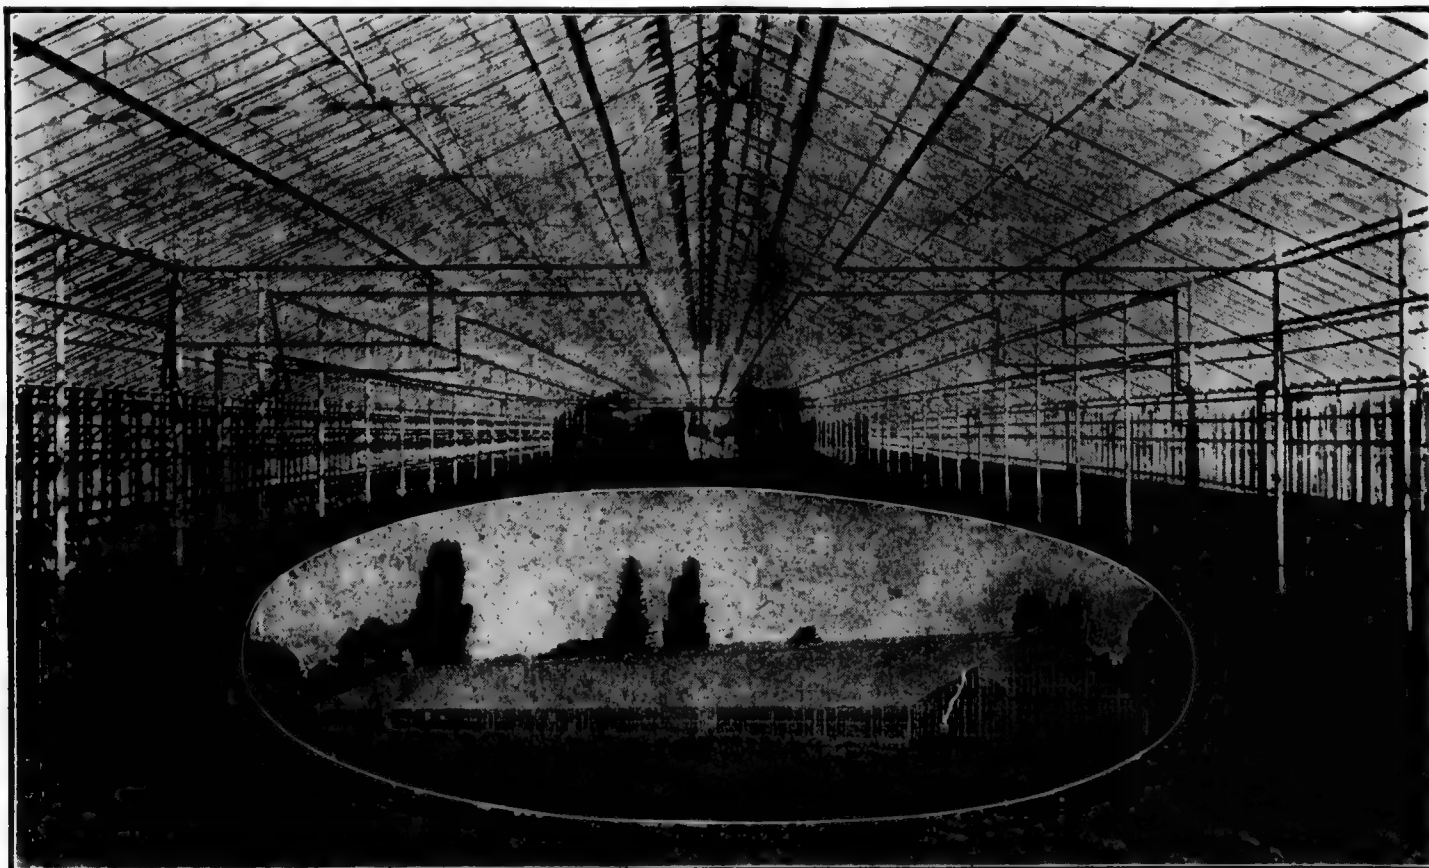

William Vasatka, of the State Agricultural Society's Greenhouses, has some excellent poinsettias coming in. He has just marketed a fine lot of cyclamens.

Joseph Marks, of A. Henderson & Co., Chicago, was in town November 18.

O. J. Olson enjoyed a few days' hunting trip in Canada, the middle of November.

King GREENHOUSES

Here is another King Steel Flat Rafter wide house, erected in Erie, Pa.

This is our standard design for houses 69 to 76 feet wide.

King wide houses are noted for the accurate fit of the steel framing members.

Our customer writes: "Everything went together as though it were built like a watch." You can realize yourself how important it is that the framing of big houses should "fit." Loose joints cause vibration. You cannot make a good fit with a  $\frac{3}{8}$ -inch bolt in a half-inch hole.

We drill all holes in our framing to a tight fit for the bolts.

We have adjustment on all framing members to take up the slack.

No chance for vibration in a "King."

41 Foot 3 Inch House

For general growing purposes, this is the finest house in the medium width class.

It is an odd width, but that very oddity works out to your benching advantage, giving six benches, each 4 feet 6 inches wide.

The side of the house is 7 feet high.

The height of the ridge is 17 feet 3 inches.

See Handy Hand Book for other standard widths.

Vacuum Heating System

WE show here a view of the boiler room end of our vacuum heating system.

The system mentioned was installed by us last winter for the Rockport Greenhouse Co. of West Park, Ohio, and is a typical modern system.

This method of handling the water of condensation in steam heating plants having 50,000 ft. or more of glass area is unsurpassed.

We have installed many such systems, and they are all giving entire satisfaction.

REFRIGERATORS FOR ALL PURPOSES

And, for the Floral Trade in Particular

THE McCray Refrigerator is the favorite with the floral trade. Many successful Florists have used McCray Refrigerators for years and years with perfect satisfaction. They have unbounded confidence in the refrigerator which bears the name "McCray" for it stands for quality and unequalled service.

Viewed solely from the selling end, the McCray has superior qualities—for it aids in selling flowers and at the same time puts a stop to waste from spoilage. The various compartments are of different sizes and accomodate the different lengths of cut flowers.

Both the exterior and the interior of the McCray Florist Refrigerators are handsomely made and easy to keep clean. You may have either heavy plate mirror or white enamel for the interior lining. The exterior may be of any finish to match your woodwork or fixtures.

There is a McCray built to suit your requirements. The styles illustrated here are designed for Florists, but this is not our complete line. Our Catalog No. 74 shows many more refrigerators. Get a copy of this Catalog—it will tell you more about the McCray and what it will mean to your business.

Send for Catalog—Let us send you a catalog that describes a great variety of designs—one to suit every requirement: No. 74 for Florists; No. 71 for Grocers and Delicatessens; No. 63 for Meat Markets and General Stores; No. 95 for Residences; No. 52 for Hotels and Restaurants.

You may be interested to know that as a result of a small ad (it cost $2.22) in the Classified columns of The Review last spring we not only sold considerable quantities of Yucca, but this week as a direct result of that ad have sold a carload of this plant to one firm. As it takes about twenty-five acres to produce this order, we are led to believe that probably the Classified ad mentioned has produced as much value as any appearing in your very valuable publication.—Robin Bonwell, Basin, Wyoming, November 22, 1920.

CHECK COMPLAINTS ON HIGH PRICES

Let's show the public why flowers cost more to grow than they ever did before and why their prices cannot fall as other commodities are falling. Now is the time to do the trade and the public real service by obviating criticism of flower prices, so common at Christmas.

MORE dangerous in its influence on the sale of flowers than the reaction caused by depression in certain industries accompanying the present business readjustment is the belief engendered by daily newspapers that the prices asked by florists are unduly high. This is no new topic, particularly for the month of December. It seems, however, to have sprung up earlier than usual this season and to have been given more prominence in public print. In Chicago this prominence occurred at an unfortunate time, the day before Thanksgiving, the same day that the dailies of that city carried a conspicuous amount of florists' advertising, done by leading retailers and the Allied Florists' Association. In both the morning papers appeared matter which, whether so calculated or not, could not but discourage flower buying.

Misrepresentation.

In the Tribune, in a conspicuous column, was a story of high food costs, ending with a statement quoted as coming from Russell J. Poole, secretary of the city council committee on living costs, which wound up with the paragraph which appears in the box on this page. In the Herald and Examiner, Chicago's other morning paper, appeared the cartoon reproduced at the bottom of this page. This strip, which is occupied daily by the adventures of Barney Google, appears not only in a conspicuous position in the Herald and Examiner, but also in many other newspapers throughout the country, to which it is supplied by the King Feature Syndicate.

The slogan of the Tribune, "The World's Greatest Newspaper," and that of the Herald and Examiner,

"And as for the florists, they are attempting the biggest robbery of all. The young man who attempts to say it with flowers this Thanksgiving faces bankruptcy."—From statement by secretary of city council committee on living costs, in Chicago Tribune, November 24.

"Largest Three Cent Morning Circulation in the World," may or may not be accepted as strictly accurate by all readers; nevertheless, they are the morning reading of the citizens of the third largest city in the world and of a large number of people in Illinois and adjacent states. Material in their columns is given a wide circulation and its influence is great. The result was that the money which the florists of Chicago, through the Allied Florists' Association, spent to advertise flowers for Thanksgiving on one page was discounted by what met readers' eyes on a later page. Some readers who perused the florists' advertisement going downtown on the street cars or elevated trains the morning before Thanksgiving said to themselves, "I guess I'll get some flowers for tomorrow"—and some of them, after they had read Russell J. Poole's remark on a later page, said, "I guess I won't!" Just the precise result to florists of such adverse publicity cannot be determined, but that there was a result not beneficial to the trade cannot be doubted.

Protest.

In protest to the quotation from Mr. Poole which appeared in the Chicago Tribune, The Review wrote a letter to the editor of that newspaper suggesting that a fairer presentation of facts be made the public. One of the results of the letter was its appearance—with some omissions—in the department headed "Voice of the People," in the Tribune November 26. The letter actually written November 24 was as follows:

At the end of the article which appeared in the right-hand column of page 17 of this morning's Tribune appeared the following statement, quoting Russell J. Poole, "And as for the florists, they are attempting the biggest robbery of all. The young man who attempts to say it with flowers this Thanksgiving faces bankruptcy."

This statement is more than an exaggeration; it is a false assertion which puts in a wrong light an entire trade in the territory in which the Tribune circulates. It brands an entire group of men and women because the truth is not known in their behalf.

Actually, prices of flowers are little above what they were a year ago. During the year coal has advanced tremendously in cost and labor has kept close upon its heels. These two items form the principal expense in growing flowers. The florist, so far from committing robbery, is in reality working on smaller margin than ever before, and is bearing part of the advance in cost instead of passing it all along to the consumer.

Wouldn't a news story regarding this feature of flower costs be as good material for your columns as are explanations of grocers' and butchers' high prices?

Blame.

Of course, we all understand that, in endeavoring to strike a humorous note, both the cartoonist in Mr. Hearst's paper, the Herald and Examiner, and the reporter on the Tribune staff in quoting Mr. Poole, shot their shaft at florists without ever a thought of the mark they hit. They had been used to making quips about high prices in the various lines and drew no distinctions between justified high prices and unjustifiably high prices. To them the high price of flowers is in the same class as the high price of sugar or silk shirts. They know the bottom fell out of the latter two when the cost of raw materials went down. They don't know that the bottom cannot drop out of the flower market, because the raw materials are not descending in cost. They know why sugar and silk shirts went down because the newspapers gave columns to the Cuban sugar crop and likewise to the financial panic in Japan. The sugar importers and the silk importers gave reporters much ma-tage of the nursery trade. What was done to promote the interests of the nursery trade can be done equally well for florists.

Nor is it necessary to wait for the organization of the National Flower Growers' Association and the compilation of statistics regarding greenhouse terest and value to readers, that gives no firm or organization free advertising, at any rate directly.

Christmas.

Now is a most advantageous moment to do just this thing. Christmas is near at hand, when newspaper comment regarding high prices is always common. If the public were informed regarding the high cost of growing flowers, if it were made to realize just why a dozen roses cost what they do, many would pay the price more willingly and some persons would buy flowers instead of talking about robbery. Exceedingly small is the percentage, even of those who buy flowers, who comprehend how constant and minute is the care required in a greenhouse. Few realize that large growers spend several hundred dollars daily merely to fumigate their houses. Few have any inkling of the labor cost or the coal cost that enters into each bloom. Nor do they realize the length of time required to grow roses on 3-foot and 4-foot stems. It is even more important that the public realize that the cold weather and dark days of winter curtail production when expenses are highest, when the demand is strongest, and when the supply is lowest.

All these facts may be put in interesting form, with specific examples in dollars and cents to illustrate the points which are to be most impressed upon the public. Thus may be driven home an appreciation of the reasons for high prices that will forestall the usual complaints and, indeed, stimulate buying instead of its being curtailed. Here is an opportunity for the trade. Let's take it!

TENNESSEE PRESIDENT.

The new president of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, elected at its seventh annual meeting, at Memphis, November 17, is already well known throughout the trade as the president and manager of the Idlewild Greenhouses, at Memphis, and as one of the most energetic members of his profession.

Mr. Englehart's career is closely linked with that of the Idlewild Greenhouses. He started with this establishment at its beginning, twenty-four years ago, acting as salesman, delivery man, designer and general utility man. Now as its head, he directs the activities at the main store, at 89 South Main street, Memphis, and at the branch store and greenhouses, at East and East-moreland streets.

He is a member of the Elks, K. C., Moose, Maccabees, Kiwanis Club, Memphis Chamber of Commerce and S. A. F. He is married and has two children. His son, W. H. Englehart, Jr., is 15 years of age.

As president of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, states Mr. Englehart, his great ambition is to double the membership of the organization. As a result of the drive at Memphis he will sit as the association's representative on the board of directors of the S. A. F.

terial for publication on those topics. No space has been given to flower costs—why?

At first thought, maybe we lay the blame on the newspapers. Perhaps to a certain extent we're right. But to a larger extent, we're not. No one has our business at heart so much as we have ourselves, and no one will act for us if we do not act. Benjamin Franklin's statement, "If you would have a thing well done, do it yourself," might be revised by the omission of the "well" and be often applicable, as it is in this instance.

Opportunity.

Here is an opportunity for great service by our publicity campaigns, both national and local, that does not require large expenditure for expensive advertising space. It calls for the gathering of some statistics and putting them into readable form for publication in newspapers and magazines. Reference to the work of the nurserymen last year in publicity shows what a vast amount of newspaper space can be obtained for the sole expense of sending out prepared stories, giving them exclusively to one paper in each community. Such material was sent to over 750 papers throughout the country and the total space aggregated thousands of columns, all to the advan-costs throughout the country. For examples to show the public the ascent in the cost of growing flowers in comparison with the rise in the prices charged for them, figures obtained from a few greenhouses will serve.

If the sole florist in a small town wishes to impress the fact on his public, he needs only figures showing the course of rising costs in his own houses. A chat with the editor of the local paper will serve to get him perhaps half a column, if he takes along a bunch of flowers.

In larger communities the secretary of the coöperative advertising organization can secure data from a few of its grower members to serve as illustrations for such an article. Such a secretary, if he has a knowledge of newspaper ways, as he should, can work up such a story so that it will be given a conspicuous place from a news point of view, without resorting to demands as a purchaser of advertising space. Indeed, with the present day newspaper, such demands are not so submissively heard as they were years ago. The editorial and advertising departments are widely divorced and the editor's inclination is more to avoid the appearance of favoring an advertiser in the reading columns than to cater to his wishes. The appeal should be to his desire for news, for something of in-

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

PRACTICAL PUBLICITY.

Some of the newspaper "colyum conductors" can give hints to our florist-advertisers. Some of them do. B. L. T., in the Chicago Tribune November 24, ran the following suggestion in his column, "A Line o' Type or Two":

SAYING IT WITH FLOWERS.
[From the Waterloo Courier.]

A huge bouquet of flowers adorns Chief of Police Young's desk. It was presented with the compliments of Galloway Bros. in appreciation of the department's recovering an overcoat stolen from the firm's driver.

COLOR IN WINDOW DISPLAY.

"Color in window display is one of the most subtle means of influencing the florist's customers, yet one that receives far less attention than it deserves," stated a Seattle florist who has acquired a more than local reputation for the window displays of flowers he produces. "I have found the following rules of great help when figuring out backgrounds for the various windows, and know they can be used with flowers just as with any other colored body. White by the side of a color serves to intensify the tone of the object shown, while black has just the opposite effect." Among the color schemes which he has found effective are the following:

Black, orange and red.
Black, yellow and orange.
Black, red and yellow.
Black, yellow and violet.
Black, green and orange.

WINDOW WINS BUSINESS.

A recent display window of the Winter Floral Co., Charleston, W. Va., attracted much attention and has actually been effective in stimulating the firm's telegraph business to a considerable extent.

In the extreme front of this window and elevated somewhat was a telegraph instrument. Piled around it were numbers of telegrams. Telegraph wires extended from the instrument over miniature poles and terminated at the north pole of a globe of the earth, at the other end of the window. On one side of the telegraph line ran a miniature electric train of two cars. The banner on one read "Winter Floral Co. Special," and on the other "Say It with Flowers for All Occasions." This train disappeared into a tunnel beneath a mountain which supported the globe and the track circled back behind a camouflage of ferns, emerging again behind the telegraph instrument.

On the other side of the telegraph line ran a road of white sand on which was placed a toy delivery truck filled with flower boxes labeled, "Special Delivery from the Winter Floral Co." In the center of the window was a pond filled with goldfish and a doll boy fishing on the bank.

The background was of autumn foliage, with telegrams pinned to the foliage in profusion. Plant pots and sheet moss were employed for the floor covering. A few mums and pompons were displayed. A sign in the front of the window read, "Do you know that wherever telegrams go, flowers may go too? Florists everywhere are ready to serve patrons of this store through the F. T. D. (Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association)."

HARMONIOUS COMBINATION.

There is no end to the making of basket arrangements, because there is no end to the combinations the florist may make of the material at his disposal. From the strictest and simplest use of one variety of rose, for example, to the inclusion of many different flowers, there are many gradations, and in the material that may be combined there is wide variety. What is always needed is that eye for harmonious combination which is the florist's greatest asset.

On this page is illustrated a basket from one of Chicago's foremost florists, an example of a happy juxtaposition of a number of flowers. They were selected with care and placed with skill, with a most pleasing result. W. J. Smyth, from whose store this basket came, has found the employment of such artistry highly appreciated among those who still reside along Chicago's old-time fashionable boulevard, Michigan avenue, as well as the newer elite that dwell farther out on the south side.

BOOSTING THE BUSINESS.

As florists each and every one of us is interested in anything that leads to the increased sale of flowers. For one thing, any successful idea is likely to afford a suggestion of something we can employ in our own sales efforts. And then there is the assurance that every little bit of publicity and sales promotion work by any florist helps many others besides himself by just that much; no man gets for himself the only benefit derived from his efforts. Take, for instance, the autumn flower show of Fred "Red C." Weber, in St. Louis. Mr. Weber engaged the services of one of the most expert advertising agencies in his city and put out some large and attractive newspaper advertisements of the event, all the window display, store decoration, souvenir and other details having had due attention. Of course Mr. Weber's store was thronged and it was a highly successful affair from his point of view.

Now let us consider the general trade view: Not all the people who saw Mr. Weber's splendid ads were near his store that week, but flowers had been brought attractively to their attention, so they bought some from their regular florist or at any convenient place. So all the retail florists in St. Louis and wherever St. Louis newspapers are read benefited more or less by Mr. Weber's enterprise. And if the retailers profited, so did the St. Louis wholesalers and growers, even the Chicago wholesalers and growers, the supply houses, plantmen—everybody.

Yes, it's boosters like Fred "Red C." Weber who make the florists' business grow. Let's help 'em all we can.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

F. T. D. PRICES INFLATED?

I should like to know what others think of some of the price lists sent by large F. T. D. florists to us little fellows in smaller places. It seems to me there are some inflated prices in some of these, which will put a damper on F. T. D. business instead of pushing it.

I have just received one such price list. This may contain this florist's regular prices; I do not know. But when he asks $25 per dozen for Russell roses at retail, when the highest prices quoted on any wholesale list I have received are only $35 per hundred or $4.20 per dozen, it looks like an inflated price.

How can he expect the average florist in the average town to take F. T. D. orders for him at such prices?

Highest quotations on carnations are $8 per hundred. He quotes them at $4 and $5 per dozen. Columbia wholesales at $25 per hundred for the best. He quotes them at $25 per dozen, with the lowest grade at $10, which should be not far off from the best grade at retail, allowing a good margin for overhead expenses and still doubling his money.

Other flowers are quoted as high, proportionately.

I sent out a few telegraph orders for Thanksgiving and charged a fair price. I sent out one for mums at $10 per dozen; also one for roses at $10 per dozen. But when it comes to asking such prices as this florist wants, it's going too far, I think, for the good of the trade in general.

Do you think this will help the florists' trade, or will it hurt us all? It may be all right in a few instances to charge those prices, but how can the average florist charge, and the average customer pay them? The public will buy something else in preference. In that way the entire florists' trade, and the telegraph business especially, is damaged instead of boosted.

I should like to know what some other florists think of this same thing. They no doubt have received such price lists. A few only, I am glad to say, seem to be inflating their prices so much; the majority of F. T. D. members, some in much larger places than this one is, who, no doubt, give just as good service, furnish the same grade of stock at half, and many times less than half, what this florist and a few others ask.

Winfield S. Kircher.

ARMISTICE DAY ABROAD.

How flowers were used to celebrate Armistice day in England is told in the following paragraph from the Gardeners' Chronicle, of London, for November 20:

"During Armistice week, when the thoughts of the whole nation were turned to remembrance of those who laid down their lives for the cause of liberty during the great war, many thousands of people expressed their esteem and love for the departed through the medium of flowers. At local shrines throughout the country floral tributes of affection and regard were abundant, while the national shrine, the cenotaph in Whitehall, was, and still is, surrounded by an extraordinary wealth of flowers, of which it has been estimated there are no fewer than 100,000 separate emblems. King George V., the Prince of Wales and other members of the royal family, the prime minister and other notable people, placed tributes at the base of the cenotaph, and among the many others was one from the National Union of Horticultural Workers, which consisted of a design four feet high and three feet wide, composed of yellow and crimson chrysanthemums, bordered with laurel leaves, the whole representing the badge of the union. The inscription was as follows: 'To the memory of the 105 members of the National Union of Horticultural Workers who died for their country.'"

DETROIT'S NEWEST STORE.

One of the finest stores in Detroit, Mich., was opened the week of November 8 when Papes Bros., Inc., opened their new L-shaped store on Woodward avenue. The site is an excellent one. The store has two entrances. It is reported to be the largest flower store in Detroit.

The fixtures are from the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and are of the best.

The decorations at the time of opening, as may be noted in the illustrations on page 25, were mostly chrysanthemums, palms and ferns. The two up-to-date refrigerators make an excellent showing and are decidedly an ornament. Tall basket vases of chrysanthemums were placed to advantage and the white enameled tables bearing low vases gave

This line of accessories is cleverly brought to notice without eclipsing the main business of selling flowers. The slogan, "Say It with Flowers," may be seen over the doorway which connects the two sections of the store, in the extreme rear of the interior pictured in one of the accompanying illustrations.

Peter K. Papes was in Chicago a few weeks before the opening, arranging for stock. The highest-class stock obtainable is being carried and the best trade in Detroit will be catered to. The Papes brothers are also interested in the Central Floral Co., Detroit's successful popular-priced store. The latter company also has a store on State street in Chicago.

FREEZING IN TRANSIT.

That the law will disregard the immediate cause of an injury in fixing liability when it appears that something else was the real cause, is shown by the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals in a case of special interest to florists—L. J. Upton & Co. vs. Merchants' & Miners' Transportation Co., 103 South-eastern Reporter, 616.

This general principle is specifically applied in a holding that where a shipment has been exposed to freezing weather by an unreasonable delay in transit, the carrier will not be permitted to avoid liability for the resulting loss on the ground that the freezing was an act of God.

The court says: "The question has been so frequently the subject of litigation and the cases so fully analyzed and annotated that no extended discussion of them is regarded as necessary. The rule is that a carrier is exempt from liability if the act of God is the proximate and sole cause of loss, but it is equally well settled that, even though the immediate cause of loss is an act of God, nevertheless, if the negligence of the carrier mingles with it as an active and coöperative cause, the carrier is still responsible. If the negligence of the carrier concurs in and contributes to the loss, the carrier is not exempt from liability, even if the immediate damage is caused by the act of God.

"In Wolf vs. American Express Co., 43 Mo. 421, 97 Am. Dec. 406, in which the carrier was held responsible for the freezing of wine, this is said: 'Had not the negligence and inattention of the defendant coöperated with the cold, the loss would not have taken place, nor the damage have occurred. The carrier must not only exercise diligence, but he must use that degree of attention and care which the occasion and subject committed to his trust demand. What would be sufficient care in case of ponderous articles, not liable to be deteriorated by exposure, might be the most palpable neglect in the case of costly and perishable goods. His acts and exertions must be commensurate with his duties.' "

HAIL INSURANCE.

Please let me know where I can get a company that will write hail insurance on greenhouses. There are five or six good agencies in this city, but none of them will insure greenhouses against hail. Please let me know as soon as possible, because we have hail in late winter and spring. J. B. L.—Okla.

Address John G. Esler, secretary, Florists' Hail Association, Saddle River, N. J. This is a mutual organization of florists and in every way recommendable.

It would, of course, be to the advantage of the members to have the Hail Association known to everyone in the greenhouse business, but it is only recently that the directors have considered it advisable to make a small appropriation for advertising in the spring. They could get a full page once a month in The Review for $480 a year.

NEW YORK.

Thanksgiving Business.

Thanksgiving day business was, on the whole, fairly satisfactory. With a normal demand, the supply of flowers would have been on the short side. Buyers balked at prices on the days preceding the holiday, until a threatened congestion forced concessions to an extent which stimulated the movement of stock. Chrysanthemums, of course, were in greatest demand, and over them the price war raged. The best commercial varieties, held at $9 per dozen, then moved down to $7.50, a few only bringing the higher price.

Looking the Length of the New Store of Papes Bros., Inc., Detroit.

Other grades moved down also, so that a good quality was procurable at $4 to $5 per dozen, and clearances were accomplished all around. Retailers report a satisfactory business, but many assert that they could have done much more business at prices more nearly normal. Roses sold well because they were not in heavy supply. Carnations sold for the same reason, the price range, $8 to $12, covering a great quantity of short-stemmed flowers which ordinarily would be taken only for funeral work. Paper White narcissi hung fire at 75 cents per bunch and had to be closed out at 50 cents, with Soleil d'Or at 75 cents. Cattleyas met a fair demand at 50 cents to $1.50 each, a few bringing $2 for extra quality. Lily of the valley was plentiful, and moved slowly within a range of $8 to $25 per hundred sprays, the higher price being for a quality rather better than the ordinary top grade. White lilies were in small demand.

The Market.

Friday and Saturday, November 26 and 27, arrivals were light in character and prices were not materially changed. Monday, November 29, arrivals were with the demand for them less than ordinary. The price range is 50 cents to $1.50, the latter figure including hybrids. Oncidiums and cypripediums are available in small quantity, but sales of them appear to drag. A few gardenias are coming in.

White lilies are scarce, but sales of them are not at all active. Lily of the valley is fairly plentiful and moves slowly.

Sweet peas are not overplentiful and meet a fair demand. Growers complain that plantings now coming into flower have suffered from bud-dropping due to dark weather. White lilac has made an appearance and 50 cents per spray is the asking price. Stevia is arriving in some quantity, and the quality is good. Arrivals of Paper White narcissi are increasing and sales drag at 50 cents per bunch. Bouvardia is plentiful. Calendulas, myosotis, snapdragons and pansies are among the miscellaneous offerings. Violets are somewhat scarce.

A NEW SMALL CULTIVATOR.

A small wheel cultivator was invented a year or so ago by a New York clergyman, who was an enthusiastic gardener. The cultivator teeth have a spring adjustment, permitting them to work back and forth, breaking the shock and pulverizing the surface soil, so it makes a perfect mulch, which conserves the soil moisture, thus greatly benefiting the growing crop. It is inexpensive, light and durable and is particularly valuable for use in small gardens or in beds where the rows are planted closely.

LANG BUYS GREEN RANGE.

Third Largest Firm in Southwest.

Purchase of the holdings of the Green Floral Co. makes the Lang Floral & Nursery Co., at Dallas, Tex., the third largest firm of flower growers south and west of Chicago, according to Otto Lang, president and general manager. This range, consisting of about 200,000 feet of glass, was built by Colonel E. H. R. Green, the son of the late Hetty Green, at a cost of $500,000 and was later owned by Seth Miller. The property includes forty-seven acres of land and residences for the employees. In addition to this acquisition, the Lang Floral & Nursery Co. has purchased the 50,000 feet of glass of the Haskell Avenue Floral Co., also of Dallas.

Besides its recent purchases, holdings of this company include its Richmond Hill range of about 50,000 feet of glass, 35,000 feet of glass on McKinney avenue and about the same amount on Ross avenue. There are seventy-five acres in nurseries on McKinney avenue, in west Dallas and at Richmond Hill. Improvements planned by the company, according to Mr. Lang, include the restocking, rebuilding and enlargement of its greenhouses. For the improvements to the grounds, 175,000 gladiolus corms, 25,000 tuberoses and many dahlia roots have been bought. Irrigation systems will be installed throughout the grounds.

Rapid Growth of Business.

The growth of the Lang Floral & Nursery Co. has been exceedingly rapid in the last few years. Commencing in 1898 with a capital of less than $1,000, the company was in 1910 incorporated for $46,000 and in 1912 this was increased to $70,000. A further increase was made January 1, 1920, when the company was recapitalized for $200,000, following some extensive improvements, including the purchase for $30,000 of a tract of land planted to evergreens and roses, the addition of three greenhouses to the Haskell avenue range, the building of a 2-story brick office building and a large 2-story brick warehouse. Plans are being made to increase the present capital to $400,000 in the near future.

light, following a period of dull weather. The supply of chrysanthemums is waning, many growers having finished cutting. Among the mums now coming in are Dr. Enguehard and Wells' Late Pink. Spray chrysanthemums are still in fair supply, from plants reestablished under glass, and they are meeting with a fair demand.

Roses are not plentiful, dull weather limiting the cut. Arrivals, however, show improved quality. American Beauty is in limited supply only, but there appears to be a sufficiency to meet the demand for it. Hybrid teas meet a spasmodic demand at $5 to $40, the higher figure being for long-stemmed stock in the better varieties outside of Francis Scott Key, which seems now to be in the American Beauty class as far as price is concerned.

Carnations are not in large supply, many of the growers being off crop. Reports, however, are to the effect that the Christmas cut will be large.

A number of Thanksgiving day functions called for decorations, and florists in the best residential sections had some good business. J. G. Leikens had the W. K. Vanderbilt dinner decoration, which called for a yellow color scheme to harmonize with the famous Vanderbilt gold dinner service.

He has about finished cutting his single-stemmed chrysanthemums and is preparing to plant some of the empty beds with sweet peas. His carnations, as usual, are in tiptop condition; among the varieties in crop is a bench of the new Hope Henshaw, which is showing grand color and form.

SUBDUING SNAPDRAGON RUST.

Can you give us a sure remedy for rust on snapdragon plants? We have tried everything we knew of, with no results.
W. A. L.—Va.

It seems doubtful, to say the least, whether this inquirer's hopes can be fully realized. A "sure remedy," such as he asks for, seems to imply a briefly stated rule of action, with sure and swift results, and such a remedy for snapdragon rust has not yet been discovered. Experience has proved, apparently, that the use of fungicides, such as Bordeaux mixture or ammoniacal copper carbonate, is of no avail. Only preventive measures, in the form of cultural precautions, are effective. Even after a house of the plants is badly infected with the disease, still the only resource is the prevention, if possible, of the further spread of the germs.

To begin at the beginning, the disease can be avoided, or eliminated in time, by the propagation of plants from seed. It appears to have been definitely proved that antirrhinum rust is not carried or propagated by seed. Perhaps the only disadvantage in growing the plants from seed is the fact that few strains are fixed, and selection must therefore be practiced in order to secure desirable strains. On the other hand, the disease is extremely liable to be transmitted by cuttings.

Excessive moisture, created by frequent syringing and the use of heavy shade, tends to promote the disease. Not only is the moisture favorable to the germination of the rust spores, but the syringing also carries the spores from one plant to another. Hence the spread of the disease may be checked by watering only from below, so as to avoid wetting the foliage, and also by limiting the number of stems on a plant, so as to prevent too great density and consequent dampness of the foliage.

In brief, then, the necessary procedure seems to be: Grow the plants from seed, or be sure—if that is possible—that the cuttings are free from the disease germs; remove and destroy diseased plants; let the habit and the distribution of the plants be sufficiently open to permit a good circulation of air; if practicable, discontinue overhead watering. If the inquirer has saved his back numbers of The Review, he will find a fuller treatment of this subject in the issues for December 11 and 25, 1919.

GROWING PELARGONIUMS.

Please give me some information on growing pelargoniums. I have about 1,000 3-inch plants which could stand a shift; I have been keeping them on the dry side for the last few weeks. Is it best to keep them growing or dry them off, and what is the best way of doing this?
W. W.—Okla.

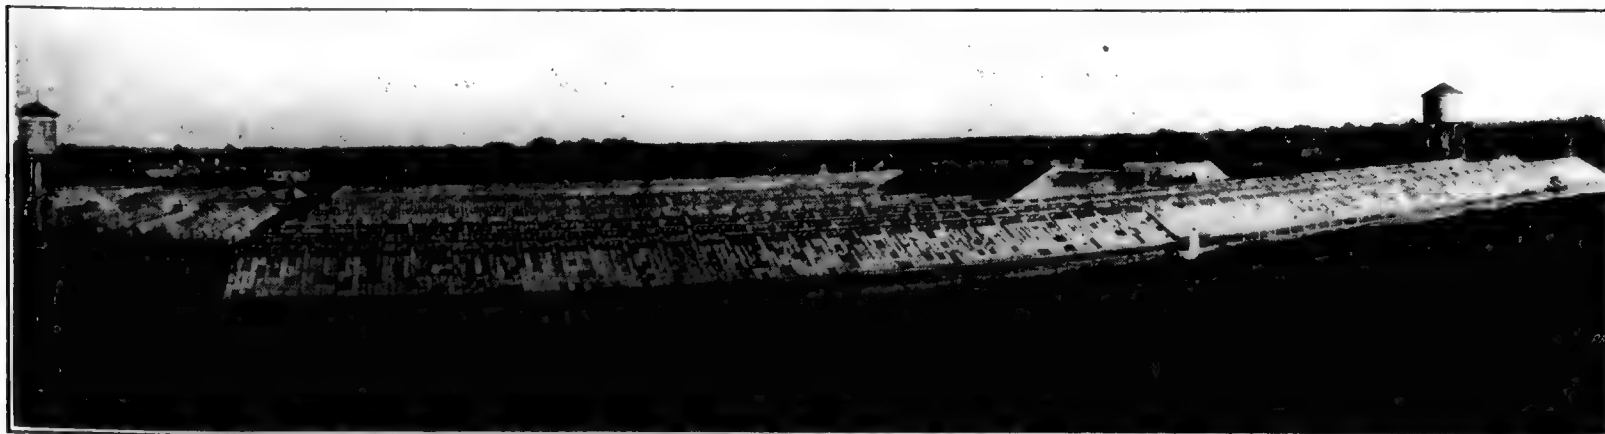

It will be better to keep your plants on the dry side and rest them. They should be laid on their sides outdoors; this will allow them to become well matured. When the wood has become brown and well hardened, prune them back somewhat and, after they have started to break, shake out and repot them, using the same size of pots. You can keep the plants in a frame, protecting it as cool weather comes along, later placing them in a cold house. If you grow such varieties as Easter Greeting and Wurttembergia, you should be able to flower them for Easter by giving a slightly warmer house early in February. Pot along before the roots have become too much matted.

C. W.

GROWING GERANIUMS.

We should be pleased to receive some information regarding the growing of geraniums. How long does it take from the time the cutting is put in the sand until it is a blooming plant, ready for the market?
N. D. B.—Ia.

Cuttings rooted after the arrival of autumn root with a smaller minimum of loss than those put in while the weather is warmer. Put them in clean, sharp sand, do not shade and after first watering keep somewhat on the dry side until they are well rooted. Cuttings can be taken and put in sand as late as March 1 and still make nice 3-inch pot plants for Memorial day sales. The fall and early winter cuttings are usually sold in 4-inch pots and they may be had of salable size within four or five months. Smaller plants can be had in much less time. It all depends on how large a plant is wanted. The standard sizes for bedding and for window boxes are 3½ and 4-inch.

GROWING LILIES FOR EASTER.

Little Used Otherwise.

Lilies have always been looked upon as the noblest of garden plants. Their flowers, of striking colors, and their fine forms appeal strongly to the eye and the imagination as well. Yet lilies are less understood and less appreciated than almost any other plant of prominence. The tiger lily is a favorite and old-fashioned flower, to be found in many of the most homely and unpretending gardens. Now and then one finds a good group of the Madonna lily and sometimes the landscape gardeners plant masses of the gold-banded lily in the shrubbery borders. Lilies are ornamentally useful principally for their flowers. Their foliage is seldom of a character to assist in decorative schemes.

In growing lilies outdoors, the best results can be obtained in light, rich soil, sheltered from severe winds as well as the midday sun. In preparing the bed, mix leaf-mold or peat with the soil, as it will not only keep the ground loose, but will also keep the bed cool in the hot summer months.

Propagation.

As a rule, lilies do best in a rich soil, but the bulbs should not be in contact with fresh manure, as this is injurious. Well rotted manure is beneficial to them.

Lilies are propagated from seed, from scales and from offsets. To produce bulbs from seed is a slow process. In growing bulbs from scales, take quite ripe, strong, outside scales and plant them where they will be kept warm and moist. They generally grow into bulbs the first season, and make a fairly good growth the second year. If well taken care of, they will be large enough for blooming the third season; that is, by fall in the third season. Bulbs grown from offsets, when given good care, usually bloom the third or fourth season.

For Easter.

An important characteristic of lilies is their fragrance, which is quite strong in L. candidum and L. auratum. Aside from these, no lilies can be classed as real favorites of the American public, while dozens of magnificent kinds are practically unknown.

It is different with the Easter lily, for who does not know the noble flower of purity, the flower that has been identified with the Christian religion for generations, to symbolize the awakening to new and better life, the coming of spring? It is also gratifying that it is more customary in the United States than in any other country to have the lily as the Easter flower. About 1880 it became a nation-wide custom to use lilies in churches for decorations and in residences for table plants.

formosum. It is not difficult to grow the Easter lily under glass from strong, healthy bulbs. There is a difference in each bulb to a certain extent, as to age, size, freshness and degree of maturity. This explains why it is so difficult to secure uniform blooming at a definite time. The dates of potting which give satisfactory results one year may give unsatisfactory results the following season. What the florist does, therefore, is to start his bulbs early and then grow them by varying the temperature to get the crop when needed. Easter lily bulbs should be kept cool until well rooted; then they may be brought into heat for flowering. Secure the bulbs as early as possible and plant immediately. Do not let them become dry and shriveled, as much of their vigor will be lost. There are several commercial grades, measured by the average circumference in inches. The 7 to 9 is usually the most serviceable and economical for the commercial florist.

Planting Important.

Get the soil ready in time, so that the bulbs can be planted at once upon being received. Use the soil as light as possible, should it be rather heavy, and set the bulbs on a cushion of sand. With heavy soil mix plenty of well decayed manure. It cannot be mentioned too often that the soil should be light and rather fibrous. Do not forget the drainage in your pot and plant your bulbs firmly; that is, press the soil well around the pot and leave the soil more loose on top of the bulb. Good planting is half of the growing. Many florists start the bulbs in 4-inch pots and transfer them, when growth has begun, into pots in which they are to bloom. Others plant the bulbs in pots in which they are to bloom, fill them two-thirds with soil, leave them in that stage until the bulbs make four to five inches of growth, and then fill the pots with soil. Often one gives a top-dressing, half manure and half soil, which is not advisable, particularly if it is fresh manure.

If one grows lilies in large quantities, both of these methods of planting take too much time and labor. Always do your work the quickest, shortest and best way. Plant the bulbs in pots in which they are to bloom, fill them with soil, except allowance for water space, and then give a thorough watering. After this the bulbs commence to swell. Then keep them on the dry side; this will help the bulbs to make roots sooner and get better root action. By so doing, the bulbs will make top and bottom roots at the same time. As soon as growth begins, give water as you see fit. If possible, have a house ready where the pots can be set right from the beginning on the benches. If this cannot be done, place them under benches in the same house where they are intended to be grown, as it will save time.

May Regulate Growth.

Bulbs planted the first part of November, started with a temperature of 50 degrees, increased slowly by the middle of December to 60 degrees, should have made good roots and a little top growth by that time. From then on the temperature may be increased to assure blooming for Easter. Give lilies a house with plenty of light and air and good bench room. Turn the plants around quite often, especially when there is more than one bulb in a pot, so they may become shaped nicely.

Stake the plants when they are about two feet high. If some flowers begin to open too soon, remove them to a cooler house which is a little shaded, where they may be retarded as much as two weeks. If others are too late, give them more heat. They will stand as much as 80 degrees. Then syringe freely. Keep down the aphids by fumigating with nicotine, so that your stock will always be clean.

TWO NEW PINK MUMS.

A good pink chrysanthemum which would bloom for Thanksgiving has long been desired by the trade. The possibility of sale for such a variety has struck the minds of a good many florists. With that in mind, Baur & Steinkamp, of Indianapolis, Ind., have worked up a stock of their new variety, Thanksgiving Pink, which they believe fills the long-felt want to perfection. They have also a pink, which will be disseminated at the same time, which blooms about November 1. Some idea of the appearance of the new varieties may be obtained from the accompanying illustrations. They are named Glorious and Thanksgiving Pink.

The former is a pleasing shade of medium pink, which holds its color unusually well. The flower is of large commercial size. The stem holds the bloom erect and is clothed with foliage of medium size. This variety will grow four feet in height if planted in June and blooms about November 1.

Thanksgiving Pink is an even shade of bright pink, which does not bleach in strong sunlight, giving it added value if it is held for late cutting. The flower is of good commercial size, with reflex petals. The bloom is, however, quite full, giving solidity equal to the incurved type. It handles and ships easily, making it an ideal Thanksgiving variety. The stem is rigid and is clothed with abundant foliage. This variety also grows four feet from a June planting and blooms the last half of November.

DRIED CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

I am sending you specimens of my chrysanthemums, which have dried up during the last month so that the blooms are imperfect, although the roots seem strong. What is the cause?

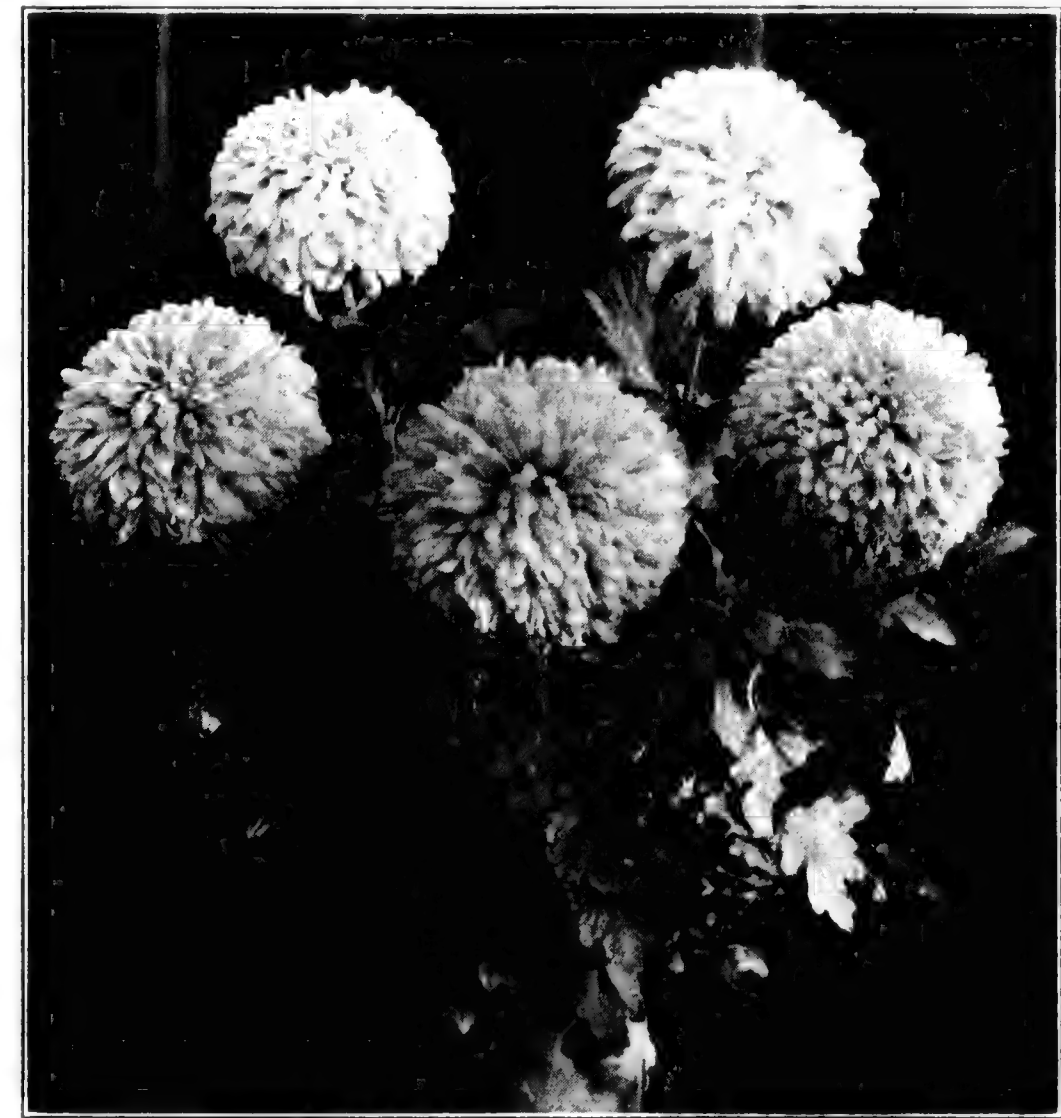

E. S. P.—Pa.

It is difficult to determine the cause of the drying up from the plants received, since they arrived in a shriveled state. A deficiency of moisture, borers in the stems and several other causes might be responsible, but the most probable cause is a lack of moisture.

VINCENT'S NEW DAHLIA.

R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., White Marsh, Md., is preparing to disseminate the new dahlia, originated there, named for the late Patrick O'Mara. The variety received the silver medal of the Society of American Florists, 1920; gold medal of the American Dahlia Society, 1920; medal of the Toronto Horticultural Society, 1920, and the American Dahlia Society's certificate of merit, 1920. The American Dahlia Society's certificate was awarded for the test at the trial grounds at the Connecticut State Agricultural College, at Storrs, Conn. Fully developed flowers are eight inches in diameter, borne on long, erect stems, firmly set at right angles, close to the stems. In character it resembles King of the Autumn, which is one of its parents. The color is an unusually soft and pleasing shade of orange buff, slightly tinged with Neyron rose. The variety possesses unusual keeping qualities, which are expected to make it of exceptional commercial value.

DAHLIAS FOR CUTTING.

I should like to know the name of the dahlias in the various classes best suited for cut flower purposes. There is such a vast difference in size, texture, length and strength of stem, keeping qualities, etc., that I believe a list made by someone who knows and is unbiased would be a great service. H. S. M.—Okla.

No two lists of dahlias for cutting would be the same. I do not pretend to be a dahlia fancier and am not selling any commercially; therefore, this list of moderate-priced good sorts is not given because I have any plants of the sorts named for sale.

scarlet; Delice, beautiful pink; Flamingo, rose pink; Hortulanus Witte, pure white; Mme. Van den Dael, shell pink.

Peony-flowered—Bertha von Suttner, salmon pink; Geisha, scarlet and gold; Queen Wilhelmina, pure white; John Green, scarlet; Yellow King, clear yellow.

Double—Grand Duke Alexis, white, tinted lavender; Dreer's White, pure white; Dreer's Yellow, clear yellow; Souvenir de Gustav Doazon, scarlet; A. D. Livoni, pink.

Single—Pink Century, shell pink; White Century, pure white; Golden Century, primrose; Scarlet Century, clear scarlet. C. W.

PROTECTING PANSY PLANTS.

I should like to know the best way to protect pansy plants through the winter. I have four beds about 5x60 feet.

J. W. N.—Pa.

Wait until the ground is frozen hard; then give the pansy beds a mulch of straw, hay or leaves, just enough to cover the plants. The mulching is not to be given with the idea of keeping the plants warm, but rather to keep the frost in and prevent the heaving which follows sudden thaws and is disastrous to unmulched plants. Lay some light boards, cornstalks or brush on the leaves to prevent the mulch from being blown away. A light scattering of loam or old manure will answer the same purpose.

C. W.

FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

CARE OF MUSHROOMS.

I should like to know the best method of growing mushrooms. I have a new house and in the cellar I have made a place for mushrooms, 8x20 feet. The cellar is surrounded by a cement wall and is heated by steam pipes.

C. J. R.—N. Y.

To secure good mushroom crops you need a good supply of fresh horse manure. Shake out all the rough straw; stack it under cover, in an open shed if possible, and turn it over a few times until rank heat has passed; moisten it if any dry spots appear. Sometimes one-third loam is added to the manure and this helps to prevent too violent heating and assists in retaining heat when the bed is made up. To be in the right condition to make up into a bed, the manure should be moist enough to squeeze together without exuding water.

In making up beds, spread a layer at a time and tramp or pound it as hard as possible; keep adding more layers and firming thoroughly. An average depth of from eight to nine inches gives splendid results and the harder your bed is pounded the better it will retain heat and produce mushrooms. I like to spawn the bed at a temperature of from 85 to 90 degrees; place a thermometer in the bed to ascertain the heat. Pure Culture spawn produces mushrooms more quickly than English Milltrack, but the latter is preferred as a rule in the high-grade restaurants and hotels. Break the spawn into pieces the size of an English walnut and plant the pieces twelve to fourteen inches apart each way and two inches deep. In eight or ten days after spawning, spread a layer of two inches of loam over the beds and firm well. If your heat dries the surface at all, it is an advantage to spread fine hay, straw or excelsior as a mulch, until the mushrooms appear, which should be in from five to seven weeks, sometimes earlier. A temperature of 55 to 58 degrees and a moist-feeling atmosphere suit mushrooms.

When watering must be done, and it is only a necessary evil, give it a temperature of 100 degrees; then spread some mulch over the bed to hold the heat in. Mushroom culture is somewhat of a lottery, but if your spawn and manure are good, there is no reason why you cannot succeed.

TOMATOES UNDER GLASS.

Will you please give me the best method of growing tomatoes? I have a new house and should like to know if artificial fertilization is advisable and, if so, what is the proper method of fertilizing.

C. J. R.—N. Y.

Tomatoes make a profitable greenhouse crop, provided suitable varieties are grown, suitable temperatures and cultural conditions are given and a convenient market will care for the crop. As a beginner, it would not be advisable for you to plant a crop for winter fruiting; it might not return profit. But for a spring and early summer crop tomaatoes will pay well. Sow the seeds any time before January. Good varieties are Comet, Victory, John Baer and Lister's Prolific Improved. These are standard forcing varieties. That does not mean they will not succeed outdoors, but they are splendid forcers.

Transplant the little seedlings into flats and later pot them singly before planting out. Raised benches are best for spring, solid beds for summer crops. Such a soil as will grow lettuce, carnations or violets will suit tomatoes. Set the plants out sixteen to eighteen inches apart in the rows and train them to a single stem, which means that all side shoots must be removed as they appear. Pinch out the tops after the bunches have set.

Fertilization is necessary for winter, but not after April 1. It can be effected by shaking the vines about noon on clear, sunny days. This scatters the pollen. A camel's-hair brush, a piece of cotton wool on a stick or a rabbit's foot may be used to touch the open flowers and cause impregnation.

A suitable temperature for tomatoes is 58 to 60 degrees at night. They thrive better in a dry atmosphere. Do not syringe overhead at any time. Mulch when the fruit is well set, to prevent the soil from drying out.

It might be well to plant lettuce to follow the tomatoes. Two crops of lettuce could be grown before it would be necessary to plant the tomatoes again. Lettuce can be grown in a temperature much cooler than is needed for tomaatoes, 45 to 48 degrees at night being suitable. They would prove a more certain crop than tomatoes, as well.

REMEDY FOR CLUB ROOT.

What is the name of the root scale or gall which has apparently affected the tomato plant I have sent you? I have had trouble with this root disease before, and two years ago I changed my soil for that reason. The soil is now one-third horse manure, with 100 pounds of lime added. I have three beds, each 5x60 feet. Those parts of the soil where I did not use lime were hardly productive at all. All the plants I have inspected are infected the same as the one I have sent you and the crop is generally poor. What remedy would you advise?

A. M.—La.

The roots of the tomato plant were covered with club root, nematodes or root gall. This is a serious disease and often attacks tomatoes under glass. While lime counteracts to some extent the effects of club root, it cannot be regarded as a cure, although that it helps is unquestioned. Thorough steam sterilization of your beds before planting is the most effective of all remedies, and if this is done it is not necessary to throw out your soil. I know growers who have solid beds and have grown crops of tomatoes, cucumbers, violets, sweet peas and mums and have not changed their soil for a dozen years. They produce magnificent crops, but, of course, they sterilize and manure freely. Shutting off and baking with the sun may help a little and soaking the soil with a solution of formaldehyde is also good, but I would strongly advise steam sterilization, if you want a complete cure. The expense will easily be recouped by increased crops. C. W.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Ideal Thanksgiving weather found the Albany florists fairly rushed with business, again demonstrating the wisdom of ordering ahead as far as is possible and the absolute necessity of making firm prices to allow the trade in the rural towns to make the unavoidable eleventh-hour call. "Too late," replied Manager Tom Tracey, of the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, Albany, N. Y., in reply to a long-distance phone call for a shipment of choice Major Bonnaffons. "Our best mums are all bespoken by our home trade."

"You may quote us," said Mrs. Henry Eberhardt, of the Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y., "as enjoying the best business ever and lamenting the scarcity of good chrysanthemums, which seem to be the Thanksgiving flowers with the majority of our patrons."

E. V. B. Felthousen, Schenectady, N. Y., furnished the bulk of the finest chrysanthemums seen in the Electric City.

Manager Grupe, of the floral department of the Carl Co., Schenectady, N. Y., had a rush of funeral work for several days previous to the holiday and used up stock unsalable otherwise.

John C. Hatcher, Schenectady, N. Y., made a good showing from the Hoffmans greenhouses.

Mohawk Greenhouses, Schenectady, N. Y., made a heavy run on Boston ferns by means of display advertisements several days before Thanksgiving, which caused Manager Matthews to enjoy turkey on Thanksgiving day with unusual relish.

Fred Goldring, Slingerlands, N. Y., was cleaned out of all salable stock early and is glad of space to accommodate stock being prepared for the next big day, Christmas.

Butler & Ullman, Northampton, Mass., had the first real test of the new conditions at Thanksgiving, when the store was arranged as a show house in front. Passing through the choice stock, to the right is the workroom, opposite is the office, beyond to the right is the display room of baskets and vases, while opposite is the "green" room, storage and shipping department. An airy basement completes this model retail establishment, supported by and supplied with the quality of stock appreciated by an educated clientele, primary results of several seasons' hard work by the owners, who are now reaping their reward. W. M.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are in their prime now. Prices are high, and retailers complain that such prices kill trade. Customers blame the retailers for the high prices, not knowing that they have to pay twice as much at wholesale as the flowers cost formerly at retail. Most retailers formerly had customers who came regularly once, twice or three times a week to buy 50 cents or $1 worth of flowers. In the aggregate this trade amounted to considerable. Now it has disappeared. Florists can give practically nothing for these sums. Paper Whites are coming into the market in large quantities.

Various Notes.

Fred P. Wolfinger reports that while business is good, there is not the life to it that there should be. He attributes this in part to the fact that high prices of flowers have driven away a considerable part of the transient cut flower trade.

Henry A. Strobell reports a good Thanksgiving trade. R. B. M.

DULUTH, MINN.

The Market.

Stock of all kinds was plentiful for Thanksgiving day and almost everything sold well. Chrysanthemums of fine quality were the best sellers. Enguehard, Rager, Marigold, Wells' Late Pink and Christmas Gold were the chief varieties. Pompons in white, yellow and pink sold well, also white and yellow Mensa. Paper Whites have made their appearance, but as yet there is little or no call for them. There are a few good sweet peas coming in, also calendulas and bouvardia. Violets and orchids were useful for corsage work.

Various Notes.

O. J. Olson, of Holm & Olson, St. Paul, Minn., was a visitor in Duluth last week, on his return from a hunting trip.

The staff of the Duluth Floral Co. gave a surprise party in honor of Mrs. J. E. Stapleton Sunday night, November 28. Supper was served for twenty-one. During the evening there were music, cards and dancing.

Southern smilax and pink and white mums were used by J. J. LeBorion for the Bridgeman wedding, which was an elaborate event.

The Quality Flower Shop reports that Thanksgiving day business was much better than last year. J. E. S.

TORONTO, ONT.

Business last week was comparatively quiet. There has been a fair amount of design work, and some of the florists have been having a number of decorations. These are for dances, receptions, teas, etc. There have been a great number of coming-out parties and these have resulted in many orders for flowers

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

OVE GNATT.

THOUGH not actually a florist, Ove Gnatt has become as well known to the trade as if he were, for the prepared foliages from his factory at Laporte, Ind., take his name all over the country. Ove Gnatt expects to spend Christmas in his native land. The president of the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind., accompanied by his family, will leave December 9 for Europe. He plans to go directly to Denmark and will spend Christmas in Copenhagen, where he was born in 1885. Mr. Gnatt's trip will include business as well as pleasure. Besides the Scandinavian countries, he will visit France, Belgium and Italy in search of new ideas for use in his business. Mr. Gnatt and his family will return in about three months.

both for delivery in the city and by express or telegraph. The debutantes have been showered with flowers.

Although retail business seems small, there is no surplus of stock.

A recent visit to several of the greenhouses showed the stock coming on well for Christmas. There will be an abundance. It looks like the proper time for another coöperative advertising campaign. A number of the retailers are in favor of it for the good of the industry, and the coöperation of the growers in advertising schemes was manifested by the manner in which they contributed to the Mothers' day fund.

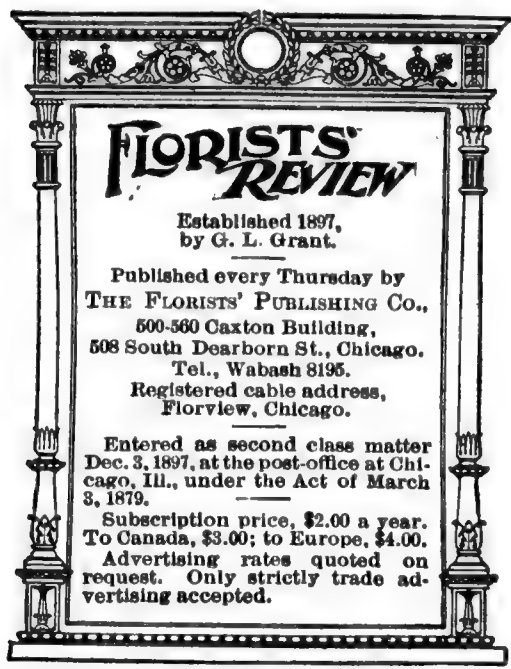

Tariff matters concerning florists will come before the tariff commission soon, and it is hoped that the plants not obtainable in Canada will be put on the free list. A committee, with Major Cannon, of Hamilton, Ont., as chairman, has tabulated the information and will present it when the commission meets at Hamilton. J. J. H.

Dayton, O.—To insure a fuel supply for his greenhouses, Rolf Zetlitz purchased a coal mine at Buchtel, O., last July. The increase in production of late has supplied Mr. Zetlitz with more than he needs, so that he is offering to other florists eight or ten cars a week of this coal, which comes from the Nelsonville No. 6 vein, serving them from the Hocking valley fields.

Marquette, Mich.—Alphonse Peters donated flowers to accompany each Thanksgiving basket to needy families, through the Visiting Nurses' Association, receiving appreciative remarks from many patrons for the act, which was given publicity in the local newspaper. Thanksgiving business was excellent, and Mr. Peters looks forward to a splendid Christmas.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

Now for a big Christmas.

THERE will be plenty of valley for the wedding bouquets next June.

NEVER mail currency. Send checks, so that if the letter is lost the money still will be safe.

THIS is the month when a bright window gets attention. Are you using this means of advertising your flowers?

"LET us beautify your sun parlor," reads a sign over a live florist's store. Perhaps a corner of your shop could be fitted up to show patrons how.

RETAILERS who have long-term leases expiring next May are getting a jolt from the landlords. Make short-term leases now. Conditions will change within the next three years.

WHAT does the postoffice do with the letters that never arrive? In the good old days there were no such letters, but now the complaints are numerous and, worst of all, increasing.

THERE is too much soil adhering to some of this season's imports of Manetti stocks to suit the hair-splitters employed by the F. H. B. They suggest condemning and destroying whole shipments because not thoroughly manicured.

THE aggregate production of soft coal during the week of November 13 was 12,091,000 tons, which was larger than for any corresponding week of the last four years, according to statistics compiled by the geological survey. The rate of output was cut considerably by the Armistice day celebration. The week would probably have set a new record except for the holiday in many states.

WINDOW-GLASS factories have pretty much all shut up shop for the time being. There are various reports as to the reason. Ostensibly they are closed because of failure of the supply of natural gas. Another report is that the suspension of activities is planned to reduce the cost of labor, while still another source of information avers that if the factories operated more than a few months a year they would turn out so much glass it could not be sold. In the meantime the supply is small, deliveries slow and prices high, particularly of greenhouse sizes.

Do the vases in your refrigerator display case add to the appearance of your flowers? The extra expense of suitable ware is an item soon repaid.

THE florist who does not take an inventory at least once, and preferably twice, a year, not only lacks intimate knowledge of his business, but courts trouble in times when business is not the best.

BASED on the prices per pound of thirty-one articles used for food, Bradstreet's weekly index number for last week was $3.80, in comparison with $3.99 the week before and $5.10 for the corresponding week a year ago, denoting more than a twenty-five per cent decrease in the last year. A dollar will now buy some flowers as well as some food.

LOCATIONS in the congested parts of cities are not necessarily the most desirable for flower stores. Where traffic is too dense people are likely to be hurried past, without the opportunity of admiring, entering or even seeing the florist's shop. In such a place the rental value is above the actual sales value of the location. Those who have tried both kinds know they do a better-class and more profitable business, perhaps by a little different methods, at the stand just outside the zone of greatest traffic congestion.

BIGGER THAN EVER.

From every city in the country the reports of Thanksgiving business are enthusiastically good. Those who entertained some misgivings as to the increase of sales that this holiday would bring found their doubts unfounded, and those who made ready for excellent business reaped the benefit of their preparations. The nature of the business is not reported uniformly; some florists state that their best stock went first, a good many people preferring a few special blooms to a larger number of lower grade, while others experienced a strong demand for moderately priced flowers. The general condition Thursday night seemed, however, to be the same—full cash drawers and empty ice-boxes.

Chrysanthemums, in many markets, were all too few, though in a few localities they were abundant. Roses likewise were not overplentiful. The scarcity of the latter is due, perhaps, to growers' endeavoring to hold them back till the mums are out of the way. Other stock served to supply the public's requirements, though the general preference was for mums. Speaking generally, prices were not high, though in most cases good. This fact, no doubt, had its part in accounting for the day's large business. Retailers stocked up who would have bought more warily at higher figures. The strong markets the latter part of the week indicated such retailers moved their supply.

CHRISTMAS NEXT.

The success of Thanksgiving encourages retailers to prepare for a big Christmas business. Some florists were doubtful as to the effect which the general business quiet would have upon sales for the feast day; indeed, they were inclined to be pessimistic. The volume of sales actually registered, however, served as a reassuring barometer, indicating that Christmas, too, would be as big a flower day as of yore. Uncertainty is felt as to whether the amount of stock, in plants or cut flowers, which will be offered the public at this yuletide will be as large as that available last year. Opinion seems general that it will not. This fact will call for larger and more varied preparations to satisfy the holiday demand, and the retailer will regret business turned away if he fails to make adequate provision for excellent business. In some mercantile lines the public is averse to spending much before the holidays because they foresee bargains during the sales that follow, especially since newspaper stories tell of extra efforts to maintain retail price levels until Christmas is past. But flowers are not in that category. The Christmas plant or basket cannot be presented a week later. Florists will have an excellent holiday business at Christmas time.

GET ORDERS IN EARLY.

Although railroad transportation now is better than it has been for a long while and express service is improving, orders will be placed for the Christmas and New Year's holidays which will be received late. The fault for all of them will not lie with the carriers.

It is a habit that is not confined to the florists' trade to postpone placing orders for even staple supplies until the last minute and then to blame everybody but oneself if they arrive late. There are times, of course, when it is necessary to send rush orders, even though careful foresight has been employed. But many last-minute orders might just as well have been sent sooner, to the greater comfort and satisfaction of all concerned.

Aside from flowers, almost everything in a flower store can be ordered now as well as next week. There is little reason for postponement, usually none but procrastination. It is well to make count now of the supplies needed—every florist can judge as well now as later, and a liberal supply will be used up after if not at the holidays, anyway—and send your orders in early. Then you will have insured yourself an adequate stock, regardless of whether transportation is back to pre-war standards or not.

A PRIORI.

Some things are easily reasoned out, without the benefit of experience. For instance:

I receive great pleasure and benefit from my subscription to The Review.—Wm. Herdman, Tacoma, Wash., November 9, 1920.
Enclosed find $2; please renew; we wouldn't want to get along without The Review.—Hiram J. New, Manchester, Ia., November 22, 1920.

Given such letters as these, an apriorist would reason that The Review, standing so highly with those who buy it to read, must be a splendid advertising medium. He would regard as to be expected, such letters as these:

The plants are sold; the last check we needed came in today. We are well satisfied with the results and won't forget The Review when we have something more to sell.—Alphonse Peters, Marquette, Mich., November 16, 1920.

Please run this ad until forbid, but if results are as in the past shall need only two or three insertions.—T. H. Fuller, Battle Creek, Mich., November 16, 1920.

Stop that 6-line Classified ad at once; it is going to get me into trouble. My stock is almost sold out; it is surprising the amount of business brought to florists by those little liners.—John H. Griscel, Dayton, O., November 22, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Henry C. Woltemate.

Henry C. Woltemate, whose sudden death was reported in last week's Review, was one of the oldest florists in Philadelphia. With his two brothers, Albert and William, he was brought up in his father's floral establishment, on Germantown avenue near Queen lane. This was fifty years ago, when Woltemate's greenhouses and Woltemate's store were better known to florists and to flower lovers than any other place in all Germantown.

Henry C. Woltemate branched out for himself in 1879, when he was 27 years of age. He built the first of his present range of greenhouses on Mount Airy avenue, near the Philadelphia & Reading railway. The name of Woltemate continued in the floral world of Germantown for many years more, the old place being conducted by Woltemate Bros. and the new place by Henry C. Woltemate.

Henry C. Woltemate conducted his florists' business successfully for forty-one years. He retired September 1, 1920. He grew specialties for the retail stores, for the cemeteries and for his retail customers. His stock was carefully grown and ranked high in cut flowers and in plants. Mr. Woltemate's affairs were so well managed that for thirty years he has enjoyed an outing at Keene Valley, in the Adirondack mountains, each summer. Some years ago he purchased the greenhouses that were built by Thomas Butler, at Wyndmoor, for his son Gilbert. His son, Albert W., succeeded him in business early last fall.

Henry C. Woltemate was a courteous gentleman, a man of sterling integrity, who will be sadly missed by his friends. He was 68 years of age.

Mr. Woltemate is survived by a widow, four sons and two daughters. The funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon, November 24. The interment was at Ivy Hill. Phil.

The Market.

With the passing of Thanksgiving and the usual holiday rush for stock, the market is back to normal again. Everybody reports banner sales for the fall holiday, but there was one fault, common to all holidays—a scarcity of certain varieties of stock. Roses and yellow mums were hard to obtain. White mums, white carnations and Paper White narcissi did not move as well as other stock.

This Thanksgiving was the first in several years that such a number of large mums were to be had. It seems the growers only grew the larger ones and no mediums at all. Fortunately there was a good stock of pompons, and this relieved the strain.

Some good California violets are arriving and are filling in nicely, as the home-grown ones are quite inferior, owing to the unseasonable weather. Lilies, both Easter and calla, are arriving in greater abundance and are selling readily at $15 to $20 per hundred. Mums ranged in price from $3 to $6 per dozen. Carnations were cleaning up well at $6 per hundred. Snapdragons are at $8 to $10 per hundred. Bexwood is selling, because of the season, at $25 per hundred pounds.

Various Notes.

H. W. Sheppard has booked a considerable number of debutante and wedding decorations and has just received a shipment of new supplies to be used for that purpose. He reports a good Thanksgiving trade.

The retailers and wholesalers have organized two bowling teams and intend to stage a series of games. The committee in charge is composed of one member of each of the teams. E. Bossemeyer, of C. E. Critchell, represents the wholesalers, and George Kessen, of H. W. Sheppard, represents the retailers. The personnel of the teams is as follows: Wholesalers: E. Bossemeyer, Charles Phipps, Frank Friedman, Ray Murphy, John Zimmer, E. Buschle, E. Cavannaugh, Alex Ostendorp, George Shoeplinger and Charles Garvey; retailers: H. W. Sheppard, George Meyers, Jr., Arthur Becker, Michael Hanks, Charles Lantry, Ray Eck, Benjamin George, Henry Klunder, George Kessen and Stuart Jones.

C. E. Critchell is receiving some excellent yellow and white Chadwick from O. B. Murphy, of Price Hill.

Miss Betty Ferdinandsen, of H. W. Sheppard, spent the week-end with her mother at Champaign, Ill. Her mother has been ill for some time.

The William Murphy Co. has been receiving some excellent Columbia and Madame Butterfly roses and also some good Soleil d'Or narcissi.

E. G. Gillett boasts of having the largest Helen Fricke mums that have ever come into Cincinnati, and they certainly are immense specimens.

P. J. Olinger is now cutting some fine stevia.

Charles Barnaby, Columbus, Ind., spent a week-end with his brother-in-law, H. W. Sheppard. Mr. Barnaby reports business brisk at Columbus.

Karl Heiser, Hamilton, O., was in town buying supplies for his winter business.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rodgers motored down from Dayton, O., last week.

Joe Beran reports considerable funeral business last week, and his activity in the market bears his statement out. G. H. K.

The Market.

Thanksgiving week was one of the most unusual experiences in this market thus far this season. Starting with November 22, Monday was a most active day; Tuesday the bottom fell out, no one knows why; Wednesday the city buyers bought everything in sight if they couldicker over the price, but passed up the stock held at firm figures; Thursday's half session was brisk; Friday shipping orders poured in and sales went well ahead of the same day a year ago; Saturday there was a clean-up except for a few mums and pompons. On the whole, sales for most of the houses footed up a slightly better total than for the same week last year. A succession of dark days, some of them quite cold, cut down the supply, so that the quantity of stock handled was less than last year, which indicates that, on the whole, prices must have averaged better than they did for Thanksgiving week in 1919. Also, the way the retailers bought after Thanksgiving shows they must have cleaned up.

The present week started well. The supply shows the usual seasonable shrinkage, and there is every indication of continuous good business. There will be more late mums and pompons than in any previous year, but the general crop is off, throwing a large part of the demand back onto roses and carnations.

Rose crops are at about the lightest of the season. Not only has the dark weather had its effect, but those growers who cropped their houses are making preparations for Christmas and have little to cut at present. Of course, with the supply as large as it always is in this market, there are quantities of roses, but there have been more heretofore this fall and there will be more again as soon as the Christmas crop gets under way. There is a pronounced improvement in the demand for red roses, which never are in much request until cold weather comes. The call for white also has been improved by the reduction in the supply of white mums.

Carnations are selling considerably lower than they did at this date last year. The supply is larger, but not so much larger as many expected. As soon as white pompons are really out of the way there will be nothing but the white carnations to use in funeral work. The price for Thanksgiving proved not to be as good as the growers expected, but it is rising now. Easter lilies, too, have benefited by the reduction in the supply of chrysanthemums. They now are the largest and showiest flowers to be had for wedding decorations and funeral work. Callas also benefit by the latter demand.

Darker weather has reduced the supply of sweet peas and the price has stiffened. The market for peas is better than it would have been had the usual supplies of violets been forthcoming. There are practically no locally grown singles and the market in the east is good enough to hold there nearly

There is little change in the situation regarding other flowers. Valley and catleyas stand as they were, prices stiffening if anything. There are increased supplies of Paper Whites, with smaller quantities of Soleil d'Or.

Uncle Sam Looks Us Up.

One day last week the market was visited by a representative of the United States government's investigation of the cost of living. Two of the larger cut flower houses were interrogated. The investigator wanted to learn how the business is conducted and how wholesale and retail prices compare with costs of production. He was told that wholesale prices now are, on the whole, about the same as a year ago and that cost of production has increased sharply, with the result that the grow-and there are seasons of the year during which the average price of the whole cut is below cost of production. Retail prices, it was explained, do not depend entirely on the cost of the flowers, but are influenced by the place, time, accessories and skill with which they are used.

Club to Have Show.

At the Hotel Randolph December 9 the Florists' Club will hold its annual novelty show. Exhibits of the newer carnations and chrysanthemums have been promised by Baur & Steinkamp, Indianapolis, and Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich. Numerous other growers are expected to take this opportunity to show the trade what they are doing and an interesting exhibition is assured. Any exhibitor who does not accompany his flowers may send them to Fred Lautenschlager, secretary Chicago Florists' Club, Randolph hotel, to arrive early December 9, and they will be properly staged. It is the club's election night, but there is no contest this year.

Mr. Chronis, Restaurateur.

Those who have missed Andrew Chronis from his accustomed place in the store of the Alpha Floral Co., and on the market, may not know that a short time ago he acquired an interest in the Raklios chain of twelve restaurants, becoming secretary of the corporation, and that he now devotes most of his time to its affairs, making his headquarters at the commissary on Ohio street.

Mr. Chronis says that, while he is well pleased with his new affairs, a brief experience of the restaurant business was sufficient to show him that success in this, as in the florists' trade, means that a great deal of hard work is to be done. He retains his florist interests, in the Alpha Floral Co., Johnson & Chronis and at the Fair. The Alpha management, formerly given his personal attention, has been placed in the hands of a nephew, James Moller, who has been associated with the Chronis enterprises for fifteen years.

Various Notes.

The retail florists in the loop favor the proposal to prohibit parking of automobiles downtown, except in Grant park. In the first place, it will make it possible for drivers to deposit passengers at the doors of the flower stores. In the second place, if the cars are left in Grant park large numbers of people will walk, from and to them, past the windows of Lange, Bohannon, Mangel, Fleischman, Alpha and many others, as the flower stores nearly all are on the side streets east of State. Automobilists are not now easy to attract; either they move too fast or the traffic is too congested.

An interesting bit of information is that H. N. Bruns early last summer bought 2,000,000 German marks and placed the funds in the hands of his brother at Hamburg, with which to finance the production of lily of the valley pips. The first shipment of 500 cases reached Chicago about November 15 and the first forced spikes will be ready for St. Valentine's day. Up to that time cold storage stock of the previous year's crop is used.

Wietor's white pompon, the stock of which was acquired from H. W. Rie- man, Indianapolis, has made many friends during its first season on the market. E. Wienhoeber thinks it will become one of the widely grown standard varieties and that it will be fine for growing by the disbudding process many growers employ with Sunshine and the Doty varieties. It has splendid substance. N. J. Wietor has said his firm plans to plant several houses with it next season and to disseminate it after that.

Cold weather has retarded progress on the L. & B. house going up for the Weiss-Meyer Co., Maywood. The steel frame is all set, but the concrete work is slower now that the temperature is below freezing. Paul Weiss expects to plant it in January. The house is 70x400, the same in size as the two at Premier Rose Gardens, which will be duplicated at the latter place by next summer.

The Thanksgiving window of the Fleischman Floral Co., on Jackson boulevard, attracted the attention of the trade as well as the public. Many florists found time to take a look. The display was of baskets of yellow and bronze pompons, principally Mrs. Beu, combined with Seckel pears, Delicious apples and Belgian hothouse grapes. Not only were the color combinations in perfect harmony, but the arrangement was excellent.

Peter Reinberg, whose services to the public for many years have been invaluable, now is confronted with one of his most difficult tasks. The cost of the county government has risen as rapidly as have business costs and, as president of the county board, Mr. Reinberg faces the necessity of cutting expenses by millions of dollars or of raising that much new revenue.

Mangel expects to open his new store in the Drake hotel about December 15. The hotel started to do business Thanksgiving day. The space to be occupied by the flower store was not quite ready, but the equipment is now being installed. C. H. Bookedis, formerly in business as the Claypool Hotel Florist at Indianapolis, has been engaged as manager of the new store.

William Palmer, who has just opened for business in the Avenue State Bank building in Oak Park, has a neatly equipped store. The fixtures were supplied by the Union Refrigerator Co., with which Frank J. Rieux now is associated.

The W. W. Barnard Co. has received its first carload of Christmas trees for the approaching holiday.

Thanksgiving eve the Briggs Floral Co., at Sheridan road and Broadway, stocked up heavily on the smaller-sized mums and pompons. One vase of the latter remained when the holiday was over, even the windows being bare of blooms.

There are few Chicago flower stores at which window decoration is given as much attention as by C. A. Samuelson, Frank Schramm has visited a number of rose growers to get a line on the outlook for winter supply and, especially,

As to Christmas, Mr. Schramm says he found two large growers with big cuts in sight, but that other places visited are pretty well cut down and will not be in heavy crop again in 1920.

Reports gathered from all parts of the city indicate that Thanksgiving business this year was greater than in any previous year. The larger stores say it was a regular clean-up and that all flowers sold well, with the mum a leader, as usual. The St. Louis florists

There was a large supply of chrysanthemums, and prices were somewhat higher than in other years. Show stock, such as lilies, snapdragons, Paper Whites, calendulas and daisies, was in fair supply and cleaned up each day during the holiday week. So far this season, orchids have been scarce.

Greens cleaned up and the demand equaled the supply in adiantum, plumosus, Sprenger and smilax. The supply of boxwood and flat ferns was sufficient to meet orders.

The plant trade was only moderate. Chrysanthemums, peppers, cyclamens and begonias were in plenty. As Thanksgiving is a cut flower day, these had to suffer somewhat in demand.

Friday and Saturday following Thanksgiving were not so busy with the retailers, although business was reported excellent in all lines, as hospital tag days made good calls for cut stock.

What They Say About Thanksgiving.

The George Waldbart Floral Co., M. S. Newman and the Ayres Floral Co., at Grand avenue and Olive street, report an excellent Thanksgiving trade, with sales exceeding those of any previous Thanksgiving. In the west end, the leading establishments, Fred C. Weber, Joseph Witek, F. H. Weber and Sanders Nursery Co., state business was much greater than last year and included many telegraph orders. Ostertag Bros. and the C. Young & Sons Co. report business as beyond expectations.

The downtown establishments of Grimm & Gorly, Mullanphy Florists and the Acme Flower Shop say the demand for cut stock was greater than ever for Thanksgiving.

In the south end the demand was their first Thanksgiving and are more than pleased with the business.

In the north end, Mullanphy Florists, Brix Floral Co., Koenig Floral Co., Fred H. Meinhardt and John Nyflot also report increased business over last year.

Mullanphy Florists are moving into their new quarters this week. The new location is at the corner of Eighth and St. Charles streets, one block from the old store. It will be fitted up with handsome fixtures. Large show windows face Eighth street.

The St. Louis district branch of the National Flower Growers' Association has been much discussed among the growers since its organization. The executive committee of the new organization will hold its first meeting December 14 at publicity headquarters, 1316 Pine street, the office of the secretary.

The Saturday and Sunday hospital fund collection days, November 27 and 28, created a considerable demand for flowers to decorate the booths at the various leading hotels and bank buildings. In one booth was a sign reading: "You say it with a Tag and we will 'Say It with Flowers,'" and each contributor was handed a flower.

The St. Louis Lady Florists' Home Circle will be entertained December 8 by Mrs. F. W. Bruenig at her home, on Mississippi avenue.

The new quarters of the Foster Floral Co. were not completed in time for its announced opening Thanksgiving, and the opening was held December 1. The new store has an attractive appearance.

The mum show staged at the Missouri Botanical Garden continued to draw large crowds. November 21 was the banner day, when 20,000 visited the show. The exhibition closed November 30, and a show of Christmas plants is now being staged.

The Washington avenue store of Grimm & Gorly was a regular mum show during Thanksgiving week and attracted large crowds daily. The big force of salesmen was kept busy. Frank X. Gorly said this was the greatest Thanksgiving business he had ever had.

The Market.

Thanksgiving week, November 20 to 27, was satisfactory in the cut flower market. The volume of business was equal to that of last year; in some cases it was better.

Chrysanthemums were the principal flowers. The quantity received was greater than that of the week before. There appeared to be enough for all orders. There was no surplus. The best brought 50 cents, others from that down to ordinary stock at 15 cents. There were said to be sales at higher figures. There were said to be sales at lower figures. The prices given are the standard market prices. There is comparatively little change in the varieties. This is not a year for experimenting with new introductions. The old standbys, as a rule, have done well, though here and there complaint is heard regarding quality. A good many Seidewitz were late.

Pompons, always popular at Thanksgiving, were more popular than ever. They were used in great number, in all the clear, rich colors. Quality and foliage were as important as in the large-flower class.

While there were enough Japanese chrysanthemums and pompons, there were not enough of the flowers that come next in point of popularity. More carnations could have been used to advantage. This was the more apparent because a good many carnations were short in stem. Mrs. C. W. Ward led. The wholesalers pushed the price of Ward above that of Benora, Supreme or Matchless, because they must or it will not be grown. Every buyer wants Ward and the wholesalers know that it cannot be produced at the price of some of the earlier and freer-flowering sorts.

Violets are so scarce that most of the growers ship only once a week. The mild, open fall has caused them to bloom themselves out. Another good crop is not looked for until after New Year's. The result was that violets reached $3 a hundred. The total receipts for them were trifling.

Beauties were offered at $75 to $100 for the specials. There is hardly any other grade now. This was moderate in view of last Thanksgiving, but there is no special demand for Beauties at Thanksgiving and the price was not maintained, the receipts being fairly heavy. Russell advanced to $30 and Columbia to $25. The demand was for the medium grade. Of these and the shorts many more could have been used.

Orchids touched $2 for the best catleyas. There were some nice Vanda cærulea and both kinds of cypripediums, the fancy yellow and the sober-hued insigne.

There were a few gardenias, the first white lilac and a really generous supply of valley, much in request for weddings, so popular at this season.

The Easter lily market is strong. Callas, bouvardia and mignonette are to be had in fair numbers. There are some excellent sweet peas. Paper White narcissi are not popular. Stevia serrata has come.

The Goose Bone.

The goose bone man called up on the telephone. He probably felt safer talking that way. He explained that, owing to the high price of turkeys, he had a goose for Thanksgiving. He wanted to talk about his goose bone. He said that he learned from the bone that we would have a mild, open winter followed by a cool, late spring. I told him that I supposed that if the crocuses bloomed outdoors before Easter, he would insist that the bone prophecy was right.

He said that he had not said that flowers would not bloom early outdoors, but that there would be late frosts and to be sure to write down the goose bone prophecy, as I was an unbeliever in goose bones and would try to discredit the wonderful exactness of their weather forecasts.

Thanksgiving Business.

In spite of rather unfavorable weather, rain falling steadily November 22 and 23, but relenting somewhat November 24, and despite the fact that business generally is not at its best, a good Thanksgiving business was done. There were no fancy prices and the gross volume of trade was probably below that of 1919. Nevertheless, there was a pretty good clean-up of flowers. Roses, owing to several sunless days, were even less abundant than expected and sold out easily at from $6 to $8 per hundred upward, with reds somewhat higher. Some fancy Hadley, Russell and Crusader practically equaled American Beauty prices, while the best grades of other hybrid teas made $25 to $30 per hundred. Carnations, strange to say, proved somewhat of a drug, and while the bulk cleaned out at $8 to $10, many were sold cheaper and some remained unsold. Violets were rather scarce at $2.50 to $3.

FRAT-M'S

Frat-Ms are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-Ms a trial, you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address

Sweet peas sold well at $2 to $4, and pansies sold well. Paper Whites were abundant and averaged $5. Stevia appeared on a number of stands and sold well. were offered and sold well. Of pompons and singles there was an ample supply and some surplus.

Only small lots of marguerites and bachelor's buttons were seen. Valley was scarce and dear, but not much called for. A fair supply of cattleyas and other orchids was on hand. There was a good sale of such pot plants as chrysanthemums, cyclamens, begonias, solanums, ferns and Erica melanthera.

The Market.

Owing to the continued dark weather since Thanksgiving, flowers are shortening up materially. Roses practically retain holiday prices. Carnations make $6 and $8 and there is little recession in other flowers. Many chrysanthemums still come in, but single-stemmed stock is poor and most of the offerings are pompons and singles. As carnations and roses are both in short supply and mums practically finished, a strong market seems certain for some weeks ahead.

Among the Retailers.

At the store of Henry R. Comley, on Park street, are always to be found some varieties of plants not procurable at other stores. Among interesting ones noted this week were Sanchezia nobilis, Pilea muscosa, or artillery plant, sempervivums, saxifragas, Kalanchoe Mandarina, anthericums, selaginellas, panicums and philodendrons. Mr. Comley looks for some decline in the florists' trade as a result of existing conditions.

At John J. O'Brien's large and finely arranged store, at the corner of Charles and Beacon streets, a handsome lot of evergreens in tubs is arranged on the sidewalks and these find a ready sale. Cyclamens and bronze chrysanthemums sell specially well among flowering plants. In cut flowers I noted fine lots of orchids, gardenias and bouvardias in several colors. Business here took a decided spurt the day after election and has continued good. Edward Welch, brother of Patrick Welch, is now one of the staff here, as well as Frank P. Deery.

At the Park street store of Thomas Galvin, Inc., I noticed some cheering basket arrangements in one of the large show windows this week. One was of habrothamnus, now christened cestrum by botanists, and white bouvardia. Habrothamnus makes one of the finest conservatory climbers and is too seldom seen. One beautiful orchid basket contained yellow cypripediums, Vanda cærulea, cattleyas and oncidiums with a few gardenias to make it more "classy." Another pleasing combination consisted of lavender and white sweet peas, Hadley and Ophelia roses. A splendid lot of pot plants was offered for the Thanksgiving trade and business was good at both stores.

Wax Bros., at 44 Temple place, are now somewhat out of the main arteries, but Temple place contains some of Boston's most select stores and the class of buyers at the Wax store is of the best type. They furnished flowers and decorations November 20 for an interesting double wedding at Concord, Mass., the brides being Miss Phyllis Judge and Miss Bessie Eldridge Judge. Shower bouquets of white roses and valley with white chiffon were carried by the brides, Ward roses and yellow chiffon being furnished for the bridesmaids.

At Penn's, on Tremont street, a large show window devoted to plants and cut flowers of bronze chrysanthemums made a charming effect, with cibotium and nephrolepis ferns as a background. A good assortment of orchids and nerines was noted in another window. Wedding and funeral business has held up extremely well and an excellent Thanksgiving trade was enjoyed.

At the Houghton Gorney Flower Shop, below the Park street church, the baskets of choice fruits, decorated with such pompon chrysanthemums as Mrs. Wilcox and the old Julie Lagravery, are most artistic. Everything about the window arrangements and the interior make-up of this most attractive store shows the work of a true floral artist. Pansies in large bunches meet with a large and increasing sale here.

At the Beacon Florist's, on Beacon street, there is, to use a common phrase, "something doing all the time." The genial proprietor, John Eiseman, for many years decorator at Penn's, has a growing list of satisfied customers and has no complaint to make about business.

At Carbone's, Inc., new importations from Europe in glassware, pottery, marble, vases and other receptacles in immense variety are on exhibition and meet with a good sale. Choice flowering plants, many of them rarely seen elsewhere, are always to be found here and the arrangement of everything is most artistic and pleasing.

The Symphony Flower Shop, on Huntington avenue, opposite Horticultural hall, which opened last season, is doing well and has made many interior improvements of late. Even during summer a nice business was done, and Mr. Saunders is optimistic for the future.

Various Notes.

William H. Elliott arrived home from a nine months' California trip Thanksgiving day and looks remarkably well. He spent thirty days in the high Sierras, thirty days in the vicinity of the giant sequoias, and became an expert mountaineer, geologist and alpine botanist. He made his headquarters at Berkeley, his daughter being one of the staff of the University of California. He is a great admirer of the Golden State and its wonderful scenery and resources, but says he felt impelled to tell Californians, when they became too cheery, that the mountains, big trees and other great features were works of the Almighty and that, while they had built the most wonderful university in the world at Berkeley, they failed to give it proper financial support. It would take much space to do justice to Mr. Elliott's description of what he saw in California.

R. E. Wadsworth & Co., of Northboro, are bringing in a fine lot of a seedling carnation somewhat similar in color to Morning Glow, but much more double. They propose naming it Evelyn. Another seedling has some Prosperity blood in it and strongly suggests that one-time favorite. Matchless, Benora, Pink Delight and Nancy are other kinds grown. The last named is not liked because the flowers have a sleepy look, even when undeveloped. A fine assortment of single and pom-pom mums, all raised from seed and the best sorts retained, made a decided hit for Thanksgiving.

Since November 19 we have hardly seen the sun and have had considerable snow and rain, so that much of our shortage of precipitation has been made up. Nurserymen were specially glad to see abundant rains, which insure evergreens coming through the winter well.

Robert Hutcheon, of Stoughton, Mass., is retiring from the greenhouse business, in which he has been engaged for many years, and will now devote himself entirely to gladiolus culture. He has sixteen acres of excellent land and a splendid storage cellar. His son will continue the greenhouse business.

In last week's Review an inaccuracy crept into the report of the club meeting held November 16, in regard to nominations of officers. Principal officers were nominated as follows: President, William H. Judd; vice-president, Harold A. Ryan; secretary, William N. Craig; treasurer, James Methven.

Thomas Roland had a fine lot of Erica melanthera for Thanksgiving, in addition to splendid cyclamens, begonias, ferns and other plants.

Sidney Hoffman, at his Massachusetts avenue store, featured choice foreign and domestic fruits largely, in addition to plants and cut flowers, and his baskets of fruits and flowers were so attractive that there was little wonder that they met with a large sale.

A. A. Pembroke, of North Beverly, now operates two large retail stores in Salem, and business in both is satisfactory this season. He grows a large proportion of the plants used, such as cyclamens, begonias, ferns, solanums, chrysanthemums, etc. In carnations, he now grows principally Benora, White Benora, Pink Delight and Matchless, with smaller lots of Rosette and one or two other sorts. One large house is planted with Columbia and Ophelia roses and a house of sweet peas has been in crop since early in October.

There will be a further exhibit of orchids from A. C. Burrage, of Beverly Farms, at Horticultural hall, December 18. This will be the last of twelve notable displays made during 1920, unquestionably the most extensive and varied orchid displays ever seen in America. They have been viewed by thousands of visitors on each occasion and have done much to encourage the love and culture of these beautiful plants.

Of course, had the weather conditions been better, business naturally would have had more snap, but, as it was, we cannot complain. There seemed to be a decided scarcity of large mums, while carnations and roses were also inadequate to take care of the demand. There seemed to be plenty of pompons, Garza moving more slowly than any other. The wholesale houses here all closed Thanksgiving day with the exception of one, which was open only for about two hours and reported poor business for that short time.

A few mignonettes and some myosotis made their appearance, while white and yellow narcissi arrived in good supply. Local roses were good, although some retailers complained that even these were too tight.

In School Days.

From the confirmation, or first communion service, to commencement day there is no fixed service in which to "Say It with Flowers" in the child's life. This period is taken up with acquiring an education, in which he usually gets some practical idea of the constituent parts of flowers in the study of botany, but how many of us can recall how little attention we paid to this study! Yet those of us who were fortunate enough to go to a country school could have given college professors cards and spades and then beat them regarding knowledge of the wild flowers that grew in our section. We knew nothing about long Latin names, but we did know where the flowers could be found, their habits and their medicinal value, if they had any. Any boy or girl could tell you where to look for the trailing arbutus, or when the dogwood would burst into flower.

But school days are over, and happy families gather at the high school or college for the graduation exercises, and here we again find that the only way in which loved ones can express just what they feel is by "Saying It with Flowers." Perhaps a boy or girl of some humble home is the valedictorian of the class; can those proud parents let such an occasion pass without "Saying It with Flowers"? The school building is decorated with flowers for the occasion. If in the city, great vanloads of palms are transported from the florists to grace the occasion, together with cut blooms. If in the country, the children themselves will go to the woods and, once a year at least, convert that old building, which to many a boy has been little more than a prison, into a bower of flowers. Why is this being done? Young lives are being launched into the responsibilities of life, and as they step out into this new life, with all of their vigor and youth, what more fitting surroundings could there be than God's greatest handiwork, aside from human beings?

Entering Life.

But commencement days are over, and we find the boy and girl looking about for their life work, and at the same time life partner; both of these are sooner or later determined upon. Perhaps both of them have, in a manner, been settled back in school days, but the young miss has made her debut in society. New faces and new suitors come upon the scene, and the young man finds he has a warfare on his hands to hold her affections. Now, what more formidable weapon can be used in this battle than flowers? The two may have reached the age of manhood and womanhood; it may be hard for her to decide, but his floral offerings will carry her back to childhood days; they will recall to her how some big, blundering, bashful boy once thought it an honor to carry her books, or if some boy teased her, how he was ready to do battle for her. And as she looks at his flowers, and considers the traits of character possessed by this young man, her decision is made, and soon we shall hear the wedding bells ring out.

Or we will take the young lady in the higher strata of society. She is launched into society in the most formal manner; her first public social function is surrounded with flowers and her future popularity in the social world is judged by the number of bouquets she receives on this occasion. From this time on hers is a constant round of dinners, teas, dances and theater parties, until she, like the one mentioned above, comes to the valley of decision, and in this case the one who has depended most upon flowers to carry his message is usually the most successful one. We all know that in the eyes of the world money, position and prestige are supposed to be the deciding factors in these affairs, but this article is being written for the eyes of florists alone, who are on the inside in these matters. How many of you florists with store experience have seen flowers win out over all these, and have seen the young man with a short bank account, struggling along in his profession, walk off with the prize! How often have you heard some of her set say she had simply thrown herself away, that it was sad, when they think of the opportunities she had, to see her make such a decision! I can look about me today and pick out some of the most respected citizens of my city of whom this same thing was said. The man who knows how to "Say It with Flowers" is the man who has stamina and character sufficient to make for himself a reputation that a woman will live to be proud of.

Crossing the Krisses Out of Krismas

When you consider that for the two days preceding, and on Christmas itself, we send out no less than 4,000 separate orders; you can well see that we have to have a well-thought-out system of handling them, or things would get beautifully balled up.

We have tried the grouping system and the numbering system. Also holding each salesman responsible for his orders. Likewise putting it all up to the head of our deliveries. Any of which were all right when our business was small, but sure did "Kriss Kross" things up when we had 4,000 deliveries to make.

So Suko, the Jap; Tom, the Scotchman, and Jimmy, the Hybernian Hybrid, got together and schemed up a method that has them all beat.

It might or it might not help you. Will be only too glad to write you full particulars, or ask Clarence E. Falls.

But now let us note the actual wedding day, and no matter whether the bride be a princess or a girl who toils for her living in a factory, flowers must play a part, great or small, in the nuptials. A wedding without a bride's bouquet would be like the production of "Hamlet" with Hamlet left out. We have all seen weddings where flowers were used in every conceivable way, the aisles of the church strewn with them and the hack or automobile that carried them to the station decorated with them. And it did not stop there, for often we have telegraphed some florist to have a vase of flowers in the couple's room at the hotel when they arrived.

Take another view of the situation. How often have we had an eloping couple come into the store and purchase a bouquet before the knot was tied! Even in such a case it would not seem like a wedding if there were no flowers. Wherever the marriage ceremony is celebrated in these days, no matter according to what denomination or creed, no matter if it be a civil ceremony performed by a mayor or an alderman, flowers will play a conspicuous part.

The wedding is only the foundation for a new home, and there is not another word in the English language that stands for so much as that little word of four letters. I once heard home defined in these words: "Home is any abode where love dwells." Any of us will agree that this is a true definition. Well, assuming that love dwells in a home, then there are sure to be flowers in that home, for the two are inseparable. But it is a woman's hands that are building this place we call home, and as she builds, every layer that she lays is cemented with love, till it becomes so great that it must be shared. It would be selfish for two people to enjoy it, for we all know that there is no place for selfishness where love reigns, and so an all-wise God sends another life into this home and, in a manner, divides that love.

In my first article I said "Say It with Flowers" opened an endless chain of possibilities. We see the same scene enacted here as in the beginning of my first article, and one that will be re-enacted while time lasts.

But space will not permit me to go further in this article. Right here I want to ask the florists of this country a question: Is it any wonder Major O'Keefe has such faith in our slogan, "Say It with Flowers"? Tate.

been a propaganda of cheerfulness since the war.

"For the women there is the corsage bouquet. They had been wearing the corsage entirely of orchids, but I have suggested a combination of flowers, an orchid with others. Since the prohibition of all flowers from the other side there has been a scarcity of orchid plants and the prices are high. With women using a combination corsage bouquet, which was really less formal and more pleasing, the demand for orchids was reduced; that kept the prices down and it also increased the demand for the home-grown stock.

the right kind of a bridal bouquet is not hidden behind it. One has to remember that it is the bride and not the bouquet who is being married. If the florist does not know the bride personally he should have a description of her and suit the bouquet to her style. A tiny, sylphlike bride must have a bouquet of quite different shape from the majestic bride who is large in every way. If the bouquet is too large the figure of the bride is spoiled and the work of the dressmaker lost.

"At one time the flowers of the bride's bouquet were all a dead white, which is unbecoming. There are different shades of white—those which have a note of cream, an ivory white, and white with an accent of delicate green. Then if, tucked down in the heart of the bouquet, there is a little cluster of Sweetheart roses or of blue pansies, they will not be noticed in the ensemble, but they give a touch of warmth to the bouquet.

"Many brides who wear orange flowers use the artificial ones. It is better to use the real ones, and a few of those are much more satisfactory than a large cluster of the imitation. Orange blossoms are always expensive. They are greenhouse-grown. A large cluster of the blossoms and leaves on the top of the head is too heavy and unbecoming, anyway. I suggest just a few real blossoms catching the veil at the side. The effect is much that of a pearl pin, and fifteen or eighteen blossoms are more than sufficient. In this way the bride's head is free and her face is not dwarfed by the flowers.

Do Not Hide the Bride.

"In the same way in preparing the background for the bride the idea should always be in mind that it is the bride who is to be seen and that the flowers are secondary. Anyone who puts in a solid background of white and green wants the flowers, and not the bride, to be seen. White is not cheerful enough for the background for a bride. A wedding is the most festive and joyous occasion of a person's life and the flowers should be cheerful. There should be a soft combination of the right colors to make a background that will be in itself forgotten, but before which the bride will be outlined a charming figure.

"In the same way as for the bride, the bridesmaid's flowers should suit the figures and gowns of those who carry them. It is the faces and the gowns which are to be seen and the bouquet is only a bit of the ensemble. It is the girl and the gown, and not the bouquet. There should not be an attempt to match the costumes. No flowers ever matched materials, but there should be something that harmonizes so that it does not stand out by itself. It is often difficult and requires much effort to find exactly the right flowers, but the pleasure that is given when just the right thing is obtained makes the effort more than worth while.

of the engaged girl. Not only her casual friends and acquaintances come to congratulate her, but her old, dear and warm friends, some from a long distance. They wish to embrace her closely; she wishes to give them both her hands and the bouquet stands between as a barrier. At the end of a long reception she will consider it a burden rather than a beautiful bouquet, and it will probably have had all its freshness crushed out. A corsage bouquet is much better.

Home Has Character.

"Mistakes can be made in having too many flowers, and this is often done at receptions and small home weddings. It is vulgar to bank a house with flowers so that you can't tell what house it is. Houses, like people, have individuality. Your house has certain characteristics and charm to which your friends are accustomed, and if they come and find everything characteristic hidden with flowers they feel that they are in a strange place; they do not know where they are.

"I wouldn't have a room turned into a forest bower then? Oh, yes, I might. That would be quite a different thing, a woodland scene, perhaps. Or supposing the proposal from which this wedding resulted had taken place under an apple tree, nothing could be more

Or perhaps the garden of the bride's home may be reproduced for the same reason; or an outdoor wedding with the reproduction of a Greek temple. If it is done with skill and taste, it is delightful. It takes a student and lover of nature to do it. But under ordinary conditions to overdo with flowers is as bad as to

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Rice Growers: Why Not Florists?

Just imagine the rice growers of this country running a cooperative advertising campaign to stimulate a greater use of rice by spending $900,000 in the next three years, at the rate of $300,000 per year. Then think, if you will, what the florists have been able to do on their small yearly appropriation. The rice growers' slogan will be, "Eat More Rice," another suggestion which probably grew from "Say It with Flowers."

Have you felt the business depression which so many other lines are having at the present, with many of them pessimistic as to the immediate future?

Yet, in all sincerity, have not the florists cause for rejoicing in the fact that our business, at least with many, is holding up to last year, and in a majority of cases running ahead? Does it not feel as though we have accomplished something unusual to be able to make this statement? Something was indirectly the cause; and wouldn't you like to give the national publicity campaign, backed up by local advertising, part of the credit for this condition, especially where all other lines are falling behind?

Was there ever a time in the history of flowers when so much energy was put into the printed word to create more sales and the more general use of flowers and plants, and has not the effort made it worth while?

Let's Go.

Our campaign has had to rest, temporarily, for the lack of funds to carry on the work, and your committee hopes to start as soon as the amount necessary is available. Perhaps this might serve as a reminder to many who, as yet, have not sent in their subscriptions for 1920, so that we may make up our budget for 1921.

The publicity committee has adopted the best policy for the future, in not making any expenditures until the fund is big enough to go ahead. Much of our recent success in selling flowers has been due to the cooperation given by the trade generally, and we must keep up the momentum, for it will be a much harder task to start again if we should discontinue for too long a period.

The committee on publicity will soon meet to make permanent plans for the near future and every branch of the business will be interested in the outcome.

Send in Subscriptions.

In the meantime, send in your subscription for 1920 to the secretary's office, so that the campaign may have proper financial support, and you will have still greater results from the campaign which has been so fruitful to all who have participated. Surely, if the rice growers of the United States can raise $900,000 for three years, the florists, who have more at stake, from an investment standpoint as well as being in greater numbers, should be able in the near future to do almost as well, particularly where we are our own distributors.

Will the florists be big enough to see advertising as a potential factor in the marketing of their product, as have the rice growers? As to the possibilities—we have the greatest opportunity, pro-

University Flower Show.

Commercial florists contributed exhibits to the second annual chrysanthemum show given by the students of floriculture at the Ohio State University, November 11 to 13, and according to H. P. Mulford, who had charge of the exhibition, they helped materially to win public favor. It is estimated that 20,000 persons attended the exhibition, many more than those in charge anticipated.

Letters urging the florists to send exhibits to the show were generously answered and the result was excellent displays of chrysanthemums, roses and plants. There were 5,000 blooms exhibited, including 125 varieties.

The Elmer D. Smith Co., of Adrian, Mich., had an excellent exhibit of chrysanthemums and pompons of exhibition varieties. The displays of the J. M.
 Gasser Co., Cleveland, O., and the S. S.
 Pennock Co., Philadelphia, deserved much credit. J. D. Imlay, of Zanes-

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

The large number of mums that were on the market for Thanksgiving was a big surprise. Between the Harmonie social, which was held at the Belvedere hotel November 24, and Thanksgiving day, Wednesday was one of the heaviest flower days that the Baltimore market has experienced for some time. There was a fine supply of $4 and $5 mums, and these seemed to be just what the buyers wanted, for they cleaned up well. There were some of the large specials; the call was not for this quality, but after the mediums were disposed of the larger ones were used up also.

Roses were only in fair supply. They have not reached normal production yet, but the quality was all that could be desired, and what was on the market cleaned up well. Carnations were in fair supply and of excellent quality. These, too, cleaned up. Violets were not so plentiful, and these, with sweet peas, were short, as there was a big demand for corsage stock. There was a fair supply of all miscellaneous stock, Paper Whites, stevia, etc., and everything cleaned up well. All retail stores report a splendid Thanksgiving business. Everyone cleaned up well, and nothing but the most satisfactory reports were heard. Prices advanced a little, but there was no material jump

Various Notes.

John De Groot, the well-known specialist in gladioli and other bulbs, who has a farm at Catonsville devoted to the production of bulbs, is also interested in the United Bulb Growers, Inc., of Holland, and is traveling representative of the concern in this country. Mr. De Groot is most enthusiastic about this new corporation, the object of which is to sell Holland-grown bulbs direct from the grower to the consumer. In organization it is similar to the association of raisin growers of the Pacific coast. K. Klyn is the managing director of the corporation in this country, with offices at 640 Broadway, New York. Both of these men were raised in the bulb industry in Holland and understand the business thoroughly. About forty bulb growing firms in Holland are now members. Mr. De Groot started on a trip through the middle west November 28 in the concern's interest and at the same time to Robert L. Graham had a window last week that attracted more attention than any I have seen for some time. The window setting was a dining room, with a well set table artistically decorated with flowers, the floral part of the decoration being changed each day. Miss Margaret Graham informs me that it is not so expensive as an ordinary window decoration. At this store I saw the scheme for a table decoration that is certainly a novelty. It consisted of three pumpkins, two of them with the tops cut off and the insides hollowed out; the third and largest was cut lengthwise, about one-third of the side being cut away. This made it boat-shaped. These shells were filled with water and used in place of baskets and they made as pretty table pieces as I have ever seen. Miss Graham told me they had used 200 pumpkins for this purpose this fall.

John J. Perry, of the S. S. Pennock Co., was confined to the house for a few days last week with a severe cold.

The next meeting of the club will be held Monday, December 13. Joseph S. Merritt, the new chairman of the entertainment committee, said at the last meeting that there would be something doing every meeting night this winter, and it looks as if he intends to keep his word for this meeting. First, it will be a ladies' night, and every lady in any way connected with the business is urged to be present; then William F. Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., judging from orders. Fancy stock brought $6 easily, but other grades sold as low as $2.50. The top retail price was $18 and several shops report cleaning these out first. Pompons were 75 cents wholesale, carnations $6 and $7, roses from $8 to $20 and California violets $2.50 per dozen bunches. After mums ranked roses and carnations, but pompons dragged a little, being put aside for carnations. Roses and carnations were short of the demand. Shipping business was heavy all week, but local demand was big, although many retailers used their own crops.

Thanksgiving Reports.

E. A. Humfeld: One man bought eight dozen big mums at $1.50 apiece. Business was better than last year. We shipped a good many mums to Columbia, Mo., for the football game. Adolph D. Mohr: We cleaned up on mums and sold a good many carnations and plants.

R. S. Brown & Son: It was the best Thanksgiving day business we ever had. We sold out on mums and other stock, and enjoyed nice out-of-town trade.

August Luther, Jr.: Business was better than a year ago. We cleaned up on big yellow mums. Our trade was steady up to 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. We sold many pots of cyclamen and shipped some large orders, besides having a big run of funeral work Wednesday and Friday.

J. R. McGrail: Business was good, fully up to last year.

William Foith: Just about cleaned up on everything. Most of the sales were for small quantities of flowers, but we sold some potted plants.

Humfeld-Orear Floral Co.: Business was better than a year ago. There was more buying in smaller quantities. There is reason to believe that this is a good indication of a heavy Christmas business.

Samuel Murray: The total sales surpassed last year. There was a big demand for mums and we sold the most expensive first. Roses and violets sold well.

J. Austin: The volume of business was about $20 ahead of last year in two stores, with more local business and not so many single sales for large amounts.

Apollo Flower Shop: Our sales were little ahead of former years, but the calls for mums are still numerous.

Miss Lou E. Boggess: Our business was good and equal to other years.

William L. Rock Flower Co.: We sold fully as much as last year, having a particularly good country trade and many nice orders. Mums were better on account of the cool summer and are keeping better than usual.

Chandler Landscape & Floral Co.: We had a good business and sold nearly all of our mums.

O'Connell's Court House Flower Shop: We cannot complain. Business was better than we expected. We had a big Italian funeral Wednesday to help out.

Mrs. Hedges: We sold all but two mums, and are delighted with the day's business.

C. T. Reinhardt: Well satisfied. Sold all but a few mums.

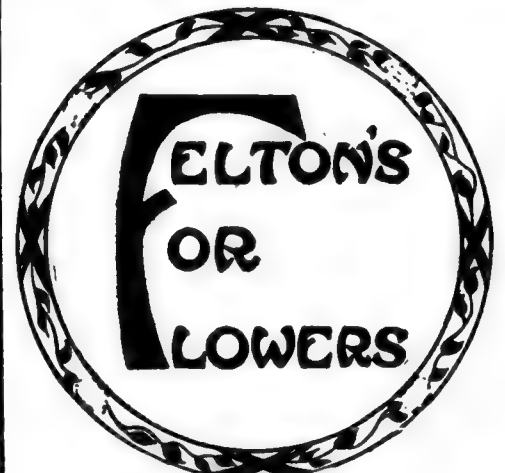

W. J. Barnes: Best Thanksgiving we ever had. Our crop of mums was larger and better than usual. Cash sales were a noticeable feature of the day. We are still selling mums.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley: We were not so overworked as in former years, but did well. Mums came in earlier this year and were not a novelty. Other flowers sold well in comparison.

Muehlebach Flower Shop: We had fifteen people working Wednesday and Thursday. A number of hotel and club decorations, besides shop sales, kept them all busy.

Arthur Newell: Our business was from fifteen to twenty per cent better than in 1919 and it was all straight Thanksgiving day business. Fancy mums at $18 went first and we did not have enough of them. Yellow Eaton, six and eight inches across the top, sold out Wednesday, and could not be replaced. Customers took three and four mums at $1.50 each, in preference to half a dozen or more of the $12 and $15 stock.

Linwood Floral Co.: We kept open until 8 o'clock Thursday evening and had a wedding Friday.

A. F. Barbe: We did the best in years. There were no complaints on prices. We had a good crop and cleaned up.

J. E. Murray & Co.: Everything was lovely and there was not a hitch. Wednesday and Thursday were both big days. The number of $10 and $20 bills in evidence was unusual.

Peterson Floral Co.: We cleaned up on everything aside from regular stock. Business was much better than last year. We had a big wedding last week.

The Rosery: Business could have been better and could have been much worse. We had bought carefully and had only one vase of yellow and two vases of white mums left. These were used Friday. Regular customers did not buy as much as transients and sales ranged from 50 cents for pompons to half a dozen mums at $1.50 apiece.

Various Notes.

The William L. Rock Flower Co. had twenty-five orders for a debutante party November 27. This is the first social affair of this kind in four or five years.

Miss Nancy McCall and Samuel Crawford were married in the Episcopal church at Pleasant Hill, Mo., November 24. Mr. Crawford is a rose grower at the Pinehurst Floral Co.

Smith & Heakin will soon be cutting pansies and violets. Now that the mums are all cut they will tear out all the old benches and put in new ones in their Kansas City greenhouses.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.*The Market.

There was an unusually active demand for cut flowers for Thanksgiving day, but, following that, business the rest of the week took a bad drop. Prices, however, held up, being but slightly affected, as the continued dark weather depleted the supply.

Roses and carnations are more in demand as the reign of the chrysanthemum passes.

League Show.

Hailed as the greatest exhibition of the kind that has ever been held in Rhode Island, the show of the Rhode Island League of Agricultural Associations, at the state armory last week, fulfilled every expectation of its sponsors and, it is believed, will become an annual occurrence. Included in the associations that compose the league are the Rhode Island Horticultural Society, whose annual chrysanthemum show was one of the features of the exhibition; the Rhode Island Corn Growers' Association, the Rhode Island Fruit Growers' Association and the Market Gardeners' Association.

Just inside the main hall bowers of ferns, palms, rhododendrons and other ornamental plants did their best to camouflage the big coast artillery guns. To the right and left extended long tables of cabbage-sized chrysanthemums. Among these the extensive and varied display by Frederick S. Peck was noteworthy. The Maplehurst Greenhouses, of Longmeadow; the Foster Greenhouses, of Warwick Neck; Albert Holcher, of Hartford avenue, and John A. Macrae, of Smith street, Providence, were the principal exhibitors.

Native-grown rhododendrons featured the exhibit of the Lowland Rhododendron Farm, Kingston. Among the foliage plants and flowers shown by R. & J. Farquhar Co., of Boston, was a new variety of Japanese juniper, Juniperus chinensis virginialis, and a rare kind of pine, Picea albertiana, now about one foot tall, but capable of reaching a height of 100 feet. A giant cibotium with a 15-foot spread formed the center of Fred S. Davis's collection, from Pawtucket, which included Scotch heather, fuchsias and chrysanthemums.

Especially interesting was a small but fine collection of new hybrid carnations shown by Strout's, Biddeford,

Long Beach, Cal.—B. F. Hensley, formerly in business at Knightstown, Ind., has located at 1485 Linden avenue, in this city.

South Pasadena, Cal.—C. Austin, of this city, who was planning to remove to Deerfield, Fla., has changed his plans and will remain here for the present.

Capitola, Cal.—J. A. Brown, who recently returned from Europe, has announced that he has secured the services of Carl De Ryk, an expert bulb grower of the Haarlem bulb district, Holland, and that Mr. De Ryk has arrived here to take up his new duties. Mr. De Ryk will have charge of the growing of European bulbs.

Pasadena, Cal.—A. W. Jannoch, proprietor of the nurseries bearing his name, which were established in 1906, says he believes the shipping of plants from California is only in its infancy. He believes that California growers can supply many plants not procurable elsewhere and that the development of a large business depends only upon devising methods which will insure safe transportation.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are about cleaned up in this market, owing to the big Thanksgiving day business. All the mums were purchased early, causing prices to rise, the larger varieties bringing as high as $4 per dozen wholesale. There are plenty of good pompons and small mums of good quality. Roses are scarce. Every grower of roses in this market seems to be cropping for Christmas. If nothing unforeseen happens, there will be a good supply of roses for Christmas. Poinsettias made their first appearance last week and were of fair quality. Sweet peas and violets are more plentiful. Indoor carnations are scarce, but the field varieties are plentiful and of good quality. All the wholesalers report a big shipping business for Thanksgiving.

"White Man's Market."

The regular meeting of the Los Angeles Florists' Club was called to order on Friday evening, November 26, at 6:30 o'clock, at Christopher's cafe, but was immediately ordered adjourned and a special meeting was called to order for the purpose of discussing the organization of a "white man's flower market" in Los Angeles.

A motion was made by Frank Warner that an organization be formed and supported by individual subscriptions. An amendment, providing that each member should contribute $10 monthly towards the support of the organization, was carried.

F. H. Howard moved that a committee of three be appointed, consisting of one retailer, one wholesaler and one grower, to investigate the cost of such an organization and report back to the body at the next meeting, December 3. This committee consists of Fred Sperry, Arthur Howard and H. N. Gage.

In order to find out what support the organization would get from the trade, Tom Wright made a motion that a committee be appointed to report on how many growers and others would agree to purchase space in the market. F. R. Hills, Mr. Polder and Gebhard Prechtl form the committee.

A committee composed of F. H. Howard, Tom Wright and Walter Armacost was appointed to investigate the organization of the Southern California Horticultural Association with the idea of taking it over.

Walter Armacost had the support of the body in a motion to take steps for incorporation.

Various Notes.

Charles Morton, manager of the Donofrio Floral Co., Phoenix, Ariz., made a hurried trip to Los Angeles by automobile to purchase stock for the Christmas holidays.

A petition asking that Wall street, between Fourth and Fifth street, be a permanent flower market, where flowers may be sold from trucks or wagons between 5 and 8 a. m., was passed at a recent meeting of the city council.

Walter Amling is bringing in fine quality Columbia roses regularly. He is consigning most of his stock to the E. C. Amling Co.

Wright's cyclamen plants, on display in one of the big wholesale houses of this city, are some of the finest ever seen on the market.

Walter Garbett, manager of the E. C. Amling Co., reports an unusual Thanksgiving business. He said that large shipments of mums were made to the Chicago market and from all reports they arrived in fine shape. By the time this is printed the company will be making preparations for moving into its permanent home, which is a building 50x100 feet, situated in the heart of the flower market. A 10-year lease is held on the entire building.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

The drenching downpour that marked a great part of last week did considerable temporary mischief to the chrysanthemums. Most of the local shippers had large Thanksgiving orders and, just about the time they were filling the orders for distant points, the mums were wet and not in satisfactory condition for shipping. To add to the worries of the shippers, the growers, seeing the scarcity of satisfactory shipping mums, raised the price. "And they'll blame us," said one large shipper, alluding to the upward trend of the mum market.

However, there were some fine days in between and at the end of the week most of the shippers were smiling and satisfied, because they managed to get their shipments off in satisfactory condition.

The local market last week was brisk. The outdoor mums have suffered less from the rain, in the long run, than have those grown under canvas. The two days of sunshine have had a good drying effect on mums and there are many grown under cover in the local market that appear to be in a satisfactory condition. Many shippers are sending away large consignments of the outdoor mums, which are plentiful, of good variety and can be found in a vast range of autumn tints, as well as in pinks and other more conventional hues. The pink canvas-grown mums are much more plentiful than are those in white and yellow.

Violets were abundant and of excellent quality. Roses were becoming more plentiful. Carnations were scarcely plentiful enough to supply the local market. California red berries, for Thanksgiving, were fairly plentiful and of good quality, for the most part.

(FRASER'S GIANT PICOTEE, PRIZE ZINNIAS)

The blossoms are of new colors, coral-pink, carmine-rose, garnet-red, snow-white, orange and rich apricot-yellow, with various hues at the ends of the petals. Some are tipped with chocolate, terra cotta or rich crimson. This giant strain of ours made its appearance in the Los Angeles market and was highly prized by growers. Highly recommended by William Rapp, President of the Horticultural Society of Pasadena, California. Large trade packet, $1.00; 1/2 trade packet, 50c.

tions on the artistic half-page advertisement with which they inaugurated their advertising campaign in the local press, Sunday, November 21. "Say It with Flowers" was the heading over a page-length picture of a pretty girl holding flowers. Below was the statement that the Retail Florists' Association means to inaugurate Sunday closing, beginning with January 9, 1921. It is the association's intention to advertise nationally next year.

Bulbs continue to be much in demand, both for house and garden uses. C. Kooyman is much gratified by the continued demand.

"Roses have been scarce, but they are coming in nicely from our nurseries now," stated the E. W. McLellan Co. A big Thanksgiving demand for yellow, pink and bronze mums is reported by this firm. The roses coming in from the nurseries are Russell, Columbia, Hadley, Ophelia and Premier.

J. A. Axell's growers are all cutting more roses. They are particularly strong on Russell, which is of fine quality. The Peninsula Nursery Co., San Mateo, Cal., is sending Mr. Axell some of its Laddie carnations, which are of such remarkable size and of such rich pink color that the demand far exceeds the supply. Good carnations being scarce, unusually good ones are almost at a premium.

As an experiment, General A. J. Gooch shipped a considerable consignment of violets to New York city. The morning of November 24 he had returns from his consignee, who stated in his letter that the flowers had arrived in excellent shape. The general has some dried strawflowers which he dried in a new way, as an experiment. They have retained their color to an unusual degree. Next season he means to dry strawflowers on a large scale. At present he is sold out.

Joseph's, who always add to the affect of flower displays by bird cages and bowls of goldfish, have had in their window a tall stand for a canary cage all embowered in smilax and yellow mums, giving a strikingly decorative effect.

Often on bright days we see Mr. Darling, of Darling's Shop, flying high over our greenhouses. We always wondered what the plant looks like from up there.

Having a wife and four children to support, we have always declined his kind offers to take us up—besides, we were afraid.

So we had Mr. Darling snap it for us. The above is the result.

It shows very well the 15 acres of greens—three entire blocks—and the spread of glass. But it does not show what is inside. Houses crammed full of good stock—you couldn't find an empty space with a search warrant. And the quality! It makes your mouth water to look at our Roses and blooming plants. Come and see for yourself. We know then where you will place your standing order.

dinner decoration orders for Thanksgiving.

The MacRorie-McLaren Co. reports heavy telegraph business. Better stock is reported by Mr. Capurro to be coming from the nurseries of this firm, largely because more skilled labor is available than has been the case since early in the war.

Gladioli and Rainbow freesias are the heaviest bulb sellers at the present time, according to the Chas. C. Navlet Co.

The Terminal Florist has one window filled with English holly, as a seasonable suggestion. Potted cyclamens are also featured.

The annual football match between the University of California and Stanford brought much business to local florists. Large yellow chrysanthemums with a "C" in blue frieze and cardinal mums with a white "S" were everywhere in evidence. As numbers of college students put up at the Palace hotel for the occasion, the Palace Hotel Florist did a big business, especially in the blue and gold, both for table decorations and boutonnieres. Mr. Bertrand used violets and mums for the blue and gold and chiefly mums for the cardinal and white.

Miss Dennison, a well known floral decorator who has been with the Warren sisters for a number of years, has now joined the staff of the Misses Hannon, on Sutter street. Numerous social Thanksgiving orders are reported by this firm.

The Market.

A general increase has been noted in work in all lines in the last week, with funeral work and decorations sharing the greatest increase. There has been a markedly lighter delivery of California stock, roses proving an exception because of the local shortage. The local growers are bringing in some fine mums. Prices are being maintained at normal in most instances and in scattering cases show an increase.

Bonnaillon and bronze varieties are leaders among local mums, with pompons popular because of their price. Turner is selling freely. The brightest-colored offerings are the best sellers, although the end of this week developed a big Ophelia roses are in heavier supply than at any time for the last two months, according to most growers, but the stock is hardly sufficient to fill all orders as yet. There has been a decided improvement to report in the quality of carnations arriving, especially in Enchantress. A novelty in local shops last week was the first showing of Paper White narcissi. Just at present the price on these is too high for a big general sale, although there was enough stock for such a demand.

Lily of the valley, bouvardias and gardenias are all short of the demand, and there is no improvement in the orchid cuts. Cattleyas have been used prominently in a number of recent weddings and at elaborate luncheons.

Potted plants have been becoming more popular lately, undoubtedly the result of the passing of outdoor offerings in most sections of the northwest. Potted cyclamens, especially the deeper shades, are big sellers, but brighter colors are also in demand.

Ferns continue to be one of the best selling offerings and practically every retail shop has featured them. The prices for this season are a little below those of a year ago, but still there is a arranged about a large floral centerpiece and the window was modeled to look like a dining room. The white table linen, a white polar bear rug and vases of white mums helped to carry out the winter effect.

Chicago, has returned from his regular trip to Vancouver and Victoria, B. C., and reports several changes in trade circles there. At Vancouver, J. F. Cox has purchased the Wilkinson & Brown shop, near the Vancouver hotel, while Brand's Seed Co. has extended its holdings to include a flower shop in a room adjoining the seed store. The seed and bulb business will be continued.

The store of Kenney's Home of Flowers is being altered. Plans are being made to remove one partition, so as to increase the amount of space available for the display of flowers on the main floor. This shop handled the first of the season's Paper White narcissi.

A special window for the Washington-Dartmouth game, November 27, was designed by the Hollywood Gardens. A miniature model of the new University of Washington stadium was given central position in the window, with a football in the immediate foreground. Pennants of the two colleges were used in the background and a number of cor-sages suitable for the event were shown. This firm is receiving a fine supply of mums and pompons from the green-houses.

Potted smilax, growing on tall runners, was last week's feature at the show rooms of the Orpheum Floral Co. and it sold well.

McCoy's is cutting some fine Enchantress.

Harry Johnson has been added to the sales force of Rosaia Bros. Last week this house filled a large order for a local department store, consisting of 100 balls of highly colored dried stock and fifteen huge wreaths for the chandeliers.

Gus Peterson, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, entertained all of the employees of this shop at his home last week.

Brown Bros. & Co., of Vancouver, B. C., are doing a fine general business and note an increase in the present total as compared with business for a year ago.

N. B. Healy, of the Seattle Fern & Moss Co., reports a brisk shipping trade in ferns lately, and a growing interest in Christmas greens.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop handled a novel silver wedding decoration last week. The handle and ribs of an umbrella were silvered and this was interwoven with pink roses attached to silver-colored ribbons. This piece was placed in the center of a 75-foot table. Pink roses were also used on the altar, to which led a graduated row of aisle posts, made of miniature rose trees. The Francis A. Allen, of Melby & Allen, reports a decline in the supply of roses offered by local growers lately. A satisfactory increase in sales is reported by this shop.

The Burns Floral Co. has been featuring small mums in recent window displays. Many potted pompons are sold. There have been a number of large funerals recently, which keep this house busy.

There is an agitation among Seattle and Tacoma florists to bring about the 6 o'clock closing hour, which prevailed here during the war. With one or two notable exceptions, the florists have shown a willingness to adopt this plan.

HOUSTON, TEX.

The Market.

Taken generally, Houston is better supplied from local growers than are some of the other southern Texas cities. The Mexican tuberose is the favorite cheap flower here and in adjacent towns, and it is seen by the wagonload. Its heavy fragrance is almost overpowering. Roses, locally grown, are fit to take their places beside any seen in the south or west, though the quantity is not nearly sufficient for the local wants and violets arrive in fine condition from Los Angeles and San Francisco.

In several cities visited, green branches of mesquite, camphor, wild peach and laurel are used to help out with plumosus and huckleberry, which are costly, owing to the high express rates. Until the recent frost, the edible asparagus was also used. Good plants are decidedly scarce, either from lack of demand or supply, cyclamens being, apparently, the best offering.

Various Notes.

Frank D. Mayo has bought out Walter Westgate's place, on Washington street.

At the Washington Gardens, the Mexican tuberose is grown and shipped in immense quantities. The first year 40,000 were planted; last year 100,000 were planted. F. Retzer says they "breed like rabbits," one fair-sized bulb bringing many offsets. A planting of 50,000 gladioli was also made last year and this is to be largely increased. The bulbs mature well here and are remarkably heavy and solid. Only ten acres are used now, but a nearby tract of 160 acres has been obtained and much of this will be planted to bulbous stock.

Hewitt's Flower Shop is a neatly kept, clean and attractive store in a fine location and Mr. Hewitt gives it his close personal attention.

The Brazos Greenhouses, at the southern end of the town, comprise a nice range devoted to mums, sweet peas and a general line of potted plants, rubbers and crotons being largely grown. A good line of ornamental nursery stock is also carried.

Carroll the Florist, 922 Texas avenue, has purchased the business of the Houston Floral Co. His brother is associated with him in the enterprise. The two businesses will be run separately. The retail store, opposite the Rice hotel, is a busy place.

Kerr the Florist has a large and attractive store and Manager Eichling is a busy man. They have recently opened a new shop under the name of the Rose Shop, at Main and Rosalie avenues, in a good residential part of the city. At the greenhouses of Robert C. Kerr fine potted plants are grown, there being about 40,000 poinsettias, many cyclamens, primulas and a good general line. For cutting, roses, mums and poinsettias are the principal items.

The Kuhlmann Floral Co. has a good location in the Rice hotel and has an attractive store.

Boyle & Pendarvis, on Rusk avenue, have a most attractive store and business of a high-class character. A native berried shrub was noted here with bright red translucent berries that are partly hidden by the gray moss that abounds here on native trees, making a lovely combination. This would be worth a fortune if it could be shipped to the east.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

PLENTY of valley pips are on their way from Germany.

SCATTERED consignments of Dutch bulbs continue to arrive, a few cases reaching New York on almost every steamer from Rotterdam.

PRICES for vegetable seeds, while not yet stabilized, are steadying and probably will begin to advance as soon as the trade knows for a certainty what the 1921 supply will be.

THE official roster of James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., said to be the oldest mail order house in America, is as follows: President and treasurer, W. H. Dildine; vice-president, H. W. Allen; secretary, H. F. Remington.

JAMES McHUTCHISON is now at his desk three afternoons a week, after having been away seven months, part of the time in a hospital in Maine. Robert S. Edgar, formerly manager of the Leominster Floral Co., Leominster, Mass., is now in New York, in charge of the bulb department of McHutchison & Co.

JAMES KELWAY, of Kelway & Son, Langport, Somerset, England, has been appointed a justice of the peace for the county of Somersetshire. Mr. Kelway is a member of the Langport rural district council and chairman of the highways committee; a member of the grand council of the Federation of British Industries and of the wholesale seed growers' committee of the Chamber of Horticulture. William Kelway, the senior partner, is also a justice of the peace, as well as councilor for the county of Somerset; consequently both father and son become fellow magistrates for the same petty sessions.

MANY VALLEY PIPS ARRIVE.

The steamer Manchuria brought 1,576 cases of lily of the valley pips, one of the largest shipments of the year, arriving at New York from Hamburg November 24. The pips were consigned as follows:

Richards, C. B. & Co.	444
Bernard, Judae & Co.	43
International Forwarding Co.	678
Lang, R. F., & Co.	98
Total	1,576

SEED SHIPMENTS HEAVY.

Importations of seed are now heavy. Two large shipments were received during the last week. One hundred and sixty-nine bags of garden seed arrived at New York from Rotterdam on the steamer Ryndam November 27, consigned as follows:

Consignee	Bags
Hart, Herman, & Co.	19
Vandegrift, F. B. & Co.	50

GRASS SEED PRICES TUMBLE.

During the last six weeks prices for red and sweet clover and alfalfa seed have continued to tumble, but alsike clover prices have held their own and have even shown a gain in some sections, according to information obtained by the bureau of markets of the United States Department of Agriculture. Seedsmen are in no hurry to buy and it still is difficult for them to secure loans from banks for purchasing seed. Several seedsmen have failed and others have tottered largely because of the unprecedented decline in prices of field seeds, particularly clover and alfalfa.

The marked drop in seed values may be accounted for in a large measure by the general price declines being experienced by other commodities. Exports and imports of these seeds since July 1 have been of little significance. There is no world shortage of red clover seed nor curtailed supply of alsike clover seed to buoy up the market, as there was two years ago. On the contrary, fairly large carryovers of red clover, sweet clover and alfalfa seed, resulting from unusually large imports during the late winter months of last year and the early spring months of this year, have had a depressing effect upon the market. Furthermore, the larger domestic production of these crops this year than last year has tended to make buyers cautious.

Growers have been reluctant to dispose of their seed at such heavy discounts below prices received last year and consequently the seed movement from their hands has been much below normal. It is thought that many of them will continue to hold their seeds and that they themselves will sow larger acreages next spring and summer rather

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.—"Kunderd Gladioli; New Class, New Types, New Colors," a 44-page catalogue, fully and finely illustrated and bound in a colored cover of tasteful design. On page 4 is an offer of an "Entirely New Race of Kunderdii Gladioli;" next in order are "Twenty-three New Ruffled Wonders for 1921, Kunderdii Type;" then follows the general list, and at the end are two pages of cultural directions.

Watkins & Simpson, Ltd., London, England.—"Novelties, Recent Novelties and Specialties for 1921," a special list of flower and vegetable seeds; sixteen good-sized pages, printed in this company's excellent style and well illustrated. About half a dozen novelties in vegetables are listed, but the greatest space and prominence are given to flowers.

C. N. Wettengel, Macomb, Ill.—A clearly printed catalogue of peonies and irises. The peonies occupy nearly thirty of the total thirty-five pages and comprise, says the proprietor, "the largest stock of the Hollis peonies in the middle west; also a complete list of the Brand, Terry, Rosenfeld and Harrison peonies, besides a partial list of the Pleas productions."

Sluis & Groot, Enkhuizen, Holland.—Wholesale catalogue of flower and vegetable seeds, with the briefest possible descriptions and with only four illustrations, which show novelties in cabbages, Brussels sprouts and beans; 132 pages, excellently printed, and bound in a tasteful, brown and cream-colored cover.

MISTAKE IN SALE BY SAMPLE.

One-sided mistakes in business transactions do not relieve the obligation of a contract. So the Pennsylvania Supreme court is in line with other judicial authorities when it decides, in the case of Holmes vs. Cameron, 110 Atlantic Reporter, 81, that where the sale of goods by sample has been contracted for, the seller cannot avoid performance of the agreement on the ground that he submitted a sample of a higher grade of goods than he intended to submit.

In this case, the defendants had sold a bill of goods to the plaintiff by sample, but a week later wrote that it would be impossible to deliver, because a mistake had been made and the defendants had no goods of the kind called for by the sample. In the meantime the market value of the goods had risen to a point considerably higher than the contract price.

The plaintiff recovered damages for nondelivery of the goods and the Supreme court affirmed the decision, saying, in part:

"In the sale of goods by sample there is an implied warranty that the bulk shall correspond with the sample in quality. It follows that plaintiff was entitled to goods corresponding to the sample and the fact that defendants did not have them in stock was no excuse; neither was the fact that they made a mistake in the sample. There is noth-

WORTH NOTING NOW.

As in other industries, conditions in the florists' business have changed. For the last two years demand has so exceeded supply that anything could be sold, usually with little effort. The seller has been in command, arbitrary as to prices and intolerant of criticism of stock or methods. Now the bud is on the other bush; supply has increased while demand temporarily has decreased, with the result that the buyer again controls the situation. Selling will not be so easy as in recent seasons; advertising, while it still will be the chief and cheapest means of moving stock, will not bring the unprecedented response produced in the last two seasons. To make it pay it will be necessary to make a thoughtful selection of methods and mediums. That the subject has begun to receive attention is apparent:

As a means of reaching the trade The Review is king of the crowd.—Joseph H. Cunningham, Delaware, O., November 18, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

Kokomo, Ind.—L. B. Hensley, who has been chief gardener at the National Home, Danville, Ill., has engaged with W. W. Coles as general foreman, at that veteran florist's greenhouses here. Mr. Hensley is a former commercial florist with many friends who will welcome him back into the business end of the trade.

Easton, Pa.—Though the Easton fire department estimated the damage caused by the fire on the night of October 28 at Adolph Fischer's greenhouses at $5,500, Mr. Fischer does not think the loss will be so much. Many plants, however, were destroyed and the structure was much damaged. The fire started from an overheated boiler.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

MANETTI stocks are arriving from abroad in good volume.

ABUNDANT autumn rains are welcomed by nurserymen as assistance to the evergreens through the winter.

THE second number of the Association Bulletin, dated December 1, 1920, has just been sent by Secretary John Watson to members of the American Association of Nurserymen. Secretary Watson's pen is one of the main reasons for the interesting quality of its eight pages.

ONE way of keeping a crew of competent men together is that employed by D. A. Robinson and F. H. Robinson, of Everett, Mass. D. Robinson's Sons are landscape gardeners. They do anything from pruning a lilac to handling large estates. A large crew is employed near home in the summer. To keep the force as nearly intact as possible, similar jobs are sought in the south for the winter and the men are sent to Florida.

treating of the importance of the nursery trade as a vital industry, he referred to the popular impression that California nurserymen are profiteers. This, he said, was far from the truth, and he submitted prices of three leading eastern firms, together with the current prices in California, for several standard plants. "A comparison of these figures," stated Mr. Bergtholdt, "show that in spite of the unprecedented demand and a corresponding shortage of trees, the California planter is paying over fifty per cent less than the prevailing prices in the east."

The precarious nature of the nursery business was then treated of, and the speaker referred to the "annual brush pile" of unsold trees and the fact that less than fifty per cent of those planted were actually sold. He referred to the prospect for enormous expansion in the bers, but should be made the leading factor in the horticulture of the state," said Mr. Bergtholdt. "Heretofore the ornamental nurserymen have been in the minority in our association, not alone in membership, but in the activities of our organization. This is wrong. In view of our dual capacity the membership of our officers should be fifty-fifty."

"The public demands reliability and service. Give them these and our activities will not be questioned by those who place confidence in us and the products we sell. Our prosperity depends on fair dealing and honest methods. Our organization should be founded upon the desire to render public service as much as for mutual helpfulness and protection."

The retiring president then suggested that the executive committee should be authorized and instructed by the convention to "renovate the organization; to devise plans and methods to enlarge the activities of the association and make it the leading factor in the horticulture of the state, and to draft a code of ethics to be rigidly observed and enforced upon all members."

Expansion Spells Expense.

"You can't buy bread on air. No more can you make the California Association of Nurserymen a potent factor in horticulture on an annual deluge of rhetoric," asserted President Bergtholdt. He then appealed to the members that a financial budget be made for a period of five years and that every member underwrite it for a yearly sum of $1 for every $1,000 of yearly business. "Do this," he stated, "and for every dollar in money and effort you contribute to an association adequately supported you will be repaid tenfold in the standing and prosperity of your business in the era to come."

The speaker suggested that a permanent membership committee be appointed and that efforts be made to prevail upon every nurseryman, florist and seedsman to join the association.

"The California planter demands, above all things, quality," said Mr. Bergtholdt in conclusion. "He is willing to pay the price and he expects the product to be the best that good nursery workmanship can deliver. We should maintain a high standard of both quality and grade. The planter will call us to an accounting, and his confidence in us spells our success."

Noblesville, Ind.—H. O. Meikel, of Frankfort, Ind., and Alfred Warner, of this place, have bought the business of G. C. Sharp, who has been running a business here for the last five years. The new firm will trade under the name of Meikel & Warner.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Last week saw the heaviest snowfall that this vicinity has experienced in a good many years. It did not hurt business in the least. Thanksgiving business is fine. There are plenty of fall flowers to meet the demand of the public. Our mums are most wonderful this year, and are in great demand. We have an extra fine lot of pompons. Roses and carnations are fine for so early in the season. Sweet peas are starting to come in now and they are in great demand for corsages.

Potted plants are in great demand. They consist of cyclamens and pompons.

Various Notes.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. has had an exceedingly large corsage business this fall. Funeral work and wedding decorations are still in great demand.

The Rolf Zetlitz Co. is cutting a large number of roses.

Underwood Bros. have been busy with funeral work. They are buying some of Leo Miller's fine cyclamens.

T. J. Ludwig has been cutting some fine mums.

Employees of the Munk Floral Co. motored to Richmond, Ind., last week.

Mr. Walker, formerly of the Stephens Floral Co., is now with the Wilson Seed Store. W. F. F.

Mansfield, O.—The Mansfield Floral Co. sustained a $3,000 loss as the result of a fire November 17, caused by a leak in the gas meter. The carnation house was completely destroyed and considerable glass throughout the establishment was broken. Paul Kopanka, owner of the company, says that the property destroyed will be rebuilt.

Williamsville, N. Y.—Seventeen inches of heavy snow November 17 caused the roof of a greenhouse, 30x100 feet, owned by C. B. Shisler, to give way. The building, which was completely wrecked, and its contents destroyed, was valued at $3,500. Mr. Shisler and two assistants, who were in the house at the time putting up bracing, escaped injury by dodging under benches.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The volume of business for Thanksgiving was satisfactory. Stock was more plentiful than during the previous week, when an acute scarcity was felt in several lines, due to weather conditions. Out-of-town business was brisk and the result was that almost every kind of stock cleaned up well. Despite the usual lull in business which follows a holiday, the end of the week found the wholesalers almost entirely sold out. Table and hardy ferns were in large demand, and the supply was good throughout the week. Little stock of any description went on the streets, due to the sharp advances in price.

Various Notes.

We do not know who engineered this deal, but a clerk from the Oehmler Floral Co. has located with the Dupont Flower Shop, one from the Dupont Flower Shop is with Z. D. Blackistone, while one of Blackistone's clerks is holding the fort left vacant in Oehmler's flower store. This happened all in a week.

The pictures of Z. D. Blackistone and George C. Shaffer were in the Sunday paper in connection with the Kiwanis Club. Mr. Shaffer is second vice-president of the club.

The Washington Floral Co. is cutting some fine orchids and roses.

Marche & Co. have been busy with funeral work. They also had several large decorating jobs last week.

G. V. S.

Council Grove, Kan.—The Cleek Floral Co. ran a special Thanksgiving display advertisement in the local newspaper with good results. The advertisement read: "Flowers best express the spirit of Thanksgiving and, with a lower price this year, their voice will be clear."

Jackson, Mo.—Mrs. H. L. Obermiller annually offers a prize for the best essay by a grade school pupil on "Say It with Flowers" the week before Armistice day. The winner, a 14-year-old girl, this year received a chrysanthemum plant for her essay, which was printed in the local newspaper.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN.

The Market.

Most of the local florists report a fine Thanksgiving trade. All are glad of this, as general business has been rather quiet this fall. We have had remarkably warm weather. People who had their own gardens were well supplied with outdoor flowers until nearly the middle of November, when the first killing frost of the season reached here. As a number of people are out of employment in the city, many who have been in the habit of patronizing the florists' shops frequently, are now unable to do so.

Pompon mums were in greatest demand for Thanksgiving table decorations. Chrysanthemums, ranging in price from $3 to $6 a dozen, were also popular. A plentiful supply of carnations, snapdragons, Paper Whites, callas and roses was on hand.

Although many violets and red chrysanthemums were sold for the Yale-Harvard game, some of the members of the local trade report that, on account of the high price of violets, fewer were sold than last year. However, some shops were cleaned out.

Various Notes.

A pretty Thanksgiving window decoration was seen at the Rosery. Mr. Pfomm reports that his store was a busy place the day before Thanksgiving.

Robert H. Hawkins says that he had a good Thanksgiving trade.

Victor Carwardine has furnished a number of wedding bouquets recently and has decorated for several weddings. Thanksgiving trade was quite satisfactory, as he was completely cleaned out.

John Reck & Son report that on account of the remarkable weather a great deal of outside work is being done, as there is no frost in the ground as yet. Window boxes are being filled and cemetery work is being done. Thanksgiving trade was splendid and a good Christmas trade is anticipated.

James Horan & Son say that trade in general has been rather quiet because the local factories are laying off so many people. However, business for both the football game and Thanksgiving was satisfactory. I. L. B.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

PIPING THREE SECTIONS.

I am enclosing a drawing of a house I wrote you about some time ago. Experts on double glass construction have figured the radiation required at 537 square feet. I have a 15-horsepower Tee boiler, rated at 2,000 square feet, which I shall use for heating. I have planned to put coils of eight 1½-inch pipes along both concrete walls at the north end, forming a heart at the northeast and northwest corners and running the full length of the east and west walls, bringing the 2-inch returns to the middle of the south end and returning through a 4-inch pipe in the center sunken path to the boiler. Are the sizes for return pipes right?

I thought of using 1¼-inch pipe under the benches in section 1. To heat for rooted cuttings, how many will be required? All three sections open into one big room under the gutters. Section 1 will contain all the benches and will require a little higher temperature than the other two sections. Planting in sections 2 and 3 will be in ground beds. I do not want to run the pipes so as to obstruct the light.

How shall I place the rest of the radiation required? I am planning to run a 4-inch flow from the boiler to a point just inside section 1 and then branch through a tee, using 2-inch pipes down to the coils running along the north wall to the east and west walls. I cannot handily run the flow to the south end and returns along the outside wall, because the gutters are only five feet high, except on the north side of section 1. The flow would be so low that it would interfere with walking through the house.

W. N. L.—O.

From the sketch one learns that there are three houses, 11x45 feet, running east and west, with five feet of glass in the south wall of the south house. The two end walls are of concrete and the north wall of the north house is built against the workroom and boiler house, with the boiler opposite the middle of the house. The only entrance in the house is from the boiler room.

The method of heating to be used is not stated, but from the amount of radiation mentioned, I infer it is hot water, provided 60 degrees will answer for section 1 and 55 degrees for sections 2 and 3.

While a 4-inch main flow pipe will be all right, 3-inch would be better for the branch flow pipes. Run these to the northeast and northwest corners respectively of the north house and then take off 2½-inch pipes with which to supply four 1¼-inch return pipes to run to the middle of the house from the east and west ends. Run the coils under the north propagating bench.

YOU'LL BE RICHER

TO THE MAN WHO NEEDS A BOILER

"The customer's interest first"—is the basis of the KROESCHELL standard. This principle makes the KROESCHELL Policy the most liberal of all in the Greenhouse Boiler business. The great variety of boilers that we make places us in a commanding position. It is the KROESCHELL principle to supply only the type of boiler best suited for the conditions. For this reason we always furnish the most efficient boiler unit in every case.

The KROESCHELL has proven its worth in many of the large establishments in this country. It has frequently been selected by the most careful buyers in competition with all other types of boilers. Its efficiency and capacity are completely beyond any other boiler.

KROESCHELL BOILERS have no bulky, soot accumulating surfaces—you avoid the disagreeable work and trouble indispensable to cleaning boilers with complicated and tortuous back and forth passages.

The superiority of our boilers has resulted in the removal and abolishment of hundreds of cast iron sectional boilers—in every instance KROESCHELL BOILERS give more heat with the same piping with less fuel.

2½-inch and continue them to the gutter between sections 2 and 3. There take off a 2½-inch pipe to supply coils of six 1½-inch returns on the gutter posts between sections 1 and 2. Extend the 2½-inch flow pipe to the south wall and with each of them supply six 1½-inch returns to run on the south walls to the middle of the house.

The pipes in all of the coils should be connected so that there will be a walk about four feet wide across the middle of the three sections. The pipe to join the coils with the main return should start at the south wall as a 2½-inch pipe and increase gradually, so that it will be a 4-inch before the last coils are connected.

Run all of the pipes downhill and keep the coils as high as possible, especially if they are not above the top of the boiler. Join the highest part of the main flow pipe with the expansion tank. Piped in this way, there will be no occasion for using air valves.

The Market.

The cut flower business held its own for Thanksgiving, but the old expression, "best ever," is not so much in evidence as it has been for several years among the retailers. However, they all did well and had a good trade, which went along without any great rush. The weather was unusually bad, with continued rain November 23 and 24. The wonder is that they did so well, and had the weather been right, no doubt business would have been better.

The wholesale houses cleaned up nicely. Local chrysanthemums were done and the last of the pompons were sold before Thanksgiving. There were many chrysanthemums shipped in, most of which arrived rather soft and small and sold only because there is always a demand for chrysanthemums for Thanksgiving.

Chrysanthemums are done for this season. The flowers now offered for sale are Beauties, roses, carnations, lilies, Paper Whites, Romans, stevia, calendulas, yellow daisies, asparagus strings and bunches, Mexican ivy, leucothoe, galax and ferns. Boxwood and lycopodium are moving rapidly.

Various Notes.

Mrs. E. A. Williams, Inc., has installed an automatic refrigerator in its show and stock boxes, which is giving good satisfaction. Since ice continues to get more expensive each year, mechanical refrigeration begins to attract more attention. Besides it keeps the boxes at a more even temperature and avoids the dirt resulting from handling quantities of ice.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is forcing pussy willow and is showing some nice stock from three to four feet long. The bad weather seems to have had some effect on the employees of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. Last week the company was short five persons on account of an illness something like the grip.

W. T. Usinger, of the McCallum Co., who has been abroad, returned last week.

Notices have been sent out by the Retail Florists' Association announcing ladies' night Thursday evening, December 2, at the New Oriental restaurant. H. J. H.

he visited and especially of the activity and forward strides he observed in the wholesale and retail cut flower establishments in Los Angeles. The cut flower business on the Pacific slope is quite a study. The Jap has his own wholesale commission market, where the white man is excluded. He can buy, but not sell. To counteract this, the city of Los Angeles has arrangements well under way for a market place for the white growers exclusively. Competition in cut flowers is keen, but the retailer reports no difficulty except in the sale of loose flowers. These the Japs grow and sell at low prices.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Reports show that Thanksgiving this year was probably the best in the history of the Denver trade and, with more stock, would have been even better. Chrysanthemums were all gone early and there was a marked shortage, especially of first-class stock, in all other lines. Almost everything in cut stock is likely to be short for some time. There was no slackening in trade the day after the holiday and no change in prices. Cyclamens, cinerarias and begonias sold well. Thanksgiving day shipping was especially heavy.

Various Notes.

The Park Floral Co. reports a splendid Thanksgiving day trade. This company's Christmas stock is coming on in fine shape. It has large quantities of fine cinerarias and cyclamens.

The American Flower Shop had some pink mums on display last week. H. A. Clausen reports an unusual amount of corsage work lately. This establishment has a new delivery truck.

George H. Cooper says, "Thanksgiving was a big day for us and we're still going strong." Sometime within the next thirty days this firm will move into larger quarters, at 825 Fifteenth street.

The Elitch Gardens Co. had a record Thanksgiving day's shipping.

Lester Benson, who is with Conrad Lengenfelder, is the proud father of a baby boy.

S. Knudsen, of Boulder, Colo., was a visitor last week.

Harry Papworth still presides over the destinies of the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co., and the roses and other stock look fine. The big demand at the Carondelet store cannot be met by the cut from the company's ranges and many roses and stock of other kinds are shipped in from Chicago. The store is most attractive, showing the careful management of Charles Schottmeyer, who is a busy man all the time.

U. J. Virgin, on Canal street, is one of the oldest established florists and carries a good line. His plants of Areca lutescens, which he grows himself, are fine and healthy and are pleasingly arranged in the store.

Frank Reith, out at New Basin, is strong on palms and has elegant, stocky Phoenix Roebelenii, Cocos plumosa and others.

MELROSINE

Gentlemen:—

Having had a try-out of the substance now called "Melrosine" before it was put on the market, I was impressed by the fact that it really did kill rose-bugs, and I don't know anything else that will do the same service without also killing the roses. Then later, after it had been introduced, I saw it being effectively used not only to put the rose-bug out of business on roses, but to do the same when they had attacked rhododendron flowers in a prominent garden near Philadelphia. I keep it on hand, and would not hesitate a fraction of a second about putting it in use as soon as the bugs appeared, because I believe it is the best available remedy for this nasty pest.

Yours truly,

The Market.

With Thanksgiving over, and with chrysanthemums finishing their season, stock is scarce. The chrysanthemums were exceptionally good this fall and were in heavy demand. With their decline, the market has suffered.

Roses remain scarce. The majority of stock ranges from $6 to $25, although some shorts are available at $4 and $5.

Carnations are in good favor. With an accelerated demand, they have risen in price to $6 per hundred. Laddie is bringing $8. Some carnations of poorer quality are selling at $4 and $5 per hundred.

A few pompon mums and some large late varieties are appearing, but the mum season is practically over.

Sweet peas have not been arriving in large supply. A great deal of bad weather has retarded the growth in this locality. A few lilies are seen. Calendulas are brightening the shop windows.

Funeral work has taken a great many flowers. Decorations for parties and weddings have also been numerous this fall.

Potted plants have been in demand and are now beginning to come to the front with Christmas so near. Mum plants are gone, but cherries, begonias, primroses and ferns are available. Cyclamens are not yet ready, as the blooms are meager. It is a little early to try to forecast Christmas stock, as so much depends upon the weather, but all feel confident there will be no oversupply, if there is enough to meet the demand.

Various Notes.

Temperley's have a splendid lot of plants for the Christmas trade. These include Jerusalem cherries, primroses, cyclamens, begonias and ferns.

Baur & Steinkamp's new pink chrysanthemum scored 92 points in Chicago last week, when scored by the Chrysanthemum Society's committee. This mum is in its third year and will be disseminated next spring. A. F. J. Baur

EVERTITE

GLAZING CEMENT

Here's the story:—

The reasons why Evertite Glazing Cement has largely displaced putty in greenhouse construction are apparent to anyone who has had Evertite on his sash bars.

Putty consists of whiting and boiled linseed oil. Linseed oil evaporates and when the oil is gone from putty, only whiting remains. It isn't any wonder it lets go and the glass blows out.

Evertite Glazing Cement is made of pure rock asbestos, combined with non-drying adhesive oils and Gilsonite. It will not run or harden under either extreme of temperature. It will not check, crack or let go, but always retains its plastic, rubber-like condition.

The only chance to make putty hold is to put it under the glass. Quite the opposite, Evertite is run around the edges, lapping over on top of the glass. The glass really holds the putty in (for a while); but Evertite holds the glass in—for years and years.

Evertite Glazing Cement, remaining always rubber-like, will contract and expand as the greenhouse roof heaves under the wind. The Glazing cement does not crack—nor will the glass.

The correct way to apply Evertite Glazing Cement is through the "Oh Boy" glazing gun. The cement flows in a pencil-like stream and stays where you put it. There is no other gun so good.

Heretofore the chief use of Evertite Glazing Cement has been to repair roofs weakened, loosened and leaking by the disintegration of putty. But many hundreds of thousands of feet of new glass this season will be glazed with Evertite. Their owners can forget the glazing problem for the next five to ten years.

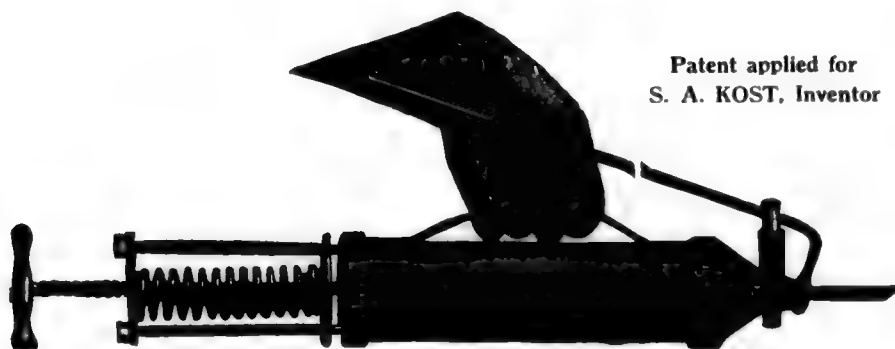

Evertite Glazing Cement will cost no more than first-class putty, but if putty were free, Evertite would be cheaper—because of the saving in labor, not to say worry.

Evertite can be had in kegs, half barrels and barrels. The "Oh Boy" glazing gun is furnished only with Evertite Glazing Cement.

Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouses are bought—not sold

Greenhouse owners know greenhouse values.

Therefore we do not believe it is necessary to employ high-pressure salesmanship in selling Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouses.

Our sales policy is based on this belief. Our sales efforts are a service rather than a "drive" for orders.

We consider it our duty to give to every greenhouse buyer full information regarding Callahan Greenhouses, in order that he may make an intelligent comparison and decision.

But we stop with that. We do not try to force or scare an order out of anyone.

We do not "pester" prospects until they have to buy to get rid of us.

You may write to us for an estimate that will require several hours' work to prepare. We will prepare it gladly—and without feeling that you are under one iota of obligation to us.

Because that is our sales policy. We want enthusiastic, satisfied customers—not the "wish-I-had" kind.

We want Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouses to be bought—not sold.

And we know we will succeed with this policy, because Callahan Greenhouses are the kind that speak for themselves.

*We would appreciate the opportunity of serving
YOU when you are next in the market.*

A GOOD ONE AND A MONEY MAKER

“Strong, Light Steel, All But the Wheel”

JUST the thing for small gardens. Needed in most big gardens. The price makes it popular. LASTS ALMOST FOREVER. Quickly pays for itself in labor saved.

The side teeth are held by springs, relieving the shock; the swinging in and out leaves the ground level, the soil well pulverized, making a thorough mulch that preserves the soil moisture, thus greatly increasing the crop production.

The broad, light, durable, wooden wheel stays on the surface. It is so balanced that the wheel does not dig in the earth or push hard.

Invaluable for working among flowers and small, closely planted garden truck. It has no equal for easy operation, thoroughness and utility.

Weight about four pounds without the handle. An ordinary hoe handle completes the implement.

James Didato

The Go-Getter

Of Bound Brook, N. J.

If Didato hadn't been so doggone modest, and tried to hide behind the sweet pea strings, you could have recognized him next time you met.

From this Carnation house, you see the construction is our Semi Iron with the famous-but-a-through-and-through fitting.

WHEN we find out what some folks do, we wonder when under heaven they ever do any sleeping.

Our good friend Didato is one of that kind.

If he ever does stop working on or in his house, we have never happened to catch him.

In fact, if he ever does sleep, have a notion he only shuts one eye at a time, like a New York fireman.

If there is one kind of a customer more than another, we like, it is the fellow who starts small and grows up.

We take no end of interest in giving such men all possible help.

Didato now has three of our houses.

One Sweet Pea House, 28 x 120 feet, he finished erecting the past summer.

Of course, none of us can tell what anybody's future is going to be, but one thing we can say, and that is, if Mr. Didato keeps on going at his present high gear pace, it won't be long before you will hear him spoken of as "one of the big Jersey growers."

It'll be mirror time soon—

the time when thoughtful people are supposed to look themselves dead level in the eyes and answer truthfully and without mercy a lot of very personal questions, put by your real self to your surface self, as to what use you have made of the year that has just passed. One of these questions will be:

"Why have you postponed making those improvements your business has needed for lo, these many months? What honest reason have you for not building houses in which to grow more stock that you know you can dispose of as easily as you do your present output?"

You may answer that you haven't had time, or that prices of building materials have been too high. But neither of these answers will satisfy your real self. It will probably ask in answer to the first:

"Have all the many things to which you have given time been of more importance than this? Have they contributed more to the advancement of your estate, your family's well-being and the accomplishment of your ambition?"

It will probably ask in answer to the second:

"Did you avail yourself of the opportunity to act when there was a drop in the price of building materials? Time flies and prices change. Now that prices have declined, have you protected yourself from an advance by getting an estimate and signing a contract at present AGMCO figures?"

You still have a few weeks before mirror time—before your real self strips the padding from the excuses for inaction you have been making to yourself. So, why not take advantage of this time to place yourself in a position to give answers to these questions that will make the eyes in the mirror smile into your eyes?

You have only to let us know what you wish and we will give you an estimate without delay on prices that average 25% lower than they have been since the war began.

Vacuum Heating System

WE show here a view of the boiler room end of our vacuum heating system.

The system mentioned was installed by us last winter for the Rockport Greenhouse Co. of West Park, Ohio, and is a typical modern system.

This method of handling the water of condensation in steam heating plants having 50,000 ft. or more of glass area is unsurpassed.

We have installed many such systems, and they are all giving entire satisfaction.

Our prices for this Christmas average the same as a year ago, despite the big advance in the cost of growing, such as coal, labor, etc.

Nearly all of our growth of flowers are sold on regular orders that go the season through. We therefore feel that it is only fair to our customers that for the holidays we will assume this extra cost of growing ourselves.

Flower Stores that Reflect the Yuletide Spirit.

ANTICIPATING the rush of business which the holidays at the year's end bring, florists are full of preparatory plans for handling the orders at that time. They will shortly be busy with decorations installed before the holidays, some in business houses and some in stores of size similar to their own. Do they realize, at this busy time, the value of decorating their own stores and of making such other preparations as will carry to passers' and patrons' minds the spirit of the day that causes these preparations? To no other class of stores, indeed, is presented the opportunity to do so much in reflecting the Christmas spirit by the use of its own merchandise, without appreciable extra expense. The opportunity seems, indeed, to be one of which none in the trade should fail to take advantage.

Exterior.

Though every florist makes some decoration for this season, this varies in degree in different stores. Many, a great many, fill their windows with baskets of red foliage and plants tied with red bows and, having seen a plenty of the bright color themselves, go no farther. In fact, flower store decoration for the Yuletide is apt to consist of but little, if any, more than display of plants and baskets which are to be sold at the holiday.

But there is much more that can be done. In the window, for instance, wreaths and holly and other greens can be used to give a real Yuletide appearance. A Christmas tree, decorated with florists' materials instead of tinsel and gilt trinkets, can be made the center of a display, consisting, for the rest, of the plants and baskets which the store offers for gifts. No better tree trimmings are to be found, indeed, than the dyed grasses and foliages which most florists use. Other touches can be added to make the window one really suggestive of the coming holiday.

Some florists employ evergreen branches and green festooning to ornament the outside of their store at this time. The effect is not lost on patrons or passers-by, you may be sure, and now that less of this is done by other sorts of shops, the distinction it gives to the florist's place of business in a row of stores is productive of sales.

In the Store.

It is in the store that least efforts are usually made, although here they would be greatly to be desired. Every Christmas of late years, many people of his or her own celebration of the holiday. This can be done in any flower store by means of effort extremely slight in comparison with the returns.

What is necessary is that which is called "atmosphere." The florist creates it for many a social event, many a banquet and in many a home. He can do it easily in his store. If he makes his plans now, he will not spend valuable time on this when every minute is precious. It is not too early now to put up such decorations and they may be left until the rush is over.

The necessary decorations will take space, and, says the retailer, every square foot is precious. To a certain extent, this is true. But that sentiment can be carried too far. It will not do to pack a store full of blooming plants, in the hope of letting each customer pick out his own. There should be a complete assortment, from which the customer can indicate his choice of arrangement.

Reliance.

The florist will see that an exact duplicate is sent. If his word is not taken by the customer that such will be done—well, that florist should do some missionary work in the way of educational advertising during the ensuing year. It should be the florist's object, however, to see that the plants in the store are the same as those he intends to send out and that there are not some extra "fixings" on them that the buyer will not see on the plant delivered to him.

If the florist arranges his plant assortment in the store so that customers may view them without handling them over and over, and does not sell the store specimens, necessitating their replacement with other plants, he will have ample space for patrons to look about easily, without crowding and without damaging stock, and he will have ample space for decorations that will give his store a real Christmas atmosphere.

To achieve this last, there are a number of things he may do. One of the simplest of course is to place a Christ-who enter flower stores depart without buying. Why? The price is too high? Not so much that as that the florist has not endeavored to sell his wares so strongly that the visitor could not resist. The sentiment that offsets price was not played up powerfully enough to overcome that ever-present obstacle in the purchaser's mind.

Easy Extra Business.

"I don't need to bother about those people," says a florist. "I've got all I can do without their orders." But he would not refuse their orders if they were proffered. And without extra sales force he could get many of them by reflecting so compellingly the Yuletide spirit in his store that the visitor would feel that flowers must be a part

mas tree in the center of the store or in some other conspicuous open space and decorate with florists' materials. About this he should place a few plants and baskets of cut flowers to show off these wares of his. Of course, it goes without saying that the placing of wreaths, holly branches and mistletoe about the store goes a long way towards giving it a Yuletide spirit. The artistic eye of the decorator will enable splendid effect to be made of these materials from the florists' own stock.

Often the retailer has a nook in his store which he uses for a quiet corner for customers. It is somewhat aside from the store's bustle on a crowded holiday, though quite visible to all visitors. Such a nook may be employed in a striking fashion, by putting in it Christmas plants or some other sort of decoration and throwing on the exhibit a special colored light, or a changing series of colored lights. Elaborate vases and cut flowers can be made into artistic pictures of still life.

The Christmas Touch.

On some baskets florists will put a huge red bow, on others none; some arrangements contain much in the way of Christmas greens; others will have none. It should be the practice, on all orders that are holiday purchases, to include some touch that is essentially "Christmasy," such as a sprig of holly in a plant arrangement or a little mistletoe in a corsage bouquet. These small additions to orders really give the holiday business of the florist the distinctiveness that makes the recipients remember and connect the florist's products with the holiday. Large as is the trade done at the close of December, it is little compared with that which may some day be developed for this occasion.

Special wrapping paper will not be generally employed this season, but colored string can be used. If nothing fancier is employed, red string is always to be had. In former years some florists have tied a bit of holly to every parcel which left their stores. The higher cost of these added bits of finish to orders is causing them to be abandoned frequently, but there are still those in the trade who maintain that the few cents these things add to the cost of an order is well spent. The money is as well spent as that paid for advertising space in the local newspapers.

After all, it is every bit of it advertising, and it's a profitable and pleasant way to advertise, for it makes both the florist and patrons feel a little more keenly the gladsome spirit of the Yuletide season.

Drawing Power Needed.

Such advertising power as has the Christmas spirit which a flower store may possess will, it seems likely, be needed this Christmas. No, that is not pessimistic presaging. Everybody anticipates an excellent Christmas; all will do good business. But that clean sweep, that sale of everything in sight, which so gladdens the heart, will not occur without effort on the part of the trade to promote Christmas sales.

Though the department stores in the big cities are doing splendid business, they are not crowded in a fashion the public is accustomed to this close to Christmas. Instead of marking sales tickets up to take advantage of the holiday rush, these stores are marking them down. There is the disposition, quite opposite to that of a year ago, to hang on to one's money instead of flinging it away. The same situation seems to be prevalent in most retail lines.

In this situation there is no cause for pessimism, no reason for gloomy foreboding. There is, instead, need for energetic efforts to encourage purchases of flowers for Christmas. The public is going to buy Christmas gifts, about as many as usual and in a liberal spirit, when the time comes. And they'll buy flowers, if we urge them to. The time calls for activity and energy, more of it than ever, and forceful advertising—one means of which is to make your store reflect the Yuletide spirit.

FEASTS' FEATURE F. T. D.

One of the most ardent workers in behalf of the F. T. D. in Baltimore is the firm of Samuel Feast & Sons. An instance of their efforts in this direction was their recent window display giving publicity to telegraph delivery. In it the F. T. D. emblem was used as the central figure, Mercury speeding on his winged sandals, on top a globe on which the continents were florally outlined. Along the front of the window ran telegraph wires on miniature poles. At either side were huge reproductions of blanks of the two telegraph companies. In the foreground were posters in regard to wire service. Palms, blooming plants and baskets of cut flowers brought forcibly to mind that the subject was not merely telegraph delivery, but the telegraph delivery of flowers. The window was deserving of all the notice and comment it received from those who stopped at 331 North Charles street to view it.

SHIPPING PAPER WHITES.

What is the best method of cutting and packing Paper White narcissi for shipment to market? E. B. E.—Mich.

Cut and tie in bunches of twenty-five spikes with some foliage at back. Make the bunches flat at back. Use some white paper to separate each bunch. Rather shallow shipping boxes, holding single layers, are preferred. C. W.

PLAN FOR HOLIDAY

MEETING CHRISTMAS PROBLEMS.

Plant Shortage Demands Preparation.

A year ago we made preparation for Christmas more carefully than other years on account of missing many varieties of Christmas plants. We have to do so much more this year. Labor conditions are still unsettled, and business conditions are naturally more or less affected. Many large growers in certain sections of the country reduced their growing capacity on account of being unable to secure sufficient coal. Many found certain articles which they grew last year unprofitable in comparison with other articles and are growing stock not used so much for holidays but for other seasons of the year.

The stock available last Christmas in flowering and berried plants was of a different nature from the stock in previous years. The general assortment consisted of araucarias, cyclamens, camellias, begonias, crotons, Pandanus Veitchii, the different varieties of heathers, poinsettias, cherries, oranges and well colored dracenas, with a nominal amount of azaleas, Pyrus Malus and Viburnum Sinus.

Meeting Low-Price Demands.

At one time we had no difficulty in filling orders for small plants in other years, using small azaleas, cyclamens, ardisias or oranges. In later years the price on these plants has gone up continuously. The cheapest plants we could purchase last year were Cleveland cherries at $1.50 apiece wholesale and poinsettias in 4-inch pots with one small, perfect flower at $1.50. The decorating of a plant of this kind where, as in the city of New York, the flower buying public is exceedingly discriminating, can be nothing cheap. People do not want a piece of crepe paper, which looks mussed up within a day or two. We have to use natural green sheet moss to cover the pot, have to decorate the base of the plant with asparagus, pussy willow, etc., and have to use good ribbon on the plant. That almost doubles the wholesale price of the plant. So when we get an order for a $3 or $4 plant for a customer from out of town or a customer calls to buy a plant at a lower price, it is hardly possible to give something good.

Service Builds Sales.

Every plant we sell should add to our prestige. Florists may have prices alike, but do widely varying business. What gives one florist the larger business and increases his sales is the good service which he gives customers. Therefore, when a customer comes to us during the holidays and wants an inexpensive plant and we wish to serve him well, we should not try to sell him a Jerusalem cherry or a small poinsettia or a cheap cyclamen, which will only live a short while, but we should use one of the well colored dracenas, a croton, even a good fern or a Pandanus Veitchii. Decorated prettily with berries or holly, these will last and give pleasure to the customer through their lasting quality. We are able to sell such plants for $4 or $5, and they will give our business more credit than the lower-priced flowering plants.

For "Candy Customers."

We have observed this policy and found that our small customers appreciate our efforts. From year to year we increase our sales on this type of goods and our customers benefit, and the fact that we serve them well brings us more of the same type of customers for this most satisfactory merchandise. We used to call them our candy customers, because they are mostly those who buy flowers during the year and at Christmas send boxes of candy. Flowers and plants were too high in price and out of their reach—but no more candy for them!

These same candy customers used to decorate their tables with holly, greens and artificial decorations, which they saved from year to year until we found out about it. Most of them are now buying their Christmas decorations from us; we taught them how to decorate. We sell them a small wreath of mas tree in the center of the store or in some other conspicuous open space and decorate with florists' materials. About this he should place a few plants and baskets of cut flowers to show off these wares of his. Of course, it goes without saying that the placing of wreaths, holly branches and mistletoe about the store goes a long way towards giving it a Yuletide spirit. The artistic eye of the decorator will enable splendid effect to be made of these materials from the florists' own stock.

Often the retailer has a nook in his store which he uses for a quiet corner for customers. It is somewhat aside from the store's bustle on a crowded holiday, though quite visible to all visitors. Such a nook may be employed in a striking fashion, by putting in it Christmas plants or some other sort of decoration and throwing on the exhibit a special colored light, or a changing series of colored lights. Elaborate vases and cut flowers can be made into artistic pictures of still life.

The Christmas Touch.

On some baskets florists will put a huge red bow, on others none; some arrangements contain much in the way of Christmas greens; others will have none. It should be the practice, on all orders that are holiday purchases, to include some touch that is essentially "Christmasy," such as a sprig of holly in a plant arrangement or a little mistletoe in a corsage bouquet. These small additions to orders really give the holiday business of the florist the distinctiveness that makes the recipients remember and connect the florist's products with the holiday. Large as is the trade done at the close of December, it is little compared with that which may some day be developed for this occasion.

Special wrapping paper will not be generally employed this season, but colored string can be used. If nothing fancier is employed, red string is always to be had. In former years some florists have tied a bit of holly to every parcel which left their stores. The higher cost of these added bits of finish to orders is causing them to be abandoned frequently, but there are still those in the trade who maintain that the few cents these things add to the cost of an order is well spent. The money is as well spent as that paid for advertising space in the local newspapers.

After all, it is every bit of it advertising, and it's a profitable and pleasant way to advertise, for it makes both the florist and patrons feel a little more keenly the gladsome spirit of the Yuletide season.

Drawing Power Needed.

Such advertising power as has the Christmas spirit which a flower store may possess will, it seems likely, be needed this Christmas. No, that is not pessimistic presaging. Everybody anticipates an excellent Christmas; all will do good business. But that clean sweep, that sale of everything in sight, which so gladdens the heart, will not occur without effort on the part of the trade to promote Christmas sales.

Though the department stores in the big cities are doing splendid business, they are not crowded in a fashion the public is accustomed to this close to Christmas. Instead of marking sales tickets up to take advantage of the holiday rush, these stores are marking them down. There is the disposition, quite opposite to that of a year ago, to hang on to one's money instead of flinging it away. The same situation seems to be prevalent in most retail lines.

In this situation there is no cause for pessimism, no reason for gloomy foreboding. There is, instead, need for energetic efforts to encourage purchases of flowers for Christmas. The public is going to buy Christmas gifts, about as many as usual and in a liberal spirit, when the time comes. And they'll buy flowers, if we urge them to. The time calls for activity and energy, more of it than ever, and forceful advertising—one means of which is to make your store reflect the Yuletide spirit.

FEASTS' FEATURE F. T. D.

One of the most ardent workers in behalf of the F. T. D. in Baltimore is the firm of Samuel Feast & Sons. An instance of their efforts in this direction was their recent window display giving publicity to telegraph delivery. In it the F. T. D. emblem was used as the central figure, Mercury speeding on his winged sandals, on top a globe on which the continents were florally outlined. Along the front of the window ran telegraph wires on miniature poles. At either side were huge reproductions of blanks of the two telegraph companies. In the foreground were posters in regard to wire service. Palms, blooming plants and baskets of cut flowers brought forcibly to mind that the subject was not merely telegraph delivery, but the telegraph delivery of flowers. The window was deserving of all the notice and comment it received from those who stopped at 331 North Charles street to view it.

MEETING CHRISTMAS PROBLEMS.

Plant Shortage Demands Preparation.

A year ago we made preparation for Christmas more carefully than other years on account of missing many varieties of Christmas plants. We have to do so much more this year. Labor conditions are still unsettled, and business conditions are naturally more or less affected. Many large growers in certain sections of the country reduced their growing capacity on account of being unable to secure sufficient coal. Many found certain articles which they grew last year unprofitable in comparison with other articles and are growing stock not used so much for holidays but for other seasons of the year.

The stock available last Christmas in flowering and berried plants was of a different nature from the stock in previous years. The general assortment consisted of araucarias, cyclamens, camellias, begonias, crotons, Pandanus Veitchii, the different varieties of heathers, poinsettias, cherries, oranges and well colored dracaenas, with a nominal amount of azaleas, Pyrus Malus and Viburnum Sinus.

Meeting Low-Price Demands.

At one time we had no difficulty in filling orders for small plants in other years, using small azaleas, cyclamens, ardisias or oranges. In later years the price on these plants has gone up continuously. The cheapest plants we could purchase last year were Cleveland cherries at $1.50 apiece wholesale and poinsettias in 4-inch pots with one small, perfect flower at $1.50. The decorating of a plant of this kind where, as in the city of New York, the flower buying public is exceedingly discriminating, can be nothing cheap. People do not want a piece of crepe paper, which looks mussed up within a day or two. We have to use natural green sheet moss to cover the pot, have to decorate the base of the plant with asparagus, pussy willow, etc., and have to use good ribbon on the plant. That almost doubles the wholesale price of the plant. So when we get an order for a $3 or $4 plant for a customer from out of town or a customer calls to buy a plant at a lower price, it is hardly possible to give something good.

By MAX SCHLING.

Service Builds Sales.

Every plant we sell should add to our prestige. Florists may have prices alike, but do widely varying business. What gives one florist the larger business and increases his sales is the good service which he gives customers. Therefore, when a customer comes to us during the holidays and wants an inexpensive plant and we wish to serve him well, we should not try to sell him a Jerusalem cherry or a small poinsettia or a cheap cyclamen, which will only live a short while, but we should use one of the well colored dracaenas, a croton, even a good fern or a Pandanus Veitchii. Decorated prettily with berries or holly, these will last and give pleasure to the customer through their lasting quality. We are able to sell such plants for $4 or $5, and they will give our business more credit than the lower priced flowering plants.

For "Candy Customers."

We have observed this policy and found that our small customers appreciate our efforts. From year to year we increase our sales on this type of goods and our customers benefit, and the fact that we serve them well brings us more of the same type of customers for this most satisfactory merchandise. We used to call them our candy customers, because they are mostly those who buy flowers during the year and at Christmas send boxes of candy. These same candy customers used to decorate their tables with holly, greens and artificial decorations, which they saved from year to year until we found out about it. Most of them are now buying their Christmas decorations from us; we taught them how to decorate. We sell them a small wreath of pinces to place in the center of the table. In the center of it is a small vessel which they fill with a few branches of holly or red berries or with open red roses, two or three short poinsettias or half a dozen red carnations. If we should make such a decoration it would be unsatisfactory to them, for we should have to charge a higher price than it is actually worth on account of the immense amount of work which we have during the holidays and the shortage of labor at that time, but when they make it themselves they enjoy their own handiwork and it looks much better to them than superior work delivered by us. In this way we decrease our orders for small and inexpensive centerpieces during Christmas week and increase our sales on articles which do not cause any extra work. Besides, we are beginning to teach them to use the same kind of decoration for New Year's and we are increasing our New Year's business considerably on cut flowers. The customer who places an order for a table for Christmas is immediately asked, "The wreath you will be able to keep in a cool place for New Year's. Do you wish to have the same flowers and greens sent on New Year's eve?" Most of them place their orders in advance.

Get Out Greens in Advance.

It is a hardship for any florist when orders for Christmas greens, roping, holly and mistletoe have to be filled December 23 or 24. To the announcements we send out to customers for the holidays a card is attached, which has in heavy type, "Christmas green, holly wreaths, etc., will be delivered, well packed, to your residence two days in advance. Kindly order early. Try to avoid our rush and we shall be able to give you better service." Customers appreciate our difficulty in giving satisfaction to everyone and they try to help us. But we have to help them to think of us. If we don't help ourselves, no one will. It is for us to make sure at the holidays that we receive as few complaints as possible, that we have a profitable business and that we make a healthy increase in our sales and profits.

THOSE PRICE LISTS.

I certainly do want to commend Winfield S. Kircher for his stand, in his letter in The Review December 2, on the prices asked by some of the F. T. D. florists from whom we have been receiving price lists. Some of the prices quoted are ridiculously high in comparison with the present market or the probable market at Christmas time.

It seems a peculiar coincidence that this letter should have been published in the same issue as the article, "Check Complaints on High Prices." How can we check complaints when they are in part justified? We shall have to give patrons their money's worth.

S. A. Bouslog.

The complaints of florists' high prices in the public press are directed against all florists and all sorts of flowers. No discrimination is made. To aid such florists as Mr. Kircher and Mr. Bouslog, the article referred to was written—to point out the means of combating this adverse influence in one's own locality. The florists who send out the price lists mentioned would seem to need no such assistance, for they get the prices they ask from their own clientele. All florists do not enjoy that class of trade, however, which will pay whatever is asked, and they must educate their patrons to a better understanding of why flowers are not so cheap as they once were, nor will they ever be again. No matter how reasonable we wish to be, we cannot today give the public carnations at 50 cents a dozen, or roses at $1, and make any money either as grower or retailer. Ed.

ARTIFICIAL CHEAPER ANYWAY.

Failure on the part of the government to appeal from a recent decision by General Appraiser McClelland fixing as correct for appraisement purposes the German home rather than the export prices of artificial flowers imported here from Germany entitles the importers in the case to considerable duty refunds. The findings of the general appraiser are now final and will serve to guide customs officers in assessing duty on future importations of artificial flowers to this country.

The importers convinced Judge McClelland that the prices exacted from American purchasers were fifty per cent in excess of the prices charged to German buyers. Consequently, the general appraiser ordered the collector to re-liquidate the entries on the basis of one-third off the invoiced prices. In reaching this conclusion the general appraiser held to the method outlined in the tariff law wherein it is provided that ad valorem duties shall be based on the home values in the country from which the goods are exported. In the case of German importations this method is operating in favor of the importers, who are paying duty on the lower German prices rather than on the prices charged for export.

PLANTS FOR THE HOLIDAY.

Advising Customers.

We are again approaching the holiday when pot plants are sold in great numbers and in wide variety. The selection may not be so large as at Easter, but will closely approach it. Since this holiday comes, however, when the days are short and the cold likely to be more or less severe, much greater care is needed in the handling of stock, particularly in regard to watering, packing and keeping the plants free from chills and drafts while in the store. It is unfortunate that so few store men know anything about practical floriculture. The writer has often thought, when listening to inquiries from customers regarding the care of various plants and hearing the replies from men who know practically nothing but how to handle cut flowers or make up designs, that it would pay reputable stores to have at least one man who could furnish reliable information. When this idea was suggested to one prominent retailer, he answered that it would hurt his business to do this, because people would then care for their plants better, retain them longer and buy fewer. This reasoning is not convincing. On the contrary, the misinformation too often given, with the speedy demise of so many plants, acts as a deterrent rather than a stimulus for future purchases.

Beware of Frost.

In 1919 we had fairly open weather for Christmas. This is a wonderful advantage, because the plants are far less liable to suffer chills while being delivered. Where deliveries can be made promptly in automobile trucks, many of which are heated, there is not so much danger of loss, but the results are quite different when packages, no matter how warmly wrapped, are turned over to express companies, which, no doubt, do their best, but are overwhelmed with business for Christmas. It is always safe to wrap the plants heavily, no matter what the weather is, as climatic changes often come without warning. Be sure that the pots or pans are covered just as warmly as the plants themselves, for a chilling of the soil, with some varieties, will do almost as much harm as the actual freezing of the plants. Paper is expensive these days, but it is best to stock up on it heavily. It will not take many frozen plants to equal the cost of a ton of old newspapers.

Few Novelties.

There will not be much in the way of novelties for the coming holiday season among foliage and flowering plants. Perhaps a year hence, with a probable modification of Quarantine 37, Europe may be able to send us some fine new azaleas for Christmas, hydrangeas for Easter, and other desirable novelties, but meantime we must worry along with what we have and it is really surprising what a lot of fine material we can produce at home. We shall miss the azaleas, skimmias, aucubas, hollies and other imported stock, but cyclamens, begonias, poinsettias and other plants grown at home are abundant, of sterling quality and likely to give every satisfaction.

Last year Christmas trade broke all records; business then was booming, few were unemployed and wages were high. Present industrial conditions are less bright, securities of all kinds are low and a semi-pessimistic feeling is met far too frequently. Can we, under such conditions, surpass or even equal last year's business for the holidays? At this writing, this scarcely seems possible, and the fancy prices obtained for some plants and flowers a year ago will hardly be equaled now. Still, overhead charges have not yet been reduced in a noticeable degree and florists are justified in asking as much as they did a year ago, although some, no doubt, who do not consider all the circumstances, will tell you that there is no reason why flowers do not drop in the same ratio as wheat, flour, oats, sugar, potatoes and onions. They ignore the fact that florists still pay at least as much for labor, fuel, twine, glass and other such items as a year ago.

Cyclamen Leads Plants.

Among flowering plants, cyclamens will once more be the leaders. These are to be found this season in greater numbers and of finer quality than ever before. When the yard-across specimens in 10-inch pots or small tubs are compared with such plants as we had at Christmas a decade ago, the advance in their culture and popularity is evident and the prices paid today at wholesale would have made growers ten years ago gasp. The big specimens offered are usually 15 to 16 months old, while not a few good plants are no more than 8 or 9 months old. Entirely apart from their flowers, cyclamens are exceptionally attractive. The variegated foliage suggests peperomia leaves facing upward and there is great variety in their marbling. Cyclamens make splendid house plants and can be depended upon to give satisfaction for several weeks in even a warm room if carefully tended. In the store they are less harmed by sharp drops in temperature and drafts than other plants. If you do not sell all your plants during the holidays, remember that they can be kept, if necessary, for three months and that they can even be kept in presentable condition for an Easter as early as we shall have in 1921.

Begonias.

Begonias come next to cyclamens in favor. More of them may be sold than of cyclamens, but, while they may carry a greater profusion of flowers, they have less variety of colorings and are poorer keepers in the store or home than cyclamens. Of the several kinds in commerce, Melior now seems to be in the lead, with Cincinnati next and Mrs. Peterson and Lorraine in smaller numbers, and with a fair quantity of Chatelaine, Mrs. Patten and others of the fibrous-rooted, ever-blooming section. A more limited number of the magnificent English winter-blooming section are offered. These need more heat than our American varieties. Their flowers are as large as those of the summer-blooming tuberous begonias and have a fine range of colors. They are propagated readily from leaves and have better keeping qualities than Cincinnati or Melior. Once their culture is better understood and they become more abundant, they will outclass even cyclamens as Christmas plants.

The Yuletide Flower.

Poinsettias cannot well be dispensed with at Christmas. Their brilliant scarlet bracts are always associated with the yuletide. Their culture, while not especially difficult, is more so than that of many other plants. Vagaries of temperature, careless watering and injudicious feeding will ruin a fine batch in short order. There is no beauty in poinsettias minus most of their foliage, and bungling attempts to hide naked stems with various green plants mend matters but little. Careful watering is especially needed for a few weeks before Christmas. Avoid cold drafts, but gradually lower the temperature for plants with well developed bracts. Sometimes, when plants have been chilled somewhat, a soaking of warm water will help to revive them. While the plants are in the store, never allow water to stand in the saucers, or the foliage will speedily turn golden. When there is a cold wave around the holidays, poinsettias are among the most difficult plants, not only to sell, but to deliver in presentable condition. Retailers, under such conditions, often lose heavily on them. Be sure to wrap them warmly when the weather is cold.

Branched specimens are now popular with the critical buyers. Old stock plants are the best for this purpose. There is only a limited call for the white variety. The rose-colored form sells a little as a novelty, and plenissima, the double scarlet form of pulcherrima, is pleasing, but the overwhelming majority are of the single scarlet variety. When cutting poinsettias, be sure to sear the ends of the stems, either by dipping the ends in boiling water or applying them to hot coals. Then wrap the foliage of each in soft paper and plunge in deep vases of water. Heliotropes, allamandas and euphorbias all keep much better if the bottoms of their stems are seared as soon as cut.

Primulas.

The primrose family is really useful at Christmas, as it can be rather cheaply produced and profitably sold at prices suitable for buyers of moderate means. P. obconica, especially in the red and deep pink shades, is useful and makes a first-rate house plant. Some retailers taboo it on account of the poisoning caused by handling the foliage. P. malacoides also is poisonous, but in a less degree. It is graceful and, while not at its best so early as Christmas, sells well at that time. The pink Townsendii is particularly good. At one time the baby primrose, P. Forbesii, was popular. Now it is seldom seen, as malacoides has outclassed it. Neither are many of the sweet and pretty P. kewensis seen, but P. chinensis and the taller-growing and smaller-flowered form, stellata, are still in favor. It is to be regretted, however, that their foliage is so brittle. All the primulas succeed under cool culture in the greenhouse, store or home and all are ideal for window boxes.

Hard-Wooded Plants.

Azaleas as Christmas plants are now scarce articles and are likely to be even more so unless a revision of Quarantine 37 occurs. A few, however, are being offered, but at fancy figures. Erica melanthera is a welcome plant and a good stock of it is offered. This is the heath par excellence for commercial use. Its propagation and culture are simple. It flowers over a period of several months and there are few flowering plants that last so long, always provided it is not allowed to become dry at the root. Some of the long-tubed ericas also are offered, as well as a few bougainvilleas. Camellias drop their flowers rather easily and are bruised unless carefully packed. There is always a call for them, however, at this season and their popularity is once more on the ascendant. I have noticed one or two plants of Acacia Baileyana in flower. This variety, however, grows too tall for commercial purposes, although the cut sprays are acceptable before the graceful A. pubescens comes in.

Nothing Will Down this Primula, Perennially Popular at Christmas.

To the Patrons Who Ask for Such Arrangements, this One of Poinsettias Will Appeal.

Berried Plants.

There seems to be a shortage of Otaheite oranges this season and their prices rule high. These plants can be depended upon to hold their fruit for a long time. Another beautiful berried subject for Christmas, which also appears to be in short supply, is Ardisia crenulata. This plant cannot be produced cheaply, because several years are needed to get fair-sized, salable plants. On the other hand, the quantity of solanums is greater than ever before and they are wonderfully well berried. Cleveland holds first place and there are improvements on this fine sort. The orange-yellow variety also meets with a good sale. These attractive plants will not hold their fruit and foliage as well as ardisias, but are of easy culture. Christmas peppers are also in the list of berried plants, but in the east the finely berried hollies and aucubas, now debarred, will be missed.

Want New Varieties.

Miscellaneous flowering plants seem more numerous than in former years. The continual demand for something new induces growers to try out plants, occasionally new but mostly old, that are not ordinarily considered for holiday use. Some of these are worthy of the attention of commercial growers, who may not have handled them before. Cinerarias from seed sown late in June are now nicely in bloom and should sell well. Standard heliotropes are by no means new. They are not, perhaps, of a real Christmas color, but their delicious odor always makes them sell. The mauve-flowered Erlangea tomentosa, coming into flower immediately after chrysanthemums, has been mentioned before in The Review; the flower heads resemble eupatoriums and the foliage is pleasingly scented.

Nicely flowered scarlet geraniums are acceptable at this season. The double varieties stand packing and shipping the best. In the way of bulbous plants, Paper White narcissi are abundant in pans and bowls. Last fall was so warm that early-planted bulbs bloomed far ahead of their usual season. Pots and pans of Roman hyacinths are available. So are a good number of Purity freesias, which have needed a night temperature of 52 to 54 degrees for some time.

Many Possibilities.

Linum trigynum, with golden yellow flowers like allamandas, is worthy of more notice. It is an old plant, charming in pots. Gardenias in 5, 6 and 7-inch pots, carrying open flowers and a good number of buds, are excellent for warm rooms, where they will open well, and their perfume is always appreciated. Browallia speciosa major, deep blue, in 4, 5 and 6-inch pots is a lovely plant, of a color always popular among ladies. The dwarf form of Stevia serrata makes a lovely pot plant. Its culture is simple and, if grown cool, it never needs any staking. you do not sell all your plants during the holidays, remember that they can be kept, if necessary, for three months and that they can even be kept in presentable condition for an Easter as early as we shall have in 1921.

Begonias.

Begonias come next to cyclamens in favor. More of them may be sold than of cyclamens, but, while they may carry a greater profusion of flowers, they have less variety of colorings and are poorer keepers in the store or home than cyclamens. Of the several kinds in commerce, Melior now seems to be in the lead, with Cincinnati next and Mrs. Peterson and Lorraine in smaller numbers, and with a fair quantity of Chatelaine, Mrs. Patten and others of the fibrous-rooted, ever-blooming section. A more limited number of the magnificent English winter blooming section are offered. These need more heat than our American varieties. Their flowers are as large as those of the summer-blooming tuberous begonias and have a fine range of colors. They are propagated readily from leaves and have better keeping qualities than Cincinnati or Melior. Once their culture is better understood and they become more abundant, they will outclass even cyclamens as Christmas plants.

The Yuletide Flower.

Poinsettias cannot well be dispensed with at Christmas. Their brilliant scarlet bracts are always associated with the yuletide. Their culture, while not especially difficult, is more so than that of many other plants. Vagaries of temperature, careless watering and injudicious feeding will ruin a fine batch in short order. There is no beauty in poinsettias minus most of their foliage, and bungling attempts to hide naked stems with various green plants need matters but little. Careful watering is especially needed for a few weeks before Christmas. Avoid cold drafts, but gradually lower the temperature for plants with well developed bracts. Sometimes, when plants have been chilled somewhat, a soaking of warm water will help to revive them. While the plants are in the store, never allow water to stand in the saucers, or the foliage will speedily turn golden. When there is a cold wave around the holidays, poinsettias are among the most difficult plants, not only to sell, but to deliver in presentable condition. Retailers, under such conditions, often lose heavily on them. Be sure to wrap them warmly when the weather is cold.

Branched specimens are now popular with the critical buyers. Old stock plants are the best for this purpose. There is only a limited call for the white variety. The rose-colored form sells a little as a novelty, and plenisima, the double scarlet form of pulcherrima, is pleasing, but the overwhelming majority are of the single scarlet variety. When cutting poinsettias, be sure to sear the ends of the stems, either by dipping the ends in boiling water or applying them to hot coals. Then wrap the foliage of each in soft paper and plunge in deep vases of water. Heliotropes, allamandas and euphorbias all keep much better if the bottoms of their stems are seared as soon as cut.

Primulas.

The primrose family is really useful at Christmas, as it can be rather cheaply produced and profitably sold at prices suitable for buyers of moderate means. P. obconica, especially in the red and deep pink shades, is useful and makes a first-rate house plant. Some retailers taboo it on account of the poisoning caused by handling the foliage. P. malacoides also is poisonous, but in a less degree. It is graceful and, while not at its best so early as Christmas, sells well at that time. The pink Townsendii is particularly good. At one time the baby primrose, P. Forbesii, was popular. Now it is seldom seen, as malacoides has outclassed it. Neither are many of the sweet and pretty P. kewensis seen, but P. chinensis and the taller-growing and smaller-flowered form, stellata, are still in favor. It is to be regretted, however, that their foliage is so brittle. All the primulas succeed under cool culture in the greenhouse, store or home and all are ideal for window boxes.

Hard-Wooded Plants.

Azaleas as Christmas plants are now scarce articles and are likely to be even more so unless a revision of Quarantine 37 occurs. A few, however, are being offered, but at fancy figures. Erica melanthera is a welcome plant and a good stock of it is offered. This is the heath par excellence for commercial use. Its propagation and culture are simple. It flowers over a period of several months and there are few flowering plants that last so long, always provided it is not allowed to become dry at the root. Some of the long-tubed ericas also are offered, as well as a few bougainvilleas. Camellias drop their flowers rather easily and are bruised unless carefully packed. There is always a call for them, however, at this season and their popularity is once more on the ascendant. I have noticed one or two plants of Azalea Baileyana in flower. This variety, however, grows too tall for commercial purposes, although the cut sprays are acceptable before the graceful A. pubescens comes in.

Berried Plants.

There seems to be a shortage of Orangethe oranges this season and their prices run high. These plants can be depended upon to hold their fruit for a long time. Another beautiful berried subject for Christmas, which also appears to be in short supply, is Ardisia crenulata. This plant cannot be produced cheaply, because several years are needed to get fair-sized, salable plants. On the other hand, the quantity of solanums is greater than ever before and they are wonderfully well berried. Cleveland holds first place and there are improvements on this fine sort. The orange-yellow variety also meets with a good sale. These attractive plants will not hold their fruit and foliage as well as ardisias, but are of easy culture. Christmas peppers are also in the list of berried plants, but in the east the finely berried hollies and aucubas, now debarred, will be missed.

The graceful, drooping racemes of flowers and their delightful odor make this now well known buddleia a welcome Christmas plant. Euphorbia jacquiniæ-flora, of the same family as the more brilliant poinsettia, is an old plant, beautiful for cut sprays and fine in pots or pans containing several plants each. It is of a real Christmas hue, ranking with the poinsettia in its rich coloring.

Court Awards Damages.

A case of interest to greenhouse men was decided by the Kentucky Appellate court at Frankfort, Ky., in A. J. Humphreys vs. Central Kentucky Natural Gas Co., November 30. Mr. Humphreys, who has a store and greenhouse its people with gas for heating purposes."

Court Implies Contract.

The court held that if the terms of the contract were expressed in the franchise, then the case would be governed by the terms of the contract, but where there is an absence of an express contract "the law will raise an implied and enforceable contract to take the place of the omitted express contract and impose on the company the obligations to render the service that was reasonably within the contemplation of the parties when the contract was made."

The defendant company claimed in this case that the failure to supply the florist was because the gas was supplied to the citizens. In this regard, the court states that when the company secured a franchise it was contemplated it would take reasonable and practicable care and diligence, considering all of the existing circumstances, without discrimination and favor, to render the service required.

The Market.

With the passing of Thanksgiving, business is not so brisk as before the holiday. Reaction comes after every holiday. Mums are now past their zenith and on their downward grade, and only a few of the select and late kinds are to be had. Pompons of the Wilcox variety are still arriving in good numbers, but other varieties suffer the same fate as the larger mums.

Carnations are holding their own in price, now bringing $6 per hundred and going well. Roses are arriving in just enough numbers to take care of the demand nicely. Sweet peas look more promising, which is a welcome development for the retailer.

Snapdragons are arriving in more abundance and always go well. The best bring $12.50 per hundred. Narcissi, both yellow and white, find only a fair market, the white bringing $6 per hundred and the yellow only $8 per hundred. The latter is not a good seller on this market. Violets, baby primroses, Cecile Brunner roses and other miscellaneous stock are selling only fairly well.

Various Notes.

The bowling between the wholesalers and retailers was a wholesale success, the former winning by a margin of twenty points in three games.

C. E. Critchell has received a new shipment of southern smilax.

Julius Baer has been busy with funeral work and debutante parties.

Ira Clark, of Greensburg, Ind., was in town visiting various florists and also buying his winter supplies.

George Buehler, of London, O., was also in the city buying supplies.

Some nicely flowered Swainsona galegifolia alba would also add to the list of holiday plants. Orchids, except cypripediums, are not numerous at Christmas, but C. insignis, including both the ordinary and yellow forms, makes one of the finest of the flowering plants for the home and no other plants will hold their flowers fresh for so long a period.

This is not a complete list of Christmas plants, but it goes to show that, aside from the few largely cultivated sorts, a wide assortment is available. It is to be hoped that some growers, at least, may take courage and try one or more of the aforementioned rarer sorts for another year.

FASHIONABLE FLOWER SHOPS

AVE florists been conscious of the rapid advance made by their trade of late years? I've often wondered if they have," remarked a customer to a florist the other day. Explaining that his particular business had made him observant of all kinds of retail establishments for many years, he added, "It's not the publicity they've had from their slogan that I mean. That is altogether recent. There has been in the last decade, however, a conspicuous improvement in florists' stores and in their methods of business. Today, I should say, no retail shops are finer than some flower shops I've been in. Not all of them, of course; there are leaders and laggards in every profession as in every procession. The leaders among florists' stores, however, surpass the leaders in other retail establishments. Some of your fashionable flower shops are the last word in store architecture."

Leaders.

Have florists noted it? Or does the fact only come to our minds when an outsider calls our attention to it? When he has done so, a little reflection convinces us that he is right. One would not here name those retail flower stores which stand out conspicuously in the various cities of the country; such a list would be invidious. Florists who travel to conventions, if not elsewhere, however, recall those stores whose appearance has given them cause for admiration. The number is becoming larger, for others of the trade are seeing and pondering the success of those shops, and quite frequently a trade visitor goes home afterwards to spruce up his place a bit, even though his town is not large enough to warrant the outlay for such a store as he has seen in the city.

Progress.

The result has been, as the florist's patron remarked, a notable advance in the trade. This, one believes, is only one phase of our progress. It is one, however, that carries much in the way of prestige to the public, which is not generally able to note other lines of the trade's advance.

There is in reality a decided benefit to be obtained by a store that stands out as the home of a business and is not merely the room in which the proprietor displays his stock for sale. If it does nothing more, it adds to the respect of the patron for the wares he buys in such an establishment, and in these days, when prices of flowers are high and must continue high, all of us will agree that this is something well worth while. But it does do more. It is, for another thing, a highly valuable species of advertising. Many of the trade may recall, in this connection, the doughboy who was asked in Paris what he thought of most often in connection with his home city, New York, in his reminiscences of home. Was it the Woolworth tower, perhaps, or the Statue of Liberty, the Hudson river or Brooklyn bridge? No, it was a green spot on a Fifth avenue corner that had impressed itself on his mind, and when he returned he was going to take the bus straight to that famous florist's store. When a shop becomes a landmark, it has, indeed, tremendous publicity value, and in many cities and towns are florists' places which have reached this class. Their appearance, either because of their architecture or exterior ornament or decoration of some sort, has impressed itself indelibly upon the eyes of passers.

Fashionable.

When a flower store has the air of up-to-dateness it derives patronage also because it comes into that category of shops termed by that word so indefinable yet meaningful, "fashionable." Florists of wide experience are respectful of that word and what it denotes. They have seen a difference of a few blocks in location work a marked effect upon clientele. They have seen change in appearance—the alteration of a store front, more pretentious exterior decorations, or rearrangement of interior, not to speak of remodeling or the building of a new store—make notable changes in a shop's trade. panions, so do they prefer to trade at a store that sends some prestige with its wares. That is what is known as a "name" making sales. The quality of stock at a store may be no better than that at the one two blocks down the street, the work may be no better performed, yet the "name" of one draws customers the other cannot get. One of the most potent factors in making a "name" is a flower shop's appearance. Certainly no shop that is not of excellent appearance can be considered in the fashionable class.

How powerful is this motive of fashionableness in winning business is not always appreciated. A prominent figure in the field of advertising merchandising reiterates that if he can put a product into a few of the best homes in a community he can be certain of selling it to a large number of other citizens. The popular desire to be in style, that not so high in value. While a conservatory of mimicry in the human race, sways the majority of buyers of every retailed commodity. It is a potent influence in this trade, and it is aroused by nothing so much as by a stylish store.

Constituents.

If the florist appreciates this quality, he no doubt will recognize the constituents of stylishness in a flower shop. It is not the intention to go into these in detail, for they have been dwelt upon from time to time in these columns, at greater length than would here be possible. Moreover, different situations afford greater opportunities or perhaps restrict them. A shop in a crowded business center cannot be the same as one in a residence district where real estate is not valued so highly. While a conservatory is generally held, nowadays, to add much to a store's sales ability, particularly in plants, yet there are conditions that do not allow this feature and flower shops so restricted are among the most successful.

Large show windows, however, seem to be invariably essential, as much so as comfortably arranged interiors. The presence of chairs and benches arranged for customers' convenience, desks at which to write cards and orders, cases and tables that show, rather than hide, accessories and stock for sale, has been generally accepted as indispensable. One might name more of the features of such stores, but study of stores among the newest and best affords a better means of guiding those florists who wish to advance still farther along this particular path of the trade's progress.

In Kansas City.

interior of the newest and one of the finest stores in Kansas City. The opening of the new store of the Chandler Landscape & Floral Co., Kansas City, Mo., took place Saturday, November 20. It is at Forty-seventh street and Mill Creek parkway. The location is admirably adapted to a shop of its kind, being at the entrance to the country club and in a select residence district, where business is restricted and shops must conform to artistic architectural design. Harmony of line, color and arrangement have been combined in the building and grounds. The store is 50x60 feet, rounded in front, with seven large plate glass windows facing the boulevard on the south and east and Forty-seventh street on the north. It is of cream stucco, in the Spanish style of architecture, with trimmings of blue and brown and a red tile roof. The interior is finished in ivory and soft gray, with sand shade silk hangings. The floor is marble. An icebox with circular front is built in and has a capacity of 900 pounds. Ivory wicker furniture is upholstered in old blue tapestry. Lighting is from the ceiling through ground glass globes. A conservatory opens from the store by means of French doors, giving a full view of pot and foliage plants of all descriptions. Concrete walls, stuccoed in cream color, match the color scheme of the building. The smokestack also is covered with cream color stucco. The conservatory is 25x75 feet. Heating pipes and hangers are bronzed to give added beauty to the place. Cement walks are used throughout, in order that customers may inspect purchases without the usual annoyance of mud and water in the paths.

plants used in decorating the store the opening day. To show their good will for the new store, handsome floral baskets were sent by the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., the T. J. Noll Floral Co., Henry Kusik & Co., the Pinehurst Floral Co., Samuel Murray and the W. L. Rock Flower Co.

The company is incorporated. M. E. Chandler is president and C. A. Chandler secretary and treasurer. Both men have lived in Kansas City for a number of years and stand high in their business. C. A. Chandler was for many years connected with the park board, having charge of the landscape work for the city. The Chandlers have been in their present location four years and commenced the new buildings last summer. One of the new greenhouses will be used for growing carnations. The other two will be for potted plants and bedding stock of all kinds. The company expects to grow mums also next year.

In St. Louis.

At the bottom of page 41 is shown a view of the exterior of the store of the Sanders Nursery Co., St. Louis. This is at 623 Clara avenue, in the heart of the fashionable residential district in the west end. Its quaint style of architecture gives a distinctive tone to the building and marks the store as one that will be remembered. The large show windows serve admirably to draw passers' attention by means of the excellent displays therein. In available nooks in front and at the side of the building are plantings in summer that add to the atmosphere a florist should create.

As will be noted from the illustrations on the following page, the interior of the store of the Sanders Nursery Co. presents a notably homelike appearance, one that impresses itself upon visitors' notice by its comfort and coziness. Pottery is well displayed and proves a profitable side line. Ample refrigerator display space serves to show flowers excellently. Through the back of the store is an unobstructed view of the conservatory, where there is a large showing of plants. The effort necessary to plan and perfect the atmosphere one feels in this store seems to be amply compensated by the excellent class of trade enjoyed at this establishment.

In Atlanta.

Does a store have to be an elaborate structure in a big metropolis to be a fashionable flower store? The answer is no, for in some smaller cities, and in some towns which are given the more pretentious title only in their local newspapers, there are stores handsomely equipped and excellently arranged, whose tone appeals to the upper crust of local society.

Take Atlanta, Ga., for instance. Though it's not so large as Kansas City or St. Louis, and its consumption of flowers is not at all in the same class with that of either of those other two cities, it nevertheless has its fashionable flower stores, not the least among which is that recently opened by the Joy Floral Co. This firm had its success in Nashville and Chattanooga to guide it in the venture into this new territory.

The store, at 548 Peachtree street, was opened November 15. C. J. Harrison went from Nashville to become manager. With him is Miss Carrie Chance. Regular shipments are made each day from the Nashville store. With the new range of glass, which has just been completed there, the supply of flowers is ample at all times to care for all classes of orders.

The exterior of the store, shown on this page, is notable for its ample show windows, in which the display consists of artistically arranged baskets and vases of cut flowers. One plate glass window bears the slogan, while the other carries the F. T. D. insignia, beneath which is again the slogan, supplemented by the words, "By wire to any part of the world in a few hours' time."

Two views of the interior are shown, at the bottom of pages 42 and 43. The furnishings, largely from the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, which completely outfitted this firm's other stores, are effectively arranged. The wicker furniture is convenient and comfortable for patrons, and allows them to survey the offerings in the long icebox at leisure. The lighting, the flooring, indeed, every detail has been carried out to give that air of up-to-dateness, of progressiveness which makes the appeal dwelt upon in this article. Without the elaborate fittings that characterize stores in the bigger cities, this shop makes a similar appeal to the flower buying public panions, so do they prefer to trade at a store that sends some prestige with its wares. That is what is known as a "name" making sales. The quality of stock at a store may be no better than that at the one two blocks down the street, the work may be no better performed, yet the "name" of one draws customers the other cannot get. One of the most potent factors in making a "name" is a flower shop's appearance. Certainly no shop that is not of excellent appearance can be considered in the fashionable class.

How powerful is this motive of fashionableness in winning business is not always appreciated. A prominent figure in the field of advertising merchandising reiterates that if he can put a product into a few of the best homes in a community he can be certain of selling it to a large number of other citizens. The popular desire to be in style, that not so high in value. While a conservatory of mimicry in the human race, sways the majority of buyers of every retailed commodity. It is a potent influence in this trade, and it is aroused by nothing so much as by a stylish store.

Constituents.

If the florist appreciates this quality, he no doubt will recognize the constituents of stylishness in a flower shop. It is not the intention to go into these in detail, for they have been dwelt upon from time to time in these columns, at greater length than would here be possible. Moreover, different situations afford greater opportunities or perhaps restrict them. A shop in a crowded business center cannot be the same as one in a residence district where real estate is not valued so highly. While a conservatory is generally held, nowadays, to add much to a store's sales ability, particularly in plants, yet there are conditions that do not allow this feature and flower shops so restricted are among the most successful.

Large show windows, however, seem to be invariably essential, as much so as comfortably arranged interiors. The presence of chairs and benches arranged for customers' convenience, desks at which to write cards and orders, cases and tables that show, rather than hide, accessories and stock for sale, has been generally accepted as indispensable. One might name more of the features of such stores, but study of stores among the newest and best affords a better means of guiding those florists who wish to advance still farther along this particular path of the trade's progress.

In Kansas City.

interior of the newest and one of the finest stores in Kansas City. The opening of the new store of the Chandler Landscape & Floral Co., Kansas City, Mo., took place Saturday, November 20. It is at Forty-seventh street and Mill Creek parkway. The location is admirably adapted to a shop of its kind, being at the entrance to the country club and in a select residence district, where business is restricted and shops must conform to artistic architectural design. Harmony of line, color and arrangement have been combined in the building and grounds. The store is 50x60 feet, rounded in front, with seven large plate glass windows facing the boulevard on the south and east and Forty-seventh street on the north. It is of cream stucco, in the Spanish style of architecture, with trimmings of blue and brown and a red tile roof. The interior is finished in ivory and soft gray, with sand shade silk hangings. The floor is marble. An icebox with circular front is built in and has a capacity of 900 pounds. Ivory wicker furniture is upholstered in old blue tapestry. Lighting is from the ceiling through ground glass globes. A conservatory opens from the store by means of French doors, giving a full view of pot and foliage plants of all descriptions. Concrete walls, stuccoed in cream color, match the color scheme of the building. The smokestack also is covered with cream color stucco. The conservatory is 25x75 feet. Heating pipes and hangers are bronzed to give added beauty to the place. Cement walks are used throughout, in order that customers may inspect purchases without the usual annoyance of mud and water in the paths.

Three 36x100 pipe-frame houses, heated throughout by gravity steam, were installed by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., which planned and built the entire range. The boiler house is a stucco building. The total cost of the place is between $50,000 and $60,000.

The company is incorporated. M. E. Chandler is president and C. A. Chandler secretary and treasurer. Both men have lived in Kansas City for a number of years and stand high in their business. C. A. #### PITTSBURGHERS ORGANIZING.

Appeal to Retailers of District.

At the reorganization of the Retail Florists' Association of Pittsburgh the following officers were elected:

President, Ira C. Harper, of A. W. Smith Co.

Vice-president, Harvey C. Sheaff, of Mrs. E. A. Williams, Inc.

Secretary, Edward E. Ludwig, of E. C. Ludwig Floral Co.

Treasurer, Gilbert P. Weaklen, of G. P. Weaklen Co.

The president appointed for the advertising committee, Edward McGrath, John McClements, E. L. Weaver; for the entertainment committee, De Forrest W. Ludwig, Miss E. B. Maxwell, Albert Briggs, W. M. Turner, E. H. Carey; for the membership committee, Fred Riegelmeier, William T. Butz, William J. Warwick, Charles E. Nelson, C. G. Ulmer; on Sunday closing, G. P. Weaklen, H. C. Sheaff, E. J. Malone, H. C. Buechler, E. C. Ludwig.

A second meeting, to which the ladies were invited, was a huge success, over forty members of the profession being present. Perhaps it was because of the wives that it was more than an ordinary meeting, or it may have been the dinner arranged by the entertaining committee, but it was an enthusiastic crowd and the future points to a far greater and better organization than has been dreamed of by its reorganizers.

The Sunday closing campaign was probably the hottest item on the program. Everyone seemed to believe in it, but some were reluctant to start it. A motion was made to drop the Sunday closing item from the campaign, but this was not favored, so the committee will continue with its work.

Chas. Nelson, of Wellsville, O., made a motion that the motto, "It can be done," be made the cornerstone of the society's platform. This was seconded with general approval, so hereafter this motto will be connected with "Say It with Flowers" and hung at every meeting.

George Wessenauer, of Sewickley, Pa., had more to say for the benefit of the organization and its members than any other florist present. His illustration of the society being a "grindstone," where the florist can bring his axe for grinding and get it sharpened for the benefit of all, was much applauded.

The advertising committee has offered a plan to the members which puts the local advertising cost on a class basis, divided as follows: Class A florists pay fifty per cent; Class B florists pay thirty per cent; Class C florists pay twenty per cent.

The next meeting will be held January 6, and all florists in the Pittsburgh district are urged to come. W. T. U.

EMPLOYMENT CONTRACT.

According to the decision of the Pennsylvania Supreme court in the case of Stolowitz vs. Roseman, 107 Atlantic Reporter, 322, a written contract of employment may validly provide that the employee will not for a period of one year after the termination of his employment, either directly or indirectly, enter into business in competition with the employer in the same city, nor within such time or within such city enter the employment of anyone engaged in a similar business. The court says that the agreement "is such a partial restraint of trade, being limited both as to time and territory, as will be enforced in a court of equity." S.

OTHERS' AMBITIONS.

Everyone has his own ambitions, his own objects, that he hopes to achieve in the future, but they are not always based upon present performances. They may be dreams, built of air, without foundation. Others' ambitions for us are apt, on the other hand, to be based on the things of which we have already shown ourselves capable. For that reason we often find others' hopes for us come to pass, while not so often those which we hold alone are fulfilled. Others' ambitions for us, in short, are based on past performance, on what has been achieved, on demonstrated ability.

So it is with a publication, and on that account there is something real for others to read besides the hope expressed in the following:

Do the advertisements in the Telegraph Delivery Department of the Review pay and are they read? We say they do and they are! And we hope to see the time when that department will be a complete directory of retail florists. —Reliance Seed Co., Ironton, O., December 4, 1920.

CARE OF THE CUTTINGS

PROPAGATING OWN-ROOT ROSES.

To Propagate or Purchase?

In most establishments roses are propagated for greenhouse forcing between the months of November and March. A florist inquiring as to the best methods of propagation remarks that in his estimation it seems to be cheaper to buy all rose stock than to propagate it. "The only advantage in doing one's own propagating," he says, "is that the plants are on the place when they are needed and destructive rose pests are kept away from the establishment." It must be admitted that the latter part of this statement is important, since in some sections of this country today the plants of some growers are badly infested with midge and another still worse insect which must be kept within bounds.

Whether it is cheaper to buy rose stock or do one's own propagation is something of a question, but many of the largest rose growers today make contracts with reputable propagators to do their grafting or propagating for them instead of doing it themselves, and concentrate entirely on the cut flower end of the business, so as to keep their benches working 100 per cent every day of the year. The stock of every reliable propagator, if grown for sale, is examined once or twice a year by the department of agriculture in his state, and if the stock is clean he gets a certificate from the state to that effect. In buying rose plants, as in buying anything else, one must consider the quality and cleanliness of the stock in considering the cost. Of course it would be better to do one's own propagating than to buy inferior or diseased stock.

Choosing Clean Cuttings.

In propagating roses from cuttings, it is first of all important that the foliage be absolutely free from mildew, black spot or insects. Many growers fail through lack of care in this respect. They do not worry about mildew on their stock because they feel sure they can get rid of it as soon as the plants get rooted. Any grower who benches cuttings infected with black spot, even to a small degree, should know that the black spot will be greatly aggravated and in most cases the foliage will fall off entirely before the plants are rooted.

Granted, then, that one has clean, healthy stock to work on, the cuttings should be made of half-ripened wood. By half-ripened wood is meant wood that is in the stage when the flower bud is ready to cut. This is the simplest description of wood that is ready to be put in the sand. The rose will make roots whether cut above or below a joint. The ideal cut has three eyes, one immediately beneath where the cut has been made, and one or two above the soil. Three-eye cuttings make plants much more quickly than smaller cuttings without the eye below the ground when benched. When a three-eye cutting is used, the plants begin almost at once to produce growth shoots. A plant that does not have a base eye when the cutting is made will not produce ground shoots nearly so quickly or in such quantity as when the cutting is properly made.

Temperature of House and Sand.

The proper temperature at which to keep the house is also important. Many growers blot out the north bench with plant cloth and use this for propagation and it does fairly well. The ideal conditions, however, are in a north house where the winter sun will not affect the temperature, and where the temperature can be kept at 70 degrees in the sand and 65 degrees in the house itself.

Roses can be grown in many ways, but I am speaking now of the ideal way and of the conditions under which own-root roses are propagated most successfully. I may mention in passing that wood from plants that have been excessively fed with nitrogenous fertilizer will give a high percentage of loss in the cutting bench. This is another reason why it sometimes pays to buy from a dealer who makes a specialty of growing young plants, as he would naturally pay more attention to the condition of his wood than to the condition of his flowers. His percentage of strikes in cuttings will be much higher and the resulting plants, even though small, will come along much more satisfactorily than plants grown from overfed stock.

Anchoring the Cuttings.

As to what kind of sand to use, any sand that contains a fair proportion of grit is satisfactory. Some workmen, in putting their cuttings in the sand, are not sufficiently careful to get them properly anchored. It not infrequently happens that where the sand is coarse the operator makes a mark with his knife, puts the cuttings in, presses around the top of the sand and leaves the cuttings suspended at the base. Though a heavy watering may sometimes settle the sand around the base, a little care in putting the cuttings in will be found well worth while.

An inquirer mentions the failure to preserve the foliage on Russell before it makes roots. Russell is one of the most difficult varieties to root and the wood for this particular rose should be much softer than the wood usually recommended for other varieties. If Russell is infected with black spot, one will be only wasting his time in propagating from it, because this disease will take every leaf off the cuttings before they are rooted. As a consequence, not weeks, but months, will be required to get the plants in any sort of condition.

Large Callus, but No Roots.

On some varieties, though they apparently form a callus satisfactorily, the callus gets larger and larger without emitting roots. I have never been able to figure out why this condition appears mostly on varieties like Mrs. Ward and My Maryland. Not infrequently state experiment stations have been deceived and have referred to this callus as crown gall. On one or two occasions, when the foliage kept healthy on varieties like Maryland, I have potted up a plant with a large callus, put it in the grafting case, induced it to produce roots, and eventually have succeeded in restoring the proper balance between the roots and the top.

To sum up the situation, I would suggest to one doubtful about propagating that if his rose plants are in good condition, producing nice crops, it might be better to send his order for stock to a good plant grower and continue with his flowers. If he is in a position where he has to do his own propagating, it might be better to look into the grafting proposition, rather than propagate from own-root plants, particularly in the case of Russell and plants of that character, which are difficult to handle from the own-root standpoint.

Charles H. Totty.

MILDEW ON ROSES.

Would you kindly suggest the best and most effective remedy for mildew on roses for forcing? W. S. C.—Ill.

It is not possible to state in a few words the remedy for mildew. The first step is to remove the cause, which is the condensation of moisture on the plants. Mildew usually follows a fall in outside temperature when the rose house atmosphere is damp and there is no heat on. The leading rose growers keep up steam practically all summer, to maintain constant guard against such a condition.

With the house in the right condition, the spores of mildew are best killed by the use of sulphur. The usual way is to paint the steam pipes with it. If the sulphur burns, the fumes will defoliate the roses.

H. O.

A DUTY FOR ALL.

The florists' trade will have to take on new life. If it does not, artificial flowers will take away its best days. Already Memorial day is nearly fifty-fifty, and more days are drifting that way through the indifference of the florists everywhere.

I find in traveling around New England that a lot of blame is with the florist-grower, wholesaler and retailer alike. You can't imagine anybody's buying artificial flowers made of paper in a factory if they could buy one of nature's most wonderful gifts, real live flowers with their beautiful color and odor, which make the rich buy them and the poor to wish for them.

The way to sell an article or service is to create a demand for it, and the demand can only be made through publicity, advertising not as individuals but as organized bodies. Now, the cost of this publicity should not be borne by a few men in the business. Everybody benefits, everybody should pay part of the cost of publicity.

We read about the florists in one city raising $35,000 to advertise flowers. Awful, is it not? But when you stop and consider that they will make several times that amount in increased demand for flowers it looks quite different.

Everybody has heard about the orange growers and raisin growers, and now the lemon growers are going to spend $1,000,000 for advertising, and everybody will eat more lemons because their advertisements will create the demand. Before the eighteenth amendment went into effect we could say lots of nice things about lemons, but they will through publicity make a better market and get more for their labor.

In a business deal where wit meets wit and sharp dealings are carried on by competition for the other man's trade, we judge it good business, but when a man or combination of men benefit by money spent for advertising and they do not bear their proportional part they are taking something that does not belong to them.

A great number of men are satisfied with a small business. All right, but you must improve that business. You can't stand still as individuals or in a business. You either go ahead or back. You cannot afford to go back, so let's go ahead—grow more, buy more, sell more and make more, make flowers wanted everywhere at all times, bring it before everybody through advertising that they can be had.

This is what one branch of the flower business is going to do. Let all other branches follow suit.

George G. Moyse,

Secretary, New England District,
National Flower Growers' Assn.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Business before pleasure," observed Edward Tracy, of the Rosery Flower Shop, Albany, N. Y. "In other words, business took up so much time at the annual meeting of the Albany Florists' Club that the feast of venison did not take place, but will do so January 6, when the latch string will hang out as usual." The officers elected for 1921 were: President, Samuel R. Hansen, North Troy, N. Y.; vice-president, Henry Eberhardt, Schenectady, N. Y.; secretary-treasurer, Louis Schaefer, Albany, N. Y., and master of ceremonies, Tom Tracey. Following the election a general discussion took place in which both growers and retailers handled the present situation from their respective viewpoints, with the unanimous verdict that only by continuing to pull all together would the desired success continue.

Thanksgiving trade was, taken all in all, quite satisfactory at Albany, N. Y., and, judging from the present outlook, Christmas sales will be in proportion.

Henry W. Bense, of the Schafer Estate, Ballston Spa, N. Y., has a promising crop of carnations in sight following the good demand at Thanksgiving.

Henry Schrade, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., commenting upon the all-the-year-around business now experienced at this popular resort, is well pleased with the outlook. The executive force of self, good wife and two sons is actively employed.

Christian Dehn, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., reports good business. Mrs. Dehn, although suffering from acute rheumatism, keeps constantly at her post, such is her love for the profession.

The John Ralph Estate, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., long recognized as leading this section in Easter lilies, expects to have its usual big supply in due season. Nothing goes to waste in this well managed establishment.

A. J. Binley, Glens Falls, N. Y., has plans for a considerable enlargement of the present range of glass; the matter of labor and material is the only retarding factor. The condition of business fully warrants an extension.

Henry Crandell, Glens Falls, N. Y., views the future of the business through optimistic glasses. Looking at it from all angles with the experience of a veteran, he sees no cause for pessimism.

Frederick Goldring, Slingerlands, N. Y., observed, in reading an account of a loss by fire through spontaneous combustion in the coal pile, "This is the first season in my memory when such a thing was possible; in other words, in other years the fireman was busy stirring it over. A continuation of this mild weather will tend to minimize costs."

MUMS FOR RETAIL GROWERS.

Before planting we wish to know the best varieties of pompons, single spray mums and large mums in white, pink and yellow of early midseason and late varieties for a greenhouse growing for retail business. M. F. C.—N. Y.

It is a difficult task to give a complete list of the best varieties, because varieties vary in different localities and tastes differ markedly, and so varieties that would do well in one market may not do so well in another. The following list is composed of good kinds that seem to give fairly general satisfaction: M. F. C. asks only for the best white, pink and yellow, but I have included bronze, because the last few years have proved beyond a doubt that bronze is more popular than any other color in chrysanthemums. This is accounted for by the fact that this color blends perfectly with autumn foliage.

The last two years we have found that the smaller types produce more money per square foot than the large-flowering kinds, although one must have a proportion of large flowers to make the fall shows and to take care of the people who demand large flowers.

Varieties are suggested in the order of their blooming. The pompons are as follows: White—Mariana, White Doty and Baby Margaret; there are, of course, many other whites in this type, but these are universally popular and one might better grow three good kinds than a dozen of the poorer varieties. Pink—Lillian Doty, Captain Cook and Western Beauty; in this collection Western Beauty will prove particularly valuable for Thanksgiving, as it comes in well for that date. Yellow—Zenobia, Golden Climax and Baby; Baby is the smallest pompon grown, but is wonderfully popular in all sections. If Baby is not large enough, we can suggest in its place, Golden Lida Thomas. Bronze—A. L. Moran, Mrs. Henry Vincent and Mrs. Frank Wilcox; the first two named are comparatively new varieties, but Mrs. Wilcox, or Mrs. Frank Beu, as it is often called, is more largely grown than any other bronze for Thanksgiving.

Singles are particularly valuable when the grower does his own retail

In the large-flowering varieties the list would be: White—Early Frost, Alice Day, Oconto and William Turner. Pink—Unaka, Chieftain, Nerissa and E. Seidewitz. Yellow—Golden Glow, Chrysolora, Richmond and Yellow Turner. Bronze—Bronze Unaka, October Herald and William H. Waite.

This list, of course, can be materially increased, but for the average man starting in business it will be found satisfactory and ample. C. H. T.

HOPPERS DAMAGE MUMS.

I have sent you an animal which eats hundreds of our mums at night. What is it, and how can I get rid of this pest? F. & F.—Wis.

The animal is what we call a hopper. While we have seen a great number of them, we have never found that they eat any flowers. They have done us most damage by skipping over the flowers and bruising the petals. Our greatest trouble from them is after the blooms are cut and standing in water in the cellar. Dampness seems to draw them and they hop about on the flowers, causing the petals to damp. Fumigating with nicotine extract we have found to be the best remedy.

OUTDOOR CHRYSANTHEMUMS.

Will you give me the names of really early mums and pompons which will bloom outdoors with but little protection? P. D.—Ill.

There are several varieties of chrysanthemums that are hardy enough to flower successfully around Chicago. One must not only contend with the early frosts in order to flower them outside, but with the tarnish plant bug as well. These are so destructive to the plants that it hardly pays to bother with outdoor mums. All the chrysanthemum specialists offer a list of hardy varieties and I would suggest that you request them to send you their list.

EXTERMINATE ROOT BORER.

I have just dug up a patch of strawberry plants which were ruined by a light-colored root borer with a reddish brown head and three-quarters of an inch long. I want to plant chrysanthemums in this soil and I should like to know whether this insect would be injurious to them in any way.

K. B. H. M.—Cal.

It certainly would be poor policy to plant chrysanthemums or any other plants on land that is infested with root borers. I would suggest that you sow it down to grass or some field crop until you are sure that it is free from borers.

business. Some varieties do not carry so well when subjected to the harsh treatment accorded them in the market. Those in this list sell well with us and can be depended on for their shipping properties and endurance much more than the average single. These, also, are given in the order of their flowering season: White—Mrs. W. H. Waite, Millicent Piper and Mensa. Pink—Mrs. Buckingham, Mildred Presby and Mrs. E. D. Godfrey. Mrs. Buckingham is a dwarf, a handsome grower, particularly valuable for use in a place where head room is limited. Mrs. E. D. Godfrey is the pink grown practically to the exclusion of every other pink single chrysanthemum for Thanksgiving. Yellow—Vivian Cook, Golden Mensa and Rose M. Daly. Bronze—Ida Katherine Skiff, Richard Delafield and Gloriana; these three varieties will bring in more money than any other color on the entire list.

STROUT'S NEW VARIETIES.

Strout's, Inc., of Biddeford, Me., has commenced to disseminate the new yellow carnation, Maine Sunshine. This is a clear yellow seedling of commercial habits, which originated at Cottage Gardens from a cross of Mrs. C. W. Ward and Crystal White and was purchased, with all other valuable sports and seedlings, by Strout's, Inc., in 1918, when the carnation range at Cottage Gardens was closed.

This yellow has found great favor wherever exhibited during the last three seasons and has proved itself a valuable variety for the trade, aside from its color. The blooms resemble Matchless in size, substance and form. A. C. S. judges have awarded it ninety points at two annual conventions. The Dorner gold medal for the best new variety and the Kerr special prize for keeping after a long shipment were awarded Maine Sunshine at Chicago in January, 1920.

Going out with Maine Sunshine is White Delight, a sport at Strout's in 1916, which has proved itself so valuable that it is used in place of Matchless for the shipping trade. It is an improved Pink Delight in all but color. Its long stems early in the season and steady run of bloom all winter, with the good qualities of Pink Delight, make it a desirable commercial sort. Like many sports, White Delight has more vigor than the original variety, according to Mr. Strout.

ROTATING CARNATION CROP.

We should like to know whether or not it would be advisable to plant carnations in a field where carnations have been planted for three consecutive years. We are also troubled with weeds growing in walks and under our carnation benches. We have to hoe them out several times a season. Is there any possible way to prevent their growth without doing harm to the carnation plants?

S. B.—Ill.

It is considered inadvisable to plant any kind of crop on the same ground continuously for many years. The principal reason for this is that any crop that grows may become affected by some kind of disease, and if the same crop is planted after a disease has obtained a foothold, serious loss is likely to occur. By the practice known as rotating this condition is unlikely to occur, as a disease which attacks one kind of plant will probably not harm another, and by the time the first crop comes around again the disease has probably died out. I have seen carnations planted in the same field a number of years in succession without any apparent harm being done. Care was taken to take off the field any plants that died during the summer. That probably is what made it possible.

The hoe is probably the best means of getting rid of the weeds in your walks and under the benches. There are preparations on the market for destroying weeds in walks, etc., but I have never seen them used in greenhouses.

A. F. J. B.

SLEEPY CARNATIONS.

We have had considerable trouble this fall with sleepy carnations, especially Nebraska, Ethel Fisher, Enchantress Supreme and Ruth Baur. The plants have every appearance of being healthy. Do you think this condition might possibly have been caused by a light application of sheep manure in early October?

G. & S.—Ill.

No harm should have resulted from a light application of sheep manure in October, provided the general growing conditions were right. Also, if only one or two varieties were affected, we might blame the varieties. But inasmuch as all your varieties seem similarly affected, it must be in the culture. October was unusually warm and some varieties might be expected to show signs of sleepiness until cool weather set in, but we have had enough cool weather this month to remedy it.

If your carnations are growing on raised benches, examine the soil at the bottom of the beds and see whether the water has penetrated to the bottom. Sometimes trouble is experienced from that source after firing has commenced, for the reason that, in watering, no allowance was made for drying out from the bottom, due to the heat from the steam pipes. Lacking full details of the conditions under which these plants are growing, we can only suggest that you make every effort to keep the growing conditions as near ideal as possible. Give abundant ventilation on all favorable occasions. Keep both night and day temperatures steady and water judiciously. Avoid all feed that is rich in nitrogen until the trouble has entirely disappeared. Then, if your soil is right, you should have no such trouble as you complain of.

A. F. J. B.

BROOD OF RED SPIDERS.

I am sending you a carnation plant that has some sort of disease. Do you think that it is a case of rust? If so, what is the cause of it, and what is the best treatment?

M. H. L.—Ind.

The only thing wrong with the specimen submitted is a healthy brood of red spiders. Get busy with the hose while there is still time before winter weather sets in. This warm fall weather has been favorable to this pest wherever preventive measures were not employed. Use all the force at your command and syringe the plants thoroughly from both sides two or three times weekly if the weather remains bright. Salt water is one of the best remedies for spider, if used as has been frequently recommended in these columns.

A. F. J. B.

More Ways.

If you consider her a wise girl, say it with sage.

If you think her cold, say it with snowdrops and freesias.

If you desire to marry her, say it with a poppy.

If you know she has a sweet tooth, say it with candytuft.

If she impresses you as a sad girl, say it with rue.

If she is of a happy, joyous nature, say it with gladioli.

Getting Literal?

"Had a quarrel with my wife this morning."

"Aw, send her a floral token; 'Say It with Flowers.'"

"All right. Where can I buy some Spanish bayonet or some cactus?"

Can You Do it?

This Joke's a Lemon.

The New York Times reports the birth, at Flower hospital, of a son to Mr. and Mrs. A. Seed. "Wonder," comments a joker, "what Poppy Seed said?" Fred H. Lemon, Richmond, Ind., responds, "If A. Seed's first name is Apple, he probably said sonny was A. Baldwin."

Well, Letters Aren't so Safe.

"What are all these withered blossoms?"

"Evidence in the case, your honor."

In the Seed Store.

"Say! Did you hear that England is going to give Ireland to France?"

"No. What for?"

"To make Paris green!"

"Well, if that makes Paris green, won't the returning American soldiers with French wives make Bordeaux mixture?"

Damn!

"Say It with Flowers," the signboard lowers, Jarring on rustic scene.

Obedient I murmur, enigmatically,

Aurora, Ill.—Fire visited the establishment of J. M. Smely about 10 o'clock in the morning of November 18. The blaze originated in the boiler shed, which was totally destroyed, but good work by the fire department saved the greenhouses and surrounding buildings. Only one greenhouse was seriously damaged. Mr. Smely estimated his loss at about $3,000.

Atlanta, Ga.—John Weinstock, proprietor of the Weinstock Flower Shop, recently returned from Europe, where he and Mrs. Weinstock spent their honeymoon. Charles City, Ia.—Ray W. Ferris, of Hampton, Ia., has purchased the greenhouses recently owned by W. H. Wetherbee, and took control December 1. The property was recently sold to Sanders Bros., of Rudd, Ia., in exchange for a farm. They, in turn, disposed of it to the present owner, who conducts a nursery at Hampton. It is probable that for this winter, at least, Mr. Wetherbee will have charge of the growing.

There are sixty blocks of paved streets and a variety of prosperous industries, including three banks with combined deposits of nearly $4,000,000. Three drug stores handle flowers, obtained from Topeka, Kansas City and other points, but it often happens that, when flowers are wanted, all three druggists are out or shipments fail to arrive as expected.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

PREPARATIONS indicate florists' anticipation of a banner Christmas.

LARGE quantities of artificial flowers are being received from Germany.

BEFORE long florists will be able to buy wrapping paper and other paper at lower prices.

NEW YEAR'S is regarded by many as likely to be the turning point in the industrial situation.

WILLINGNESS to resume buying is noted in some mercantile lines, denoting a resumption of business activity that florists will welcome.

OFTEN a florist's views are the result of his own business situation. A cemetery florist sees many things differently than does the downtown store proprietor.

FLOWERS never should be "cheap." If they are, the industry never will get beyond the hearthstone class, with the family living on the place and doing all the work.

UNEMPLOYMENT is not affecting the trade much in the west, outside of automobile manufacturing centers. Eastern and particularly New England florists are less fortunate.

DIFFERENCES of opinion, it used to be said, make a horse race. If they are discussed honestly and calmly, they also make progress. Sometimes the other fellow's way has some good in it.

It would be a mistake to hold off too long on orders for supplies of staple materials in the hope of lower prices. No business can remain at a standstill and others' retrogression will affect us all.

KNOCKING one's competitor is bad business. First, it makes an unfavorable impression on the listener. Second, if one is busy picking flaws in somebody else, he is apt not to give proper attention to remedying the few he has himself.

WHY is smoking, by proprietor, manager or employees, permitted in first-class flower stores? Where much thought and money have been spent to create a favorable impression, is anything gained when Mrs. Gotrocks finds a "sleeper" on the desk when she sits down to write a card? Why not limit My Lady Nicotine to the spaces behind the scenes?

It is yet to be seen whether the change in administration will affect horticultural importations.

BANKS are becoming increasingly generous customers of florists. Conservative in many respects, they are the most progressive of professions in recognizing the value of our product in business.

QUALITY is the thing most needed in the florists' business. "Trifles make perfection, but perfection is no trifle," said Michelangelo, master of many arts. The nearer we approach perfection the stronger our position, both individually and as a trade.

THE total production of soft coal during Thanksgiving week declined, but the rate per working day increased. The estimated output was 11,416,000, the largest in any Thanksgiving week of the last four years. In 1917 the output was 10,565,000 tons; in 1918, 9,565,000.

CARE should be taken to give street and number on everything going through the mails. In ante-Burleson days it was the boast of the postoffice that it could and did supply the omissions and correct the errors of the public, but now the idea is to do as little as possible in those directions.

WE MUST PUSH HARDER.

Said a member of the trade the other day: "Florists will have to do more actual selling to dispose of their stock this season. No sales ability was necessary during the last two seasons, when the flu raged and people took all the flowers one had right out of his hands. We shall have to become real merchants, real salesmen of our products."

Similar opinion is held by others, who regard the approach to normal conditions and the continued high cost of flowers when other commodities show a decline, as evidence of a time when buyers must be sought for instead of their seeking the sellers. These persons look for a continuation of good business for those florists who will work to get it. In short, it will not be enough to have flowers in the icebox; the florist must have the ability to sell them.

This is a progressive view, not a pessimistic one. It recognizes a need before it is on us, and enables us to prepare to meet it. Good business is continuing and will continue. We must all push harder, however, to keep it up to the profitable basis where we would have it.

READJUSTMENT.

The greenhouse industry finds itself in a condition which is the effect of the business conditions of the last three years and whose remedy is balked by the present industrial situation. Shortage of workers and the high price of building materials have caused a cessation of growth in glass area, if not a decline, until many florists fear hindrance of the trade's progress by underproduction. Yet, while growers realize the necessity of more glass, they are hesitant to make contracts with the builders or for material, lest they find that they have bought on the verge of a falling market and later sustain a loss.

This feeling is the same as that prevailing generally and producing a business apathy unheard-of for many years in the weeks just prior to Christmas. It is purely a psychological attitude, for which few can give a logical reason.

The general belief is, however, that this sentiment will not last till spring; it will change to activity when 1921 arrives. There is even danger then of a press of orders, an urgent demand, which will send up prices in the lines affected, reacting to the disadvantage of those now waiting for more favorable prices. It is not safe to hold off too long; either a sudden strong demand, sending up prices, or shutdowns, resulting in bread lines, would be undesirable and unhealthy.

ENCOURAGEMENT.

In the various phases of business there are signs that give encouragement to florists in regard to the prospects for the coming year's business. Despite the present commercial languor there is an optimistic tone in the outlook as noted in reports of the situation. Last week Dun's said:

"Signs of betterment in business and sentiment, if slow to appear, are rather more distinct in certain quarters. The retail movement, although lacking the desired breadth, is accelerated as the holidays draw nearer, and some primary markets are recovering a little from their lethargy. Yielding prices invariably place a temporary check on operations, but there is usually a point at which buyers' interest will be re-awakened, and this basis is apparently being approached in some leading lines. Yet the whole situation is uneven and uncertain, as is natural in a time of readjustment, and the general policy is one of deferring important action until conditions become more stable.

"After the turn of the year, when results of inventorying and Christmas trade shall have been made known, the future business outlook may seem less obscure. The groundwork for subsequent improvement is being laid during the present transition, and the year's grain and other harvests, while not measuring up to some previous standards in money value, are fortunately abundant in quantity. Recognition of this fact gives rise to confident expectations, and the indications of relaxation from the monetary tension, which may become more definite after the year-end settlements are completed, also afford a reason for encouragement."

ONE THING AFTER ANOTHER.

Rome was not built in a day, nor can one reach the whole trade except by continuous effort. It takes time even when the article is advertised by those who use it, like this:

I enclose $4 to pay for The Review two years in advance, as I find it as necessary for the business as bread and butter are for the individual. —Michael Mandl, St. Paul, Minn., November 24, 1920.

If one has the ability to satisfy and hold his customers, any business will grow as the news goes 'round, like this:

The sample copy we asked for has been received; it's a dandy; The Review is just what we want; enclosed find check for a year's subscription. —G. W. Gardiner & Sons, Fall River, Mass., November 26, 1920.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Mrs. J. B. Freeman Crause.

Mrs. J. B. Freeman Crause, known generally to florists as Mrs. J. B. Freeman, died suddenly Monday night, December 6, at the home of George Beitell, 910 Fernwood avenue, Toledo, O., where she lived. She had been at her store all day, and upon returning home in the evening remarked that she was feeling unusually well. With her husband, she had been discussing a proposed vacation in California. While preparing to retire she collapsed and died before the arrival of a physician. Heart disease was said to have been the cause.

Mrs. Crause, under the name of Mrs. J. B. Freeman, had for ten years conducted one of the leading flower shops in Toledo, at 336 Superior street. She bought the business in September, 1910, from George Heintz, with whom she had been connected in business, it was said at that time, for thirty years. She had a considerable reputation as a designer and decorator and her energy was the subject of much comment and admiration. One of the most enterprising in a city of live florists, she was widely known throughout the trade and everywhere highly esteemed.

Mrs. Crause was 58 years of age. Besides her husband, she leaves a grandchild, Eleanor Potts.

William H. Wyatt.

It was a great shock to the floral world of Philadelphia on the morning of December 1 when it became known that William H. Wyatt had died suddenly of heart failure in his store on the afternoon of the day before. Following so closely on the death of Mrs. Wyatt, which occurred that morning after a long illness, Mr. Wyatt's death seemed even more tragic.

For more than thirty years "Billy" Wyatt, as he was called by his comrades, carried on a retail florists' business at 236 North Thirteenth street. He had many warm friends, who were exceedingly fond of him and always looked forward with pleasure to his visits to their stores or greenhouses. Sometimes he was accompanied by Mrs. Wyatt and their two daughters. Their presence added to the pleasure of the visits.

Mr. Wyatt was a member of many societies. Possibly this may explain the fact that he built up a strong business in what was not generally supposed to be a good flower neighborhood.

The funeral, which was largely attended, took place Friday, December 3. There were many beautiful flowers. Mr. Wyatt was 64 years of age.

William H. Lutton.

William H. Lutton, founder of the William H. Lutton Co., greenhouse builders, New York, died Tuesday, November 23, at his home at Ridgewood, N. J., as the result of an automobile accident early in November.

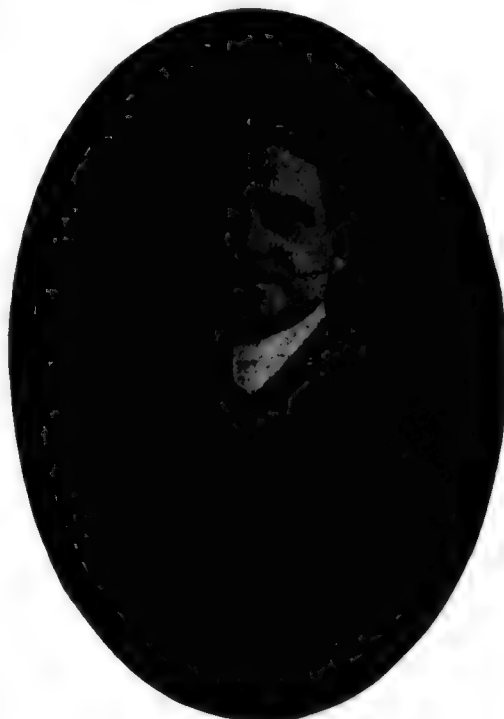

Mr. Lutton was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., forty-four years ago. He received his early training in greenhouse heating under the late Samuel Burns, of Thomas W. Weathered & Sons Co., and in 1900 went into business for himself, incorporating in 1914 and serving until recently as president and general manager. Mr. Lutton was an indefatigable worker, always on the alert for new ideas and improvements; and because of his sterling qualities, progressiveness and thorough knowledge of his business, enjoyed an enviable reputation as one of the foremost authorities on the construction and heating of greenhouses.

Mr. Lutton is survived by his wife and daughter, his mother, and six brothers and sisters. The funeral was largely attended by his many friends and brother members of the local lodge No. 211, B. P. O. E., Jersey City, of which he had been a popular member for many years. Interment took place Saturday, November 27, in Bay View cemetery, Jersey City.

J. W. Gurley.

J. W. Gurley, for twelve years in the florists' trade at Newnan, Ga., died at his home there October 20. Mr. Gurley was well known among members of the trade in Georgia. He leaves a wife and son, who are carrying on the business.

Julius Schumann.

Julius Schumann, one of the pioneer florists of Newport, Ky., and well known to most of the older florists of Cincinnati, O., died at the age of 73 years at his home, on Alexandria pike, Newport, Ky., Sunday morning, November 28. Death was due to pneumonia, which was the culmination of an illness of more than twelve years, during the last few years of which he was practically helpless.

Mr. Schumann's entry into the florists' business dates back nearly fifty years, at which time he started a small place at Bellevue, Ky., just across the river from Cincinnati, O., and later removed to Newport, Ky., on the Alexandria pike. Previous to his death he had not been active in business for about twelve years, having been forced to retire on account of his illness. The greenhouses were, upon his retirement, turned over to his two sons, William and Edward Schumann, who conducted the place for a few years.

Later, William built a range of greenhouses for himself immediately adjoining his father's place. The old establishment is now conducted by Schumann & Wahlers, his youngest son and his son-in-law. The deceased is also survived by a widow and two daughters. At his wish, his body was cremated at the Cincinnati Crematory, in Clifton, O.

Mrs. Edward Leizman.

Mrs. Edward Leizman, of Latrobe, Pa., died Friday evening, December 3, after an illness that had not left her since last fall. Mrs. Leizman had been in the retail florists' business in Latrobe for over ten years.

T. E. Johns.

T. E. Johns, of Wixom, Mich., a director of the Sioux City Seed Co., Sioux City, Ia., died December 7 at the old family homestead near that place. He was for many years superintendent of the pea and bean growing business of the Sioux City Seed Co. in Michigan, with headquarters at Millington, but for the last few years had lived a retired life on the old family homestead.

He is survived by his brother, H. A. Johns, of Sioux City, and his nephews, H. B. Johns, of Millington, Mich., and W. E. Johns, of Sioux City, who are active members of the company. He was married in early life to Loretta Beal, who died many years ago. He was born January 5, 1845, and raised on the homestead where he died.

Mr. Johns was a man of sterling integrity and deep-seated convictions, of independent mind and a lovable character, highly loved and esteemed by his neighbors and everybody who came in touch with his life.

The Market.

There is no complaint as to the business of the last week; it was excellent. It is true, however, that the splendid volume of shipping orders accounted for a larger part of the total than it should; the local retail trade is not so active as we would like to see it.

It seems that the Chicago market is being specially favored this season; prices are not so high here as they are reported to be at some other places, but a larger number of buyers than ever before are drawing their cut flowers from this center and are maintaining a steady business of excellent volume.

Weather conditions last week were not all that could be desired. There were warm days and wet ones, not at all conducive to maintaining the high quality of stock for which the season has been noted. One and all, the trade hopes for clear, cold weather from now till Christmas.

The market has been cleaning up in good shape each day, but of course where such great quantities of stock are being handled the iceboxes never are actually empty. Recently they have held few roses or carnations, but quite a few mums at night. There are quite a few late mums, this year, principally Helen Frick, and they are not in such strong demand as might have been expected. Apparently the public has been surfeited. On the other hand, late pompons still sell well. There never has been a variety of greater value to the

Mrs. J. B. Freeman Crause.

Mrs. J. B. Freeman Crause, known generally to florists as Mrs. J. B. Freeman, died suddenly Monday night, December 6, at the home of George Beitell, 910 Fernwood avenue, Toledo, O., where she lived. She had been at her store all day, and upon returning home in the evening remarked that she was feeling unusually well. With her husband, she had been discussing a proposed vacation in California. While preparing to retire she collapsed and died before the arrival of a physician. Heart disease was said to have been the cause.

Mrs. Crause, under the name of Mrs. J. B. Freeman, had for ten years conducted one of the leading flower shops in Toledo, at 336 Superior street. She bought the business in September, 1910, from George Heintz, with whom she had been connected in business, it was said at that time, for thirty years. She had a considerable reputation as a designer and decorator and her energy was the subject of much comment and admiration. One of the most enterprising in a city of live florists, she was widely known throughout the trade and everywhere highly esteemed.

Mrs. Crause was 58 years of age. Besides her husband, she leaves a grandchild, Eleanor Potts.

William H. Wyatt.

It was a great shock to the floral world of Philadelphia on the morning of December 1 when it became known that William H. Wyatt had died suddenly of heart failure in his store on the afternoon of the day before. Following so closely on the death of Mrs. Wyatt, which occurred that morning after a long illness, Mr. Wyatt's death seemed even more tragic.

trade than Mrs. Beu. Sunshine, grown by the disbudding method, has been more abundant than in any previous season and the principal handlers rarely have been cleaned out during the last fortnight.

Sweet peas have felt the sunless days and have lost color as well as dropped buds. There are extremely few flowers now on the market that are well adapted to corsage use. There is a carefully regulated supply of valley, but cattleyas almost are what the high school kids call non est comeatable. There are few violets.

The greens situation shows little change. There is enough asparagus so far this season. Boxwood is not in as large supply as in other years. Good holly is reported extremely scarce. Red berries are fine.

Christmas Prospects.

Of course the size and, especially, the quality of the Christmas supply depends to a large extent on the weather conditions during the next two weeks. Given ordinarily favorable weather, this market has the prospect of an unusually large and fine supply of roses. Columbia will be the leader, several of the largest growers and numbers of smaller ones reporting that their crops of it seem perfectly timed. Premier will occupy second place, with good crops also of the less largely planted sorts. The comparatively small supply of Beauties again will draw eastern Beauties here. Russell will be less abundant than in recent years and there will be comparatively few red roses, Richmond having been dropped by nearly everyone, while only a few have succeeded well enough with Milady to have maintained their plantings of it this year.

Carnations will be in fair crop, but the quantity of plants on the benches is less than in any recent year. The idea of price runs all the way from 8 cents for ordinary white to 18 cents for Ward and red, but few wholesalers will take orders for other than assorted colors. There will be few sweet peas and fewer violets; probably there will be a smaller supply of violets than for many years. There will be poinsettias as usual, more pompon mums than ever and about the usual Christmas supplies of valley, lilies, Paper Whites, etc. Cattleyas will be extremely scarce.

As for the demand, there is general belief that it will break all records. Christmas pot plants are decidedly limited locally in quantity and variety and this is thought to be the condition throughout the country. It is sure to increase the calls for cut flowers. Then, too, shipping demand is showing another increase this year in spite of various unfavorable conditions, and the early orders for Christmas are more numerous than ever.

As an indication of the trend of the demand, one of the leading houses states that the average price on the first 10,000 roses booked for Christmas delivery figured out at 32 cents.

Mr. Schupp, Jr., Advances.

Roswell Schupp has been appointed manager of the business of the J. A. Budlong Co., taking the burden of routine duties off the shoulders of his father, Philip C. Schupp, who, with Mrs. Schupp, has gone to Florida for a vacation. Young Mr. Schupp, for he is only 25 years of age, has been associated with his father in the business for nine years

For Christmas

We are offering a choice lot of stock and ask that orders be placed as early as possible. From present indications there will be a shortage of flowers in all lines, especially roses; but we expect to have enough to fill all advance orders.

A. Henderson was born December 9, 1875.

A. J. Zech, native Chicagoan, was born December 9, 1884.

Christmas Decorations.

W. D. Matthews, head of the inspection department of the Chicago Board of Underwriters, which has offices in the Insurance Exchange, 175 West Jackson boulevard, has called attention to the risk of electrical installations in connection with Christmas decorations being made by persons without proper knowledge of the necessary precautions. He has addressed to some members of the trade the following letter:

At this season of the year we take the liberty of calling your attention to the fact that the installation of electric wires and lights in the vicinity of inflammable decorations, as used in show windows, and other decorative features, has been the cause of innumerable fires with more or less serious results. These fires almost invariably arise from the practice of allowing employees not familiar with the electrical hazard to install lamp cord, fuses, motors, flashers, miniature lamps in series on 110-volt circuits, cotton batting and tinsel in contact with lamps

Christmas tree outfits will not be allowed to be displayed in show windows or stores. Lighted outfits may, however, be displayed in electric shops and similar places, provided an approved fire extinguisher is handy. The use of Christmas tree outfits is encouraged for dwellings and churches to eliminate the Christmas candle hazard. Electrical toys may be operated from

Club Meeting.

There was a nice little flower show at the meeting of the Florists' Club at the Randolph hotel December 9. It was the night of the annual election, but the excitement of a contest was lacking. The following were elected unanimously:

President, Joseph Kohout; vice-president, A. T. Pyfer; treasurer, A. H. Schneider; secretary, F. Lautenschlager; trustee for three years, August F. Poehlmann.

Various Notes.

Andrew Benson has joined the forces of Paul Weiss and associates, having taken charge of the growing at the Premier Rose Gardens, succeeding David Lundin. Mr. Benson, it will be recalled, until recently was with the Lombard Floral Co.

The Albert F. Amling Co., at Maywood, is preparing to "cash in" at Christmas, having timed the Columbia just right for a full cut. It is said the company has the world's largest planting of Columbia. Good crops also are in prospect in other sections of the place.

W. A. Hansen left last week to spend a fortnight swinging around the circle of the customers of the E. C. Amling Co., from Des Moines, St. Paul, Detroit, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati and St. Louis.

The first fruits of the recent election, so far as florists are concerned, ripened this week. Many of the newly elected officials were inducted into office December 6. Nearly all of them received flowers and several received huge quantities of them. The new state's attorney received more than 100 baskets and good luck designs, some of them repremand for flowers was much smaller than now, the Chicago market sold great quantities of long Beauties at Christmas, at $10 to $15 per dozen. One Christmas our own house alone sold 23,000 Beauties, most of them long. These flowers are not now available in such quantity and their place is taken by the best grade of Premier, Milady, Russell and Columbia. It is not right to compare present 50-cent and 75-cent roses with 25-cent Killarneys of the old days. Compare them, instead, with the dollar Beauties we used to sell in quantity; they go to the same stores and to the same consumers."

According to the Weather Bureau, November was not a favorable month for the growers. The mean temperature was 1 degree above normal, but, most important, there was only forty-five per cent of the possible number of hours of sunshine, which is three per cent less than the average for November over a series of years.

A. Miller has returned from a week's visit to customers of the A. B. C. in the vicinity of Cleveland.

Wendland & Keimel Co., at Elmhurst, pinched out a crop of Premier to throw it right for Christmas. About 7,000 plants were so treated and W. J. Keimel estimates they will have about 19,000 long-stemmed flowers on them to cut during Christmas week.

It is the belief of E. Wienhoeber that Mme. Butterfly will displace Ophelia, of ness at Kansas City. He gives every appearance of health and prosperity.

Among the week's visitors have been that pair of well known New Yorkers, Paul Dailedouze and Frank H. Traendly. Mr. Traendly still thinks the New York flower market is the greatest in the world, but admits he finds many things here that interest him.

Frank Goacher (with apologies for the spelling, if it isn't right), representing the J. M. Gasser Co., of Cleveland, was reported in the market this week.

Miss Helen Patten, the well known Toledo retailer, spent November 7 in this market, buying for Christmas trade.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

This is the between-holiday time, when the cut flower business runs along quietly, but everyone is getting ready for the big holiday of the year. Chrysanthemums have finished and it is a good thing, as it gives other stock a chance to clean up. Retailers say they are not busy and are now getting time to prepare for Christmas.

Carnations seem to be scarce. For some reason fewer carnations appear on this market each year. Violets, also, are among the flowers that are not much in evidence this season, and few have appeared on the market so far.

Various Notes.

There is considerable complaint from the lily growers that the cold storage bulbs are not turning out successfully. There are so many poor bulbs, they claim, that it is doubtful if they can get purchase money out of their ventures.

The Pittsburgh Retail Florists' Association held its monthly meeting Thursday evening, December 2, at the Oriental restaurant, Liberty avenue. A pleasant and enjoyable evening was spent. Sunday closing was the question under discussion and the sentiments of the out-of-town florists were that Sunday closing would not be profitable to them. The local florists, however, expressed the opinion that Sunday closing would be possible.

The Market.

With a shortening in the general supply, the flower market held its own fairly well throughout last week. It could not be said that there was any improvement in the demand; in fact, sales were away below the normal mark. A good many retailers say that they cannot make sales on the present high cost basis, but others not noted for their low selling prices say that the public is not buying to the ordinary extent and that this is in line with the experience of other industries. When people enter a store evidently interested as prospective purchasers, ask prices and walk out again without purchasing, one can believe that something is wrong, and this happens daily in scores of stores, in spite of the lure of good salesmanship. It remains to be seen, as the holidays approach, whether this is a mere temporary condition or one which must be faced from now on. Certain it is that a much smaller quantity of flowers is being used, and if ever some smart local publicity would be useful, it is right now.

While roses are in somewhat better supply, arrivals are not at all heavy. The quality generally is fine, particularly in the long-stemmed grades. The movement of all roses is slow. American Beauty is in quantity quite sufficient for the demand, at $35 to $75 for the special grades. Hybrid teas are bringing $3 to $30, the latter figure for the best grade of Premier, Columbia, Russell and Crusader. Hadley in the same grade reaches the $40 mark, and Key $60. Premier, among the pinks, is showing to fine advantage.

Carnations are not overplentiful, but drag at $4 to $8. Short-stemmed stock is still noticeable, but flower heads generally are of good size.

The supply of orchids is not large, but they do not seem to meet with ready sale at $35 to $150 per hundred. Oncidiums, at $4 to $8 per hundred, also are not active in their movement. Lily of the valley is in fair supply at $5 to $12 per hundred sprays. Easter lilies are a little more plentiful, but move slowly at prices asked, as do rubrums. A few short-stemmed gardenias are coming in.

The supply of sweet peas is not large, due to the long spell of dark weather, which has caused bud-dropping to a considerable extent. The price range is $2 to $3 per hundred sprays. Chrysanthemums continue to arrive, with Seidewitz the most prominent variety; the demand for them is light, and much stock stales; fresh flowers bring as much as $6 per dozen, and others scale down to $3. Quantities of singles and pompons arrive with the others and meet a fair demand.

There is a moderate supply of miscellaneous flowers, including pansies, calendulas, bouvardias, snapdragons, daisies and stevia. Bulbous flowers, chiefly Paper White and Soleil d'Or narcissi, are arriving in increased quantity, but do not meet with much demand. Amaryllis is taken as a subject for window display, as also is strelitzia.

and this year the fruiting is remarkable. A small block of Saintpaulia ionantha, splendidly flowered, is an unusual sight, and a novelty as a Christmas plant. The violet-like flowers, deep blue, among the compact primula-like foliage, are pleasing. There are many other plant subjects to be seen at Miller's, including several begonias not usually coming under notice. Somehow, begonias seem to be prime favorites of the worthy president of the S. A. F. and it is quite evident that he grows some of the varieties for his own pleasure. A number of specimen plants of Plumbago capensis are seen, and among the primulas there is a big stock of malacoides, Townsendii variety. Apart from the plant stock intended for immediate sales, the stocks of dormant material for follow-up use seen in the various storehouses at this establishment would lead one to suppose that Mr. Miller does not intend that one square inch of his glass should go unemployed for months to come.

The flower business from all standpoints is slow in this locality and, up to the present, there does not appear to be much Christmas spirit felt. There are those who fear that the Christmas business this year will be poor, judging from the large numbers of people out of work, but this cannot be relied on entirely. Business conditions up to a few days before Thanksgiving were poor, but Thanksgiving business turned out to be excellent. So Christmas busi-

PHILADELPHIA

The Market.

The week of November 28 to December 4 was less active than its predecessor. There was a smaller supply of flowers and a decidedly lighter demand for them. The social season is in full swing. There are balls and parties and dinners and entertainments of all kinds. Most of them require flowers of some sort, yet the market is so large that even all this entertaining is not sufficient to make activity in the absence of a general demand. And there is no general demand. The few florists who are termed fashionable, those who serve the 400, are awfully busy. They have all they can possibly do. The many florists who serve the 400,000 or so are not busy. Many of them are quite the reverse. They are getting their Christmas plants and making up their Christmas hampers.

With the advent of December the leading retailers told their customers that chrysanthemums were getting poor, diverting the demand to roses, now coming into season. It is just as well, as, with the exception of fine white, useful in decorations, and belated pink, chrysanthemums are much nearer to being over than seemed possible ten days ago. There are still a good many pompons, which sell pretty well, especially the bright yellows and the good class of pinks. The wholesalers complain that the growers are reducing the size of the bunches, an effort to control the market that does harm, rather than good.

Columbia is the leading rose today. There are more Columbia sold than any other variety and the price of Columbia is used as a basis for determining the prices of some of the other varieties. The rose crop generally is getting heavier, which is a good thing, as the market is none too well supplied with other flowers. Carnations have not come in so freely as was expected. They have held their price well in the face of a slightly declining market. Paper White narcissi have been overabundant at about half the figures of two weeks ago. A cheap bunch can be made today with Stevia serrata and Narcissus Paper White.

The demand for orchids is a little less lively, causing a decline from the extreme prices of a week ago. Sweet peas are suffering from their cloudy-weather enemy—bud dropping. Nevertheless, a fair number continue to arrive. Easter lilies are doing well and will do better when Jeanne Nonin disappears.

Snapdragons are beginning to gain in favor, but calendulas are rather neglected.

Christmas Prospects.

The outlook regarding Christmas is encouraging. There is likely to be a good supply of cut flowers at about last season's prices on medium-grade stock. The medium grades are the popular choice and the prices on these grades are of most importance. Fancy grades and the lower grades are more apt to fluctuate and are of less general interest than the medium grades. So the opinion of those best able to judge, that the medium grades of cut flowers are likely to bring about the same prices as last Christmas, is given as a guide to those interested.

An important feature of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society's show, held in the First Regiment armory last month, was its educational value; not only to those who know a little about plants and flowers and fruits and vegetables, but to those who do not. The society did a good act when the school children were invited to the show. They came and enjoyed it. Another step forward would be made by providing a committee to tell the children something about the show and to answer their questions.

What an inspiration it would be to those children to have half an hour with Dennis Conner and to hear his happy descriptions of the exhibits! Why, it would make horticulturists of half of them and life-long flower lovers of the remainder.

The exhibit of the Charles H. Totty Co., of Madison, N. J., had great educational value. The hardy little pompons, singles and anemones attracted many amateurs. The new and standard varieties in the same types from A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., were of great educational value in affording opportunity for comparison between old and new.

Club Meeting.

The December meeting of the Florists' Club was held in the City Club, Broad street, Tuesday evening, December 7. Charles H. Totty, of Madison, N. J., was the speaker of the evening. Mr. Totty gave an interesting account of his trip abroad. He described the carnations grown in England by W. E. Wallace in American-built houses, the finest plants he ever saw, eight feet in height, with wonderful flowers.

The exhibits included Christmas flowering plants from the Robert Craig Co., among them some marvelous cyclamens; decorative plants from William K. Harris; foliage wreaths and holly from Herman Fimmer, and specimens of the two roses, American Legion and The Gem, from Edward Towill.

The attendance was large.

Various Notes.

Jesse A. Curry, of Portland, Ore., spoke on "New Roses" at the Rotary Club dinner at the Bellevue-Stratford November 18. Mr. Curry occupies the position toward roses in the west that is held by George C. Thomas in the east.

Edward A. Stroud has been doing good work for the Red Cross.

William H. Wyatt died suddenly November 30. Further news of his death will be found in the obituary column.

George S. Faulkner has again sought other pastures.

The annual outing of the rosarians was held Wednesday, November 17. The party was smaller than usual, but quite select. Several celebrities and the newspaper men were absent. There were seven: John R. Andre, William A. Geiger, Arthur A. Niessen, George Burton, Alfred M. Campbell, H. B. Darlington and Edward Swartz. They visited the three Burton places, Myers

FRAT-M'S

Frat-Ms are a great help to florists who make funeral work. They are exact reproductions of the official emblems embossed in gold and the different colors as required by each Fraternal and Labor organization.

The florist is saved time and worry in the nuisance of lettering, as well as the keeping of such a stock of wire frames, and different colored flowers. Just use such flowers as you have and then attach a FRAT-M with paste to the chiffon, or by the hanger that comes for each, as a card, and that is all there is to it, excepting the comment and commendatory talk for the florist.

Just pick out a dozen of the most used from the list following, enclosing $2.00 per dozen, and if they don't make you ten times their cost, return those unused and get your money.

Square and Compass, Chapter, Commandery, 32nd Degree, Shrine, Eastern Star, Royal Neighbors, M. W. A., Maccabees, Odd Fellows, Red Men, Knights of Columbus, K. of P., Moose, Jr. O. U. A. M., B. of R. T., B. of R. Clerks, B. of L. E., Br. of Blacksmiths and Helpers, Eagles.

Just give Frat-Ms a trial, you don't have to keep them. We are willing to send them to you and return the money if they don't pay you ten times their cost. Address business is somewhat dull between Thanksgiving and Christmas. It was imagined that November would finish the mums, but they continue to appear in considerable numbers and a considerable number of really good blooms are offered, in addition to good supplies of pompons and singles.

Roses are cleaning up satisfactorily and prices are changed but little. All flowers are of a good color, thanks to the absence of bright sunshine, Ophelias being especially good, but the color of Russell, Premier and Columbia is excellent. Carnations are not in heavy crop, but are ample for all needs. The bulk are still lacking in both stem and size of bloom. Violets are scarce and cut only a small figure in the market compared with a few years ago. They seem, somehow, to have almost lost favor here. A fair supply of pansies helps in some measure to make up for their scarcity.

Sweet peas are a little slow. Grandifloras go as low as $1, while the best Spencers bring $4 to $5. Lilies and callas are not abundant, but are ample for the few calls for them. There are some nice calendulas and many wall-flowers have appeared. Small lots of snapdragons, bouvardias and mignonette came in. Cattleya labiata is about over, but C. Percivaliana is in and a few Trianaes. Cypripedium insigne is in good supply. There is little call for val-

Various Notes.

The November just passed was the gloomiest recorded here for twenty-six years. Only two days, November 13 and 14, recorded 100 per cent sunshine and during the last half of the month we only saw the sun on four days. The precipitation of 5.42 inches raised a suspicion in the minds of some who are continually prating of the evils of prohibition that November was protesting against the Volstead act. It was a mild month and the snowfall was light.

Nathan Landerman, well known in local cut flower circles, at one time with Harry Quint and recently at Providence, R. I., is managing the cut flower department of the palatial new Kresge store, at the corner of Temple place and Washington street. He has a well equipped stand and handsome show cases. Business since the opening, November 29, has been excellent and large numbers of plants and cut flowers are moved daily.

A. M. Davenport, Watertown, Mass., has sold his fine collection of specimen Indian azaleas to Thomas E. Proctor, of Topsfield. He has three fine houses of Asplenium Nidus-avis, of which he is probably the largest and most successful grower in America. He also grows large numbers of ferns for dishes, in addition to the larger nephrolepis varieties. Houses of cyclamens, begonias, poinsettias and other Christmas stock are all in fine shape.

Recent visitors have included John C. Latham, representing John Scheepers & Co., New York; George E. Baldwin and Harry Baldwin, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; C. S. Strout, Biddeford, Me.; F. C. Green, Providence, R. I.

Alexander Montgomery, of Natick, Mass., is an excellent grower of roses and his flowers always command good prices. This season he is growing chiefly Russell, Hadley, Premier, Columbia, Double White Killarney and Ophelia. He has also a splendid house of carnations, among which Maine Sunshine looms up well.

Henry Penn and Thomas Roland are among those attending the meeting of the national flower show committee at Cleveland, O., this week.

It is but a short time since the Budlong establishment, at Auburn, R. I., was almost destroyed by a terrific hail storm. Anyone visiting the salesroom now and seeing the big shipments of splendid roses in some twenty varieties coming in daily must marvel at the speed with which the houses were repaired and even more at the quality of the flowers coming in from plants which appeared almost beyond recovery only last September.

Julius Quint, younger brother of Harry Quint, is convalescing from an operation for appendicitis performed at the Eliot hospital.

The houses of the W. W. Edgar Co. are filled to overflowing with excellent Christmas plants. Splendid houses of cyclamens and begonias make a great show. In addition are quantities of poinsettias, primulas, solanums, Purity freesias, Euphorbia jacquiniæflora, ferns, palms, etc. Mr. Bartsch, as usual, has everything in excellent shape.

Herbert W. Schlaffhorst, secretary-attorney for the allied horticultural interests which are fighting for the revision of Quarantine No. 37, who has his headquarters at Horticultural hall, is much encouraged by the support being received from all parts of the country in the fight against the F. H. B. and the campaign will be pushed with increasing vigor.

At the Houghton-Gorney shop some fine hybrid hippeastrums and well flowered camellias were noted last week.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society will have only four exhibitions next year in addition to the spring show, half as many as in 1920. Miss M. R. Case offers $1,000 for lectures in connection with these shows in 1921.

One of Penn's windows last week was devoted to narcissi and a large sale of boxes of Paper White narcissus bulbs is reported. Pot plant trade here is now quite heavy. W. N. C.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market

With the chrysanthemums practically gone, the local market has settled itself upon the ever dependable cornerstones, roses and carnations. These are now coming into the market in good supply and good quality, but the prices hold slightly above those of a year ago. It is doubtful if they will fall much below the present range this season, because of the excessive price of coal and labor.

The first of the Christmas greens came to hand last week, but it is evident that Christmas trees, holly and mistletoe, which rank among the most important of the decorative features of the holiday season, will cost more than ever this year and the blame is placed on Uncle Sam and the railroads for the predicted rise in prices. A shortage of the supply from Canada will also affect the market here. The North Carolina holly crop is reported as practically without berries.

Various Notes.

William E. Chappell has been confined to his home by a severe attack of illness.

Charles Smith was in Worcester and vicinity last week on business for the Eastern Wreath Co.

Swansons, Florists, are contemplating making radical changes and additions at their place on Stenton avenue in the spring.

Charles Hunt has been overhauling and renovating several small greenhouses on Blackstone street that have not been in use for the last three years.

Smith the Florist reports a big business since taking space in the Washington market.

Edward Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., was a business visitor in Boston and vicinity last week.

Eugene McCarron had a large wedding decoration last week of southern smilax and chrysanthemums. The attendants carried colonial bouquets.

The Colonial Flower Shoppe, Inc., had the decorations for the coming out party of Miss Bogert. W. H. M.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

The market has been in a good condition. Ample stock has been coming in to meet all demands. While a few chrysanthemums are still available, the supply is so meager that it can be said the mum season is over. Roses are in good shape. Good Premier, Columbia and Ophelia are in evidence and sell well. Numerous other varieties include all the shades from white to red and are selling well at from $6 to $15 per hundred.

Carnations are plentiful, but will not be any too numerous for Christmas. The price is from $4 to $6, with Laddie bringing $8 per hundred. Lilies are extremely scarce. Sweet peas are coming in slowly. A great deal of dark weather has retarded their growth and caused them to drop their buds. The price has been steady at $3 per hundred for good peas, although a few poorer ones have been selling for $2. Stevia has been filling a large place in the market. As always before, it is especially popular for corsage and basket work. Calendulas are in evidence and are popular for this kind of work.

Potted plants are fairly abundant. There has been a fair demand for Jerusalem cherries, begonias, primroses and ferns. Cyclamens have been coming into bloom rather slowly. Although there will be a larger supply at Christmas, there will be no overabundance.

Various Notes.

Irwin Bertermann has returned from French Lick, where he has been taking a rest.

I. Rosnosky, of the A. B. C., called on the trade last week.

E. E. Temperley went with the Murat Shriners December 8, to Kokomo, where they were entertained by the Kokomo Shrine Club.

John Heidenreich has his usual lot of fine poinsettias for Christmas.

A. F. J. Baur attended the meeting of the National Flower Show committee at Cleveland December 8. From there he went to Chicago to attend the Florists' Club's meeting. E. E. T.

Our city greenhouses, 36,000 square feet of glass, modern, at entrance to largest and best cemetery in city, yet within 10 blocks of center of retail district. These houses, 15 in number, were built 15, 17 and 19 years ago, are particularly adapted to raising potted plants, for which there is a great city and surrounding trade waiting. Retailers in this section, in Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas, are awaiting everything that can be grown. These houses produced and sold direct in 1918 $60,000.00.

St. Joseph, with 80,000 inhabitants, is the most substantial city in the best all-around and resourceful state in the Union, 75 miles from the intersection of Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa, 60 miles from Kansas City.

Reason for selling, the death of member of our firm who managed these houses, and our departure from the plant business, having larger houses and interests in cut flower trade which requires all our personal attention.

Besides the usual Christmas, Easter and bedding plant line, we have two houses in carnations, four in mums, force 40,000 Paper Whites, 20,000 Dutch bulbs and 2,000 lilies; have extra cold house with wooden roof, and bulb cellar, all in splendid condition; street paved, all improvements in. Soil and water the best.

Price, $45,000, based on conservative inventory made in 1918 for U. S. Internal Revenue office. It would cost asking price to replace houses now; land worth $12,000 and location $10,000 more.

Terms, half cash or Liberty bonds at market value, or the entire amount in bonds at face value.

Every statement can be proven; invite investigation, but don't bother us unless you have the wherewith and mean business.

Stock may be purchased at market value after Christmas. All movable stock will be retained if you do not wish it. Transfer to be made after holidays.

No. The name does not go with it. We expect to remain in business.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

The market has said good-bye to mums for this season, but everyone in the market is satisfied. They like to see them come and they like just as well to see them go. Poinsettias are arriving to take the place of mums and the market seems to be putting on a Christmas appearance. Carnations are more plentiful, but are bringing good prices. Indications are that there will be a good crop for Christmas. The retailers report good business, there having been several large funerals last week.

Various Notes.

Tom Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, had some unusual business recently when he received two orders in one day for casket palls of orchids and pink roses, as well as a wreath consisting of over 100 orchids, and a number of other smaller pieces.

Paul Eecke reports that his fifteen acres of poinsettias are now in full bloom and that they are in fine condition for shipping. He is receiving many orders for weekly and Christmas shipping.

The E. C. Amling Co. reports a big shipping business, especially in California novelties, to the Chicago market. A carload of moss was received by this company last week.

Chicago friends of Adam Kasper, formerly of the E. C. Amling Co., of Chicago, will be sorry to learn that he thinks California is just right and intends making it his future home.

Ernest C. Amling, of Orange, Cal., was a visitor at this city last week.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

Although a few of the large chrysanthemums are still being put on the market by careful growers, they have now become scarce. The pink varieties of canvas-grown mums are the only ones to be found in any abundance and they are daily becoming fewer. Chinese-grown mums, produced in the open, are still plentiful and are in a much wider variety of colors than can be found among the big mums. The Chinese, however, have now learned to put canvas on their outdoor mums as they are nearing the flowering stage and some of their blooms are large and luxuriant.

Violets are extremely plentiful and of excellent quality, the rains having brought them to exactly the condition desired for shipping. Roses are beginning to come in plentifully. Russell, Columbia, Ophelia and Hadley are the most numerous, but many other varieties are to be found. Carnations are somewhat scarce and the growers who did not take them out, in order to grow roses, are now doing well with this stock.

Freesias, Paper White narcissi and Chinese lilies are beginning to appear in the market, but the supply does not in any way equal the demand. It is anticipated that about Christmas time the market will be plentifully supplied with these flowers, cultivated especially for the holiday season. There are many flowering potted plants, especially cyclamens, which are selling well locally. Bulbs still have a large local sale.

The local market was quiet for a few days after Thanksgiving, but it is now fairly brisk, as the social season is beginning. Shipping orders are not so numerous as in the early season of the chrysanthemums, but a considerable volume of shipping business is being done, especially in small mums and violets, which are going to points as far east as Maine and North Carolina.

Various Notes.

Seldom has such a remarkable display of floral offerings been seen, even in California, as marked the funeral of Chief of Police D. A. White. Private individuals, even strangers, sent flowers and organizations were represented by appropriate designs. In consequence, many of the florists worked all night and nearly every store in the city had some orders. Pelicano, Rossi & Co. made a pall which was of violets and Russell roses, with maidenhair fern and heather. They also made numerous floral pieces, including a large replica of the Olympic Club's device, a winged wheel in white and crimson carnations. Among other florists who had large orders for the White funeral were Podesta & Baldocchi, Joseph's, Julius Eppstein, Albert O. Stein and the Bertrand Flower Shop.

(FRASER'S GIANT PICOTEE, PRIZE ZINNIAS)

The blossoms are of new colors, coral-pink, carmine-rose, garnet-red, snow-white, orange and rich apricot-yellow, with various hues at the ends of the petals. Some are tipped with chocolate, terra cotta or rich crimson. This giant strain of ours made its appearance in the Los Angeles market and was highly prized by growers. Highly recommended by William Rapp, President of the Horticultural Society of Pasadena, California. Large trade packet, $1.00; 1/2 trade packet, 50c.

The Taft Floral Shop, at Taft, Cal., has been sold by George A. Dennison to Mrs. Burns Morgan. Mr. Dennison has been conducting the shop at Taft for a year.

The new cuts of roses from the greenhouses of the E. W. McLellan Co. are of excellent quality, the Russells being of unusually good color this year.

J. A. Axell has been successful in securing extra help to handle his California berries and other holiday decoration material, so that his cut flower business will not be interfered with.

Mrs. A. J. Gooch has been reviewing shipping lists for past years and she finds that the supply of large mums has become exhausted unusually early this season. General A. J. Gooch attributes this to the early and heavy rains.

Domoto Bros. are showing some fine potted azaleas of the dwarf Japanese type known as kurume. The dwarf trees are a mass of blooms, which run from white to deep pink and include heliotrope, salmon and variegated shades. There are no yellows in the kurume azalea. These azaleas are grown in the firm's nurseries from its own stock.

Enomoto & Co., Inc., did not change their carnation beds to roses. Consequently, Enomoto & Co. now have plenty of fine carnations just when the market is short on them. Arrangements have been made to handle large shipments of the California red berries.

The United Flower & Supply Co. has just received two cases of mats from the customhouse and expects to get five cases more during the course of the week. One of this firm said: "We were fortunate in anticipating that there would be a run on straw-flowers. We laid in a large supply during the season when they were plentiful. We have been filling some large orders recently."

Frank D. Pelicano visited his ranch Sunday, November 28, and brought back an automobile load of heather.

Miss Dolores Howard, formerly with the Art Floral Co., has joined the staff of Joseph's. George P. Wagner, chief decorator of this firm, states that the initial advertising done by the Retail Florists' Association has considerably increased the volume of business done by local florists.

The Growers' Cut Flower Co. has a fine crop of inside carnations. The new crop of roses is also coming to the market in good shape.

Funeral work has been keeping the MacRorie-McLaren Co. busy. This firm is sending in some heather, Erica regemianans ovata, which is being admired on account of its size and the luxuriance of its blooms.

California dried fruits and nuts are mixed with flowers in artistic souvenir baskets which decorate one of the windows of the Art Floral Co.

Julius Eppstein, of the St. Francis, states that the social season is now moving along briskly and is keeping him busy with decorations for luncheons, banquets and teas.

Albert O. Stein is working overtime on account of social affairs. He has had some large orders from families whose daughters are making their debuts in society. This season the debutantes are being introduced amid especially fine floral decorations.

James Jordan has left the employment of F. C. Jaeger & Son and has joined the staff of the Redondo Floral Co., at Los Angeles. G. McDonald has also severed his connection with the firm, which has been joined by Sam Matraia. Speaking of the great difficulty which the local florists are experiencing in obtaining capable help, F. C. Jaeger, Jr., said: "We hope that the newly organized Retail Florists' Association, by shortening florists' hours, will be the means of inducing members of the young generation to take up this work. At present none of them seems to be going into it. People are rushed with business and first-class men are almost impossible to secure. There may be a number of men out of work in San Francisco, but they are not florists and the long hours are deterring young men from entering the trade." M. M.

gest sellers. In several cases retail shops had to close ahead of schedule because they had no mums left and could not secure more from the growers or wholesalers. Prices held up in good order, and pompons sold freely.

After mums, roses proved the item favored by the buyers. The supply of Wards was sold out early, but the trade was able to get sufficient stock of Columbia and Ophelia to carry through. Premier and Killarney were shown in a small way. The notable increase in the cut and quality of carnations caused a better call for this flower. Several shops noted a larger call for corsages than at any previous Thanksgiving. Bouvardias and orchids were in better demand.

Paper White narcissi are still new enough to be a seasonal novelty, but are becoming more plentiful each day. Sweet peas are of fine quality now. Lily of the valley is scarce, but a notable increase in the supply is looked for within the next fortnight.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Fred Gust, wife of the Pacific coast representative of the McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., is receiving the sincere sympathy of local florists over the death last week of her mother, Mrs. Peters, at the family home, at Rosaryville, Md. Mr. Gust is expected to return soon from his trip into Oregon, Utah and California.

from a visit of one month with relatives in Minneapolis. She found trade conditions good in that section. Risdon & Desmond are sending in some fine potted cyclamens and the best sweet peas being delivered at this time.

The regular "get-together" dinner of the employees of the Hollywood Gardens was held last week, at the New Washington hotel. Motion pictures of the greenhouses and city store were a feature. These dinners are held about once a month and are popular with the employees. This shop made a special window display for the Washington-Dartmouth football game, using a football in the center, with huge baskets of mums and pennants of the competing schools on either side. In one of these baskets white mums tied with a green ribbon were placed, while the other held yellow mums tied with purple ribbon.

Robert Simmonds, of the Woodlawn Flower Shop, was called to Portland, Ore., last week by the sudden illness of Mrs. Simmonds, who had gone to that city on a short visit.

Some of the finest Yellow Turner mums shown this season are coming in from C. H. Benson, of Kirkland, Wash., who is also cutting some nice Chadwick.

Harry Wright, of the Davenport Flower Shop, Spokane, Wash., reports that for Thanksgiving business the same prices as those in effect three years ago were charged. There were not enough long-stemmed mums available to care for the demand.

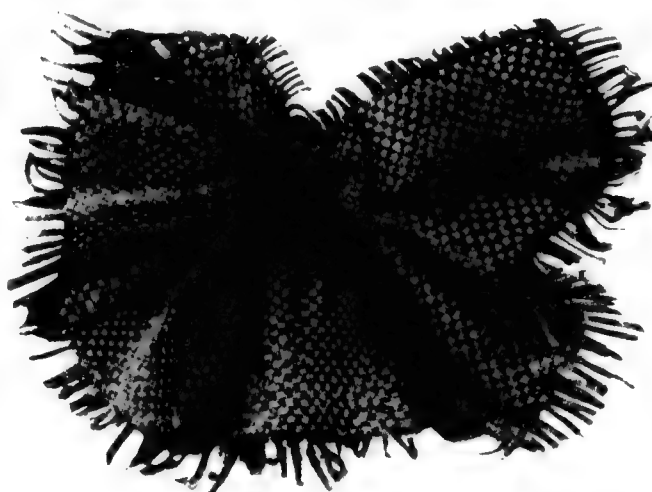

L. W. McCoy reports that the Thanksgiving trade showed a greater demand for cut flowers than expected, while the sales of potted plants were less. This shop is receiving some fine cut Paper Whites from its own greenhouses and also some long-stemmed carnations.

H. P. Anderson, of the University Flower Shop, on University way, reports that Saturday, November 27, developed sales which set a new record for his establishment. Not only was there a heavy sale of mums for corsages, but cut flowers to decorate tables for the many dinner parties in university circles also called for a large quantity of stock.

Fred Schleicher, who is operating the old Friday greenhouse, has been sending in what are probably the best Paper White narcissi delivered as yet and expects to have potted stock ready soon.

The Orpheum Floral Co. cleaned up its stock early Thanksgiving day and was forced to draw on other shops for some lines to complete its orders.

Felix Rosaia handled a recent church decoration which attracted much comment. He used mums and ferns for the altar bank, Ward and Cecile Brunner roses in the attendants' bouquets and lily of the valley and orchids for the bride's bouquet.

The Burns Floral Co. has been making a special showing lately of the smaller potted flowers and reports a big sale of dark-colored cyclamens. Potted pompons are also selling well as the result of special window displays.

The Woodlawn Flower Shop introduced a novelty football window through the use of a goat. Two large footballs bearing the colors of the Washington and Dartmouth universities formed the background and the removal of a portion of the floor in the window gave an opportunity for the animal display. A big sale of corsages for this game was reported, as well as a fine business throughout the week.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

Stock in chrysanthemums is a little scarce, due to Thanksgiving trade. Carnations are sufficient to meet all demands. Roses are becoming scarce, but the quality remains good. Fine specimens of cyclamen and primula are finding ready sales. The scarcity of ferns is over and they are moving fast.

All the members of the trade report a good Thanksgiving day business and stock was good. In almost every case there was plenty of everything, with only a slight shortage of the better grades of yellow mums.

The growers are all well stocked for Christmas, and especially in the late varieties of chrysanthemums. Spokane is getting to be the center of a large shipping trade in mums.

Various Notes.

H. L. Olsson, Inc., is busy with ever-green festoon orders. He is ready to supply the trade with cyclamens that are in keeping with the standard of plants he has produced in other years.

The Manito park greenhouses have been a picture for the public to feast on. Sunday finds the houses filled with visitors. It makes one of the best advertisements of flowers that the trade could wish for.

The prominent growers of Spokane have taken a six months' contract for advertising, using the slogan prominently. The newspapers have been chosen in preference to billboards.

Peters & Sons, of Hillyard, Wash., will have a large cut of chrysanthemums for the Christmas trade. They are burning sawdust exclusively as a fuel this year, with good results.

The Spokane Seed Co. reports a good bulb trade this year. The fine, open fall weather has allowed late planting.

The Inland Seed Co. reports a complete clean-up of all bulbous stock and is now planning for the spring trade.

The ever increasing demand for artificial baskets for Christmas is supplying work for spare time in the stores and some fine window displays of them are seen. H. H.

obliged to make and the willingness with which these sacrifices were made.

How many times have we, who have had retail store experience, listened to some white-haired man, as he would order flowers for his life partner, relate to us what a wonderful woman she had been and tell of the trials encountered and the inspiration she had been to him, of how the very thought of that woman at home, faithfully performing her part of the nuptial contract, without any applause from the world, had made him a success in the business world! Such a man, who has been buffeted by the world for twenty-five years, finds it hard to express the sentiment that is stored up in his heart. Do not lose sight of the fact that sentiment is there. The hard knocks he has received have not been able to kill it. Dormant though it may be, it only needs the thought of their wedding day to resurrect it and a new language to express it, and, mark you, there is just one language that can do this, and that is the language of flowers.

Take a Hint From Sam

If I have told you this story before, don't get sore, as all of us have been known to repeat ourselves. It's about Sam, a Georgian nigger. A bad nigger, who was about to be hanged for murder.

When the rope was about his neck and everything ready, the sheriff asked him if he had anything to say. "I sure has, boss; what I'se got to say is, dat dis here experience sure am going to learn Sam a powerful good lesson."

Every Christmas we hear a lot of kicks about pickled stock; every year, a lot stop doing it, and a lot more start doing it. Some day, some of them, like Sam, are going to learn a lesson when it's too late. All of which gives you a pretty definite idea of where I stand.

big, strong man in your store! I have seen them, both old and young, under all circumstances, when their hearts were just bursting to express the sentiments that they felt. They were men who would not flinch, no matter what the danger might be; who, if put at the head of a column of men, would not hesitate to lead them into the jaws of death, or, on the floors of a stock exchange or other market, would face financial ruin without a quiver. Yet, when some woman was concerned, they had no courage at all. They just simply had to have help, and in fear and trembling they "Say It with Flowers."

Such men have thought at first perhaps that such a method was effeminate, but they have tried every way they knew of to carry the message in per-

MR. JOHN T. MUIR,

Dear Mr. Muir:

It might be of interest to you to know how much the officers of this bank appreciated the admirable taste which you displayed in the arrangement of the design and the beautiful flowers used in the floral piece furnished by you at the time of Mr. Lampert's funeral.

It was an occasion on which we felt that the best was none too good and we were very much gratified at your effort in that direction. It was also spoken of by Mrs. Lampert afterwards as being the most wonderful assemblage of flowers that she had ever seen.

Feeling confident that you would be pleased to know of these favorable comments, I have taken the liberty of writing you this letter.

Very sincerely, into a man's or a woman's life, is there any way to tell them how glad we are better than to "Say It with Flowers"? Take an instance where a poor boy, perhaps a newsboy or bootblack, secures a position as messenger with some large company. After night school and close application to his duties, whatever they may be, there are years of long, weary grind. Finally the day comes when that company must elect a new president and this boy is elevated to this enviable position. How many of the presidents of railroads of this country have worked themselves up from such positions as track-walkers? On such occasions as these, in what better way can the associates of such men express their pleasure at his success in life than to "Say It with Flowers"? How often, when such events transpire, do we see in the papers the next day that when the new president arrived at his office he found his desk a bower of flowers!

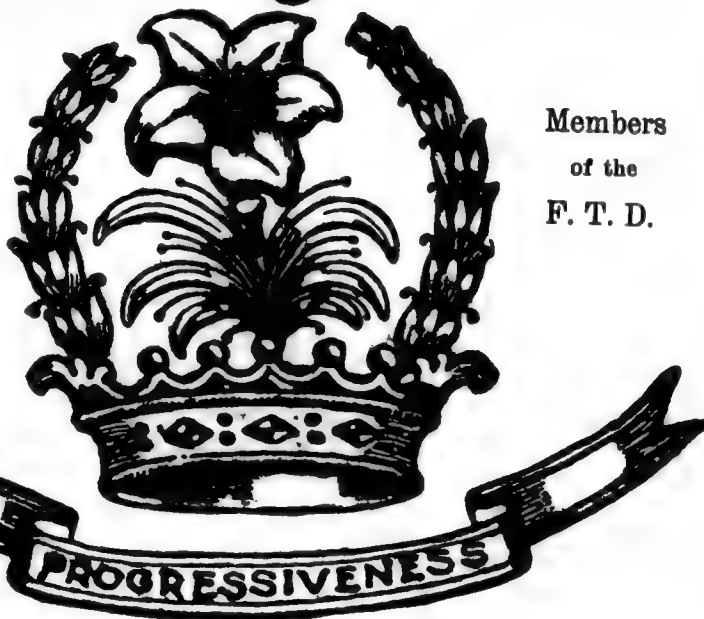

There is another occasion that during all their years comes into the life of every man and woman. Each year they have a birthday. Outside of men in public life, this occasion may not be generally known, but there are always a few who remember this day; it matters not how humble or prominent one may be, there is someone who cares. If we were to forget everything else and simply educate the public to "Say It with Flowers" on birthdays—in a country of 110,000,000 inhabitants, there are 110,000,000 birthdays each year—what wonderful results might be obtained!

Farewell Flowers.

But each birthday means a year nearer to the grave, the goal of each life. At last the sad day comes, and, ordinarily, it is usually the largest flower occasion of that life. It is a different sentiment we are now expressing; on every occasion up to this time it has been one of gladness; now it is sorrow. On every one of the other occasions there has been something that might have taken the place of flowers, but there is but one way to express sorrow and that is to "Say It with Flowers." It is our last tribute to a friend or loved one whom we shall see no more. It is always an occasion that sets both old and young to thinking. For the young, the departed one has left "foot-prints in the sands of time." Many a young man or woman has resolved to model his life upon that of someone who has just passed to the great beyond; their emotions are stirred and there is but one way to express them, and so they "Say It with Flowers." Older people, when death comes, realize how short a span life is, at best; they, too, are stirred deeply and flowers, again, are the only mode of expression.

But did you ever stop to think that "Say It with Flowers" does not stop with death? How often have we strewn the grave of one who was known to us only through the family tree?

I have tried to write these articles from a human standpoint, but in the last one, next week, we shall consider it from the practical side. Tate.

The week following Thanksgiving the wholesale market was in fairly good condition and the supply was equal to the demand, which was reported large all through the week. been bright and the weather man promises sunshine for the coming week; so growers hope for big crops by Christmas. Carnations have been ready to bloom for two weeks, but growers who should be cutting hundreds daily are getting fifty or sixty. The result is that carnations are selling at $7 and $8 per hundred. Roses are also short and run from $6 to $20. Mums are about gone. California violets are $2 a dozen bunches; pompons are $1 and lilies $2 per dozen.

Last week was an unusually brisk one, business having kept right up since Thanksgiving without a quiet day.

Club Meeting.

The December meeting of the Kansas City Florists' Club, Thursday evening, December 2, in the beautiful new store of the Chandler Landscape & Floral Co., was one of the most interesting meetings since the organization began. About ninety members were present. Three trustees were elected to serve for periods of three, two and one years, respectively. Nominations had been made at the previous meeting and the election was unanimous. P. A. Manson, manager of the Pinehurst Floral Co., Pleasant Hill, Mo.; William L. Rock, president of the William L. Rock Flower Co., and Arthur B. Smith, of Smith & Heakin, Sunset Hill Gardens, were chosen.

West Horticultural Exposition, at Council Bluffs, Ia., told of that meeting and the movement to organize the flower growers of Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska in a mid-west branch of the national association. Mr. Manson favors the plan and hopes other growers will see its advantages. He said he had never seen such roses as were shown at the exhibition.

Thanksgiving business was talked over. T. J. Noll, president of the club, said it was a good time for retailers to tell what they thought of different varieties of mums, because growers were willing to give them the stock they wanted and throw away undesirable varieties. Various opinions were expressed. Bonnaffon, Elizabeth Smith, Willis, yellow and white Turner and Mrs. M. R. Morgan were pronounced good. December Gem was said to be a good late white. Johnson, Frick and Mistletoe were not favored. Other grievances of the retailers, such as strings, too much foliage and improper grading, were aired. It was agreed on all sides that the grower who sent good, clean stock, carefully graded, to market had a right to ask the best prices.

S. Bryson Ayres created a ripple of excitement when he protested against the quantity of "painted weeds" with which he said the florists were cutting their own throats. Miss Hayden, of Samuel Murray's, spoke for the defense, saying that as long as the public liked this product and wanted it, regardless of what the florists thought of it, it was the best policy to carry it in stock. "Painted weeds" were considered to be superior to artificially colored flowers, which were considered an insult to nature.

How to align the club with the national publicity movement was one of the most important subjects considered.

L. R. Bohannon, of the Kansas City Wholesale Cut Flower Co., made a motion that the trustees and officers of the club work out some plan by which the members be assessed a fair amount to provide a general fund for local and national publicity. This carried without a dissenting vote and brought up the matter of local advertising for Christmas. In less than fifteen minutes, $1,000 had been subscribed, in various amounts from $5 to $100, for advertising in the local newspapers. Miss Hayden, M. E. Carter, W. J. Barnes and Alpha Elberfield were appointed a committee to take care of this. Miss Hayden was chairman of a committee that raised a fund for local advertising for Mothers' day and this was such a success that the florists are all willing to contribute and make newspaper advertising a permanent feature. The January meeting of the club will be at the office of the Sunset Hill Gardens.

AMARILLO, TEX.

About 20,000 feet of glass are used to produce a part of the stock sold by the Amarillo Greenhouses, of which A. Alenius is proprietor. Mr. Alenius says the business has more than doubled in two years. Finely grown pot geraniums are seen and the last of 8,000 mums are being cut. Pelargoniums of the Easter Greeting type are benched and later potted, as it is found that a better growth is thereby secured. Good cyclamens, cinerarias, lilies and other pot plants are grown, as well as several houses of carnations and a thriving lot of sweet peas. The workroom and service department are well arranged and the whole establishment is in excellent order.

Cunningham the Florist recently built a Moninger greenhouse, in which fine pot stock and mums are grown, Mrs. Cunningham being active in the management of this. Cyclamens and begonias, both of the Lorraine and semperflorens types, are well done here.

Some Seidewitz, Bonnaffon and Mistletoe mums on the market last week were all that prevented a shortage. Fortunately, the demand has not yet reached normal, but for the first cotillion, held Monday, December 6, to start the season off in full swing, the situation certainly looked doubtful for an adequate supply to meet the demand. The first cotillion is one of the largest flower days of the season. Roses and orchids are the flowers most depended upon for this event. These, however, have been quite short in supply. The cause for this is hard to tell; it cannot be due to any increase in the demand, for this is now normal; it would seem to be just a case of their being off crop. At the present writing there is enough of the long-stemmed grade to go around, but shorts are decidedly scarce. Carnations are also scarce; these are far below normal in supply. Violets are scarce, and while the demand is such that the scarcity is not much noticed, in a week or two it is going to be felt. week before Christmas, at least, and, from the present outlook, there is not even going to be nearly enough stock to meet it. This is a season when the retailers will just have to meet the situation as best they can. There is plenty of stock planted, but it is not blooming.

Various Notes.

Having heard so much of the shortage of stock that he decided to try to get a line on the reason for it, the writer interviewed William F. McKissick, of the Leo Niessen Co. There is no man in Baltimore who keeps in closer touch with the market than Mr. "Mac," and he is usually to be found in an optimistic mood if there is any possibility, but last week he was looking into the future, for December at least, with a good deal of misgiving. He said that, while the light demand at the present time saved the situation, if the history of past years repeated itself this would not last long, and there was not a proper supply in sight to meet an increased demand. Mr. McKissick can tell, to a rose, the amount of stock his company handled for last year's cotillion. Taking this as a basis, the supply seemed certain to be short this year. With Christmas only twenty-five days off, unless the growers can hurry the crops along, Mr. McKissick feels that there will be a flower famine in Baltimore.

Samuel Feast & Sons had the floral decorations for the banquet at the Rennert given by some prominent business men of the city to Frank A. Munsey, of New York, owner of the Baltimore News and the New York Herald, who recently acquired the Baltimore American and Star. Covers were laid for 400. Mr. Davis, the manager of the Rennert, said he had never seen the flower arrangements of the hall show to better advantage. The corners of the room were banked with palms and foliage plants; the windows were treated in the same manner. But the treatment of the tables was what gave the room the splendid effect it pre-

UNIVERSITY EXHIBITION.

Baltimore Florists Exhibit.

The first annual flower show of the University of Maryland was held in conjunction with a fruit and vegetable show November 20 and 21. The exhibition was enthusiastically received by many visitors, and will, no doubt, become an important affair in the college functions. Many attractive flower arrangements were put on display by the students of the department and, in addition, competitive classes attracted exhibits from several Baltimore florists.

Two large rooms in the Horticultural building were used for the show. One of these rooms, which held the department exhibits, was attractively decorated with southern smilax and scarlet oak foliage. In the second room, which was decorated with pine boughs and oak leaves, the exhibits of the florists and nurserymen were on display. One fine collection of evergreens, sent by Harrison's Nurseries, Berlin, Md., was arranged along one side of the room to represent a landscape planting. The florists of Baltimore sent a truckload of flowers of all kinds, which in themselves made a fine exhibit.

The exhibition was arranged under the direction of Prof. A. S. Thurston, who has charge of the floricultural work, and James Moss, a son of Isaac H. Moss, of Baltimore, who was the student superintendent of the show.

The winning exhibits were nearly all

The growers of Denver seem well able to take care of their own city trade and ship a good deal of stock to Texas and surrounding country. Carnations do especially well in the high altitude of this city and roses and

The fine store of the Park Floral Co., on Broadway, is well equipped to handle the big business done there. Besides seasonable cut stock and plants, some fine cinerarias were noted, which, B. E.
Gillis says, were grown for the Christmas trade to take the place of azaleas, as far as possible.

The Elitch-Long Gardens Co. has several houses of finely flowered cyclamens and a fine lot of begonias of the Lorraine and Cincinnati types. These are among the best flowered and best grown plants noted this season.

Conrad Lengenfelder has a fine lot of roses coming on for his Christmas trade and also some excellent carnations. His place is well looked after and bears the stamp of careful and

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

Stock has been short on this market during the last week, but business has been quiet. White roses are rather slow in moving, probably because there have been few weddings since Thanksgiving, but other grades of roses are moving well. White and yellow narcissi are arriving in large quantities, but are moving slowly. Carnations are arriving in large enough quantities to meet the demand. Medium-grade mums are still arriving, and a few pompons are cleaning up daily. Stevia is beginning to arrive in quantity, but it moves slowly. The first sweet peas have made their appearance.

Various Notes.

J. M. Strejcek has purchased a new Dodge delivery car.

Morris Cohen, of Cohen & Hiller, New York, was a visitor.

Westman & Getz have a new Ford delivery car.

Henry O'Connor has left the employ of the J. M. Gasser Co., on account of illness.

The Parkview Floral Co. has a new Ford coupe.

R. M. Curtiss, of Ravenna, O., was a visitor last week.

E. O. Evahard, of Wadsworth, O. and C. E. Burton and Harry Flickinger, of Barberton, O., visited here last week.

Karl Witthuhn is moving his store from Pearl road to West Thirty-fifth street.

William Raebel, of the Canton Floral & Landscape Co., Canton, O., visited here last week.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, H. G. Hastings, Atlanta, Ga.; secretary-treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

MANY people will have more time for gardening next summer and less money to spend at the grocer's.

PAPER will have to make a greater decline than seems imminent before seedsmen will enlarge their catalogues again.

THE seed trade preceded other lines in feeling the present depression and, being past the nadir, is finding a more optimistic tone.

THE stork visited the home of H. G. Pedrick, of George R. Pedrick & Son, Pedricktown, N. J., and left a daughter, Elizabeth Viola.

APPRECIATING the compliment when a contemporary reprints material verbatim from this department, The Review could express its thanks more explicitly were a credit line added.

T. E. JOHNS, a director and formerly an active member of the Sioux City Seed Co., Sioux City, Ia., died December 7, at his home at Wixom, Mich. Further report appears in the obituary column of this issue.

SINCE the death of Maurice Fuld, marketing of Melrosine has been carried on under the name of the Garden Chemical Co., New York, by one of the other individuals financially interested in this product, the head of the Sigmund Ullman Co., one of the biggest printing establishments in New York.

THE 1920 production of lespedeza seed is expected to be about ten per cent less than that of last year, because of a smaller acreage harvested and a slightly decreased yield per acre. The quality of the seed probably will be good, because most of it was harvested and considerable has been threshed under ideal weather conditions.

THE provisions of the revised seed law for the state of New York are discussed in a recent publication of the experiment station, at Geneva, and directions given regarding seed testing and the submission of samples for testing by the station. Bulletin No. 476, containing detailed information regarding the labeling and testing of seed, may be had free of charge upon request.

THE supply of velvet beans for seed purposes depends on the quality of the beans rather than on the size of the crop. The quality of the 1920 crop is excellent. The carryover of 1919 crop seed velvet beans by a number of shippers and dealers is large. The quality of these for planting purposes will depend upon the manner in which they are stored and other factors which might affect germination.

A SUPPLY of carpet grass seed for commercial distribution several times larger than that of any previous year has been harvested in Louisiana and Mississippi. Most of it is produced in East Feliciana parish, La., and smaller quantities in adjoining parishes in Louisiana and southwest Mississippi. The quality of the new crop seed is fair to good, depending largely upon the precautions taken by growers to prevent heating and molding while curing. A heavier demand than normal has been manifested for this seed

The same steamers carried 205 bags of garden seed for the American Export Co. and forty-three barrels of garden seed for F. Rynveld & Sons. Twenty-five cases of bulbs arrived with these shipments, fourteen being consigned to Maltus & Ware and eleven to J. W. Hampton, Jr., & Co.

WAR EFFECT ON FERTILIZERS.

A bulletin prepared by a member of the staff of the New York Agricultural Experiment Station, at Geneva, N. Y., on "Some Effects of the War upon Fertilizers," reveals some interesting facts. The data, collected during the years 1914 to 1919, indicate, as summarized in the bulletin, No. 471, the following:

"1. Effect upon kinds. The number of complete fertilizers decreased each year, going from 614 in 1914 to 171 in 1919. The mixtures of phosphoric acid and potash practically disappeared by 1916, while mixtures of nitrogen and phosphoric acid appeared in relatively large number in 1916 and the following years. Acid phosphate brands increased, while nitrate of soda decreased, and potash salts entirely disappeared. Bone, blood and tankage decreased.

"2. Effect upon composition. In complete fertilizers the average percentage of nitrogen decreased appreciably after 1915, while that of potash decreased greatly after 1914, and still more after 1916. The average percentage of available phosphoric acid increased considerably after 1914, but with some variations from year to year. The total percentage of available plant-food decreased continually after 1914.

"3. Effect upon cost. The average retail cost of one pound of plant-food increased year by year continuously after 1914 in the case of complete fertilizers, going from 8.8 cents per pound in 1914 to 33.1 cents in 1919, an increase of nearly fourfold. In the case of acid phosphate, nitrate of soda, bone, dried animal manures, etc., there was an increase in the retail cost of plant food, but not relatively as great as in the case of complete mixed fertilizers."

IMPORTS OF PLANTS AND BULBS.

In the national government's last quarterly report of horticultural imports, the total receipts of plants, bulbs, trees, shrubs and vines for the months of April, May and June, 1920, are valued at $70,709. Of the items represented in that total, the stock that is intended to be cultivated for flowers or foliage is valued at $11,109 and is classified in four groups as follows:

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

By an order effective November 23, 1920, the following towns were added to those quarantined by the United States Department of Agriculture, on account of the European corn borer: Fairhaven, Mass.; Atkinson, N. H.; Buffalo, Elma, Grand Island, Niagara and Wheatfield, N. Y.

OFFICERS of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the California Association of Nurserymen elected for the coming year are: President, Mrs. D. W. Coolidge, Pasadena; vice-president, Mrs. John S. Armstrong, Ontario; secretary, Miss Rose Wershing, Ontario; treasurer, Mrs. Fred H. Howard, Los Angeles. Other members of the executive committee are Mrs. T. R. Hills, Mrs. J. D. Meriwether, Mrs. R. M. Teague and Mrs. John Vallance.

THE Breck-Robinson Co., Lexington, Mass., is increasing its capital stock from $25,000 to $125,000. Of this amount $75,000 is to be sold to friends and customers of the company. The balance will be held in reserve. The company was founded in 1912 with a capital of $25,000, which at the time was considered ample. The business, however, has expanded so rapidly that additional capital is desirable for conducting the business to the best advantage.

GROWING STOCK FOR FLORISTS.

In its Nursery Trade Department, The Review has constantly presented to that trade the possibilities in developing business among florists. That urging is so ably presented in the editorial which appears on the opening page of the National Nurseryman for December, by one whose sole interest has been in that trade for many years, that it is quoted in entirety here, in order that this important matter may be brought to as wide a circle of nurserymen as possible:

"The proper coöperation between the nursery and florists' trades has never been developed to the extent that would seem called for by their close connection.

"The fault seems to be rather on the side of the nurserymen, as they are to a great extent the growers of the raw materials which the florist works up into a condition for the consuming public.

"There are many florists who also do a nursery business, in fact try to cover the whole scope of horticultural art from making a funeral design or decorating for a society function to laying out an estate, and perhaps in fewer instances the same may be said about the nurserymen.

"There is no reason why they should not, if their organization is big enough to carry experts to compete with specialists in the various lines.

"But this is an age of specialists, and usually all the concentration and skill available is necessary to carry on one branch of the business successfully.

"With the shutting off of the foreign supply of what might be termed the raw material in the way of plants for forcing, it opens up a big field that is in the province of the nursery grower. It remains to be seen if the nurserymen proper will force the florists' trade to grow its own material. While it is foolish to attempt to draw an arbitrary line between the florist and nurseryman, the fact remains there is a recognized province for each, due to the fact that the florists' trade is largely one of greenhouses and stores, while the nursery trade is growing upon acreage.

"The nursery trade should plan to propagate all the plants the florists need, and bring them to the stage desired, which is usually 'ready to be forced.' It is only necessary to recall the large quantity of rhododendrons, azaleas, deutzias, roses and other hard-wooded plants that used to be imported to realize the immense demand for early spring-blooming subjects the florist needs in his business. Unless it is available, the florists' trade will either grow them itself, or substitute bulbs, herbaceous and what is generally known as greenhouse plants for the winter demand for plants for interior decoration.

"There is no doubt the florists' trade will develop its own growers of greenhouse plants that were formerly imported. Its equipment is along the line necessary for the production of this class of plants, but for the propagation and material of woody plants the nurseryman is in the best position to give the florist what he needs.

"There are endless ways in which the florists' trade could be catered to, to the advantage of both trades. Evergreens for winter is one of them. Few nurseries make any special effort to give the florists' trade all it needs in tubbed evergreens for porch decorations, or small evergreens for window boxes, or cut evergreens for interior decoration, yet there are many beautiful subjects practically unknown to the florist that could be grown in quantity for the purposes of cutting.

"There may be reasons why southern smilax, holly, galax leaves, laurel, ferns, mahonia, etc., are gathered from the wild and shipped long distances in such quantities, but those reasons are not complimentary to the enterprise of the nursery trade. This source may be permanent, but it is very much like wasting natural resources.

"Then there is a big field in ornamental berried plants which the florists' trade knows very little about, and it is up to the nurserymen to show them. One can almost imagine the sensation a big supply of Celastrus scandens, Ilex verticillata and deciduous evonymus would cause if it were available in quantity and in prime condition for the florists' decorating trade."

AMERICAN ROOT STOCKS.

Why Not Grow Our Own?

"The federal quarantine law which has gone into effect, prohibiting the importation of many classes of nursery stock into the United States, will probably be the cause of rapidly developing the growing of seedlings as root stocks in this country," declared George C. Roeding, president of the California Nursery Co., Niles, Cal., at the recent convention of the California Association of Nurserymen. "Last summer I had the pleasure of visiting a number of seedling nurseries in the vicinity of Topeka, Kan., where the business of growing apple seedlings has been carried on successfully for a number of years. I was much impressed with the splendid results which the nursery-men were obtaining in growing these seedlings, for many of the fields gave indications of there being almost a perfect stand. The seed used has been the French crab, botanically known as Malus communis. In more recent years these nursery-men have also engaged in growing the French pear, Pyrus communis, and the Japanese pear, Pyrus sinensis, with equally good success where good seed was secured.

"It will probably be of interest to know how these seeds are handled. During the winter months the seeds are packed between large layers of burlap, the seed having been dampened first. It is then placed in an ice house, where it remains until the following spring. It is quite remarkable the effect that this freezing of the seed has, causing it to sprout much more rapidly than it would were it not treated in this manner. The seed is usually drilled in rows two feet apart just as soon as spring opens.

"One of the problems which the seedling men must contend with is infestation by insect pests. Frequently in the locality referred to, an entire block of seedlings may be lost on account of an invasion of woolly aphids.

"Possibly in no other state outside of California is there such a demand for fruit trees grown on different roots. In order to show our position clearly in the matter, I want to mention briefly the various varieties of fruit stocks which are used in California.

"The apple is the first one in the category. To have a stock which will be free from the woolly aphids is highly desirable. It is a well known fact that it is only a question of time after the trees are planted in orchard form before this insect will be found in the roots. The Northern Spy and Winter Magetin roots are free from this attack. Every encouragement should be given to the development of these roots on account of their resistance to woolly aphids. The difficulty which the nurseryman experiences in creating a demand for trees grown on resistant roots like this is to have the purchaser of nursery stock appreciate the expense incurred in the growing of trees and pay the price for the years of labor and extra cost incurred.

"It is necessary in the first place to have what are known as mother trees. These trees are planted out in nursery form and remain there for several years. They are dug up in the winter months and the roots are cut off to stubs, when the trees are again planted to develop a new crop of roots, which takes several years.

"The method of procedure in handling these roots is to cut them up in short pieces, just as is done when piece root grafts are made, except that in this case a Northern Spy scion is grafted on a Northern Spy root. These grafted roots are planted in beds and the following year they are planted in nursery rows and budded in the usual manner during the summer months.

Search for Pear Stock.

"More advanced steps are probably being taken on the Pacific coast than in any other part of the United States to find a pear stock which is immune from the attack of pear blight. This is one reason why the Japanese pear stock has been in so much demand in recent years. However, experience is demonstrating that all Japanese pear stocks are not entirely free from the blight attack.

"Among other stocks which are suitable for the pear, I might mention the quince root. This is grown from cuttings and the pear is budded on. The quince root is also used for growing quince trees, being budded direct onto the quince. In addition it serves as a good stock for the loquat and several earlier than they do when worked on pear root.

"From time to time the question has arisen as to the advisability of using the quince root for the pear. The most extensive plantings of this root have been made in the Santa Clara valley. That the trees are long-lived is fully exemplified by the fact that in the old A. Block place, near Santa Clara, there are pear trees budded on the quince which are now 50 years old and are still growing vigorously and producing abundant crops of fruit annually. The trees in this particular orchard are planted fifteen feet apart. The fact that so many more trees may be planted on an acre of ground is one of the advantages of this root. Many varieties of pears, however, lack affinity, making it necessary to bud the Beurre Hardy on the quince, because of its strong affinity for this root. The following year the Bartlett is budded on the Beurre Hardy stock. If the Bartlett is budded on the quince it will break off at the point of union. This method of handling pears is known to the trade as double working.

Victim of Prejudice.

"The cherry is budded on Mazzard and Mahaleb root. California growers have a decided preference for the former root. The consensus has been that the Mahaleb was not adapted to our soils, and it has been difficult, on this account, to induce growers to purchase trees on this root. This is one instance where reports have been circulated without any investigation having been made to see whether they are worthy of consideration. The effect of the Mahaleb root is to dwarf the tree. However, this has not been the case in California, for I have observed old cherry trees growing in the Vaca valley budded on Mahaleb root doing nearly as well as those which had been worked on Mazzard. The effect of this root has been more to retard the long, whippy growth, which is so noticeable in the cherry tree. The difficulty of obtaining seeds of these two stocks of the cherry is again one of the problems which will retard the growing of these seedlings in the United States and, until orchards of these varieties are planted and reach a point to produce sufficient seed for the seedling growers, it will be necessary to rely largely on the imported seedlings for growing cherry stock.

"Myrobalan seed is handled much like peach seed, except that it is necessary to stratify it in beds earlier in the fall than the peach seed. We have been successful in planting this seed in nursery rows and growing seedlings large enough to bud the same year. Since the seed is rather small, we have come to the conclusion that it is far better to plant the seed in narrow beds the first year and plant the seedlings out in nursery rows in the usual manner the following spring. The seed which has been bedded, as a general rule, commences to pip in February and is then planted. In order that seedlings may not grow too large, the seed is sown broadcast in rows about eight inches wide, leaving four feet between the rows to permit cultivation and irrigation. One point which must be carefully observed is, do not plant the seed too deep—otherwise it will not sprout.

Use of Peach.

"It is hardly necessary for me to dwell to any extent on the seedlings which are grown from the peach, apricot and almond, for all of this seed is available in this country and no particular difficulty is encountered in growing seedlings.

"In the states east of the Rocky mountains, Tennessee seedling peach pits are used, because the seed runs small and there is more to the bushel than of the seed from budded trees. Further than this, the seedling pits grow a more vigorous and smoother tree than the seedlings from budded pits. One would infer that these seedling pits would be freer from crown-gall than the budded seedlings. However, experience has demonstrated that this is not always the case by any means.

"In my opinion, one of the important points in growing seedlings is to be constantly on the lookout for new ground. From my observations in Europe I am inclined to think that many of the troubles which are being experienced with European seedlings are due to the use of the same ground over and over again, for no matter how much fertilizer may be used, this procedure invites fungous diseases which are detrimental to the stocks. I am practically convinced that the success of the undertaking of growing seedlings in the United States is dependent on securing fresh seed which has been properly cared for. Imported seed frequently arrives so late in the season that it is impracticable to plant it and it must be carried over to the following year."

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

PIPING DOWNHILL SYSTEM.

Please tell me how to pipe my greenhouse for hot water heat. The crop will be carnations and the temperature needed will be 45 to 55 degrees. The house is 21x31, six feet high to the eaves and twelve feet to the ridge. The foundations are concrete. The house contains 1,200 square feet of glass. It will require about 350 square feet of radiation, will it not? There is a raised bench in the center and a 3-foot bench at each side wall. The house runs north and south and the boiler room is at the north end.

My understanding is that the highest point of the flow may be either over the boiler or at the opposite end. My intention is to use two 2-inch flows, running one along each plate, or one 3-inch flow under the ridge. Connected with the flow, or flows, would be ten 2-inch returns, five of them on each side wall, under the benches. Could I attach two 2-inch flows to a Wilks boiler, 24x48? I think this boiler has only one outlet.
P. R.—Mo.

For a Wilks boiler I should advise using a 3-inch flow pipe, running it about two feet below the ridge, with the highest point over the boiler. A slope of one inch in ten feet will be ample. When a boiler with two flow ports is used it is best, for a house of the stated size and width, to run a 2½-inch flow pipe upon each plate or under the purlins. While a radiation of 350 square feet is not too large to be supplied by two 2-inch flow pipes, the number of returns necessary will make it advisable to use two 2½-inch flows, unless a single 3-inch flow is used.

From the amount of glass stated, I infer that there must be about thirty inches of glass below the plates. If a minimum temperature of 55 degrees is necessary in the coldest weather, it will be advisable to use 350 square feet of radiation, but if there is no harm if the temperature drops to 50 degrees in the nights when it drops below zero outside, 300 square feet of radiation will answer.

Instead of running the returns along the side walls only, it would be better to drop down two 2½-inch pipes from the end of the 3-inch overhead flow pipe, and with each of them feed a coil

TO THE MAN WHO NEEDS A BOILER

"The customer's interest first"—is the basis of the KROESCHELL standard. This principle makes the KROESCHELL Policy the most liberal of all in the Greenhouse Boiler business. The great variety of boilers that we make places us in a commanding position. It is the KROESCHELL principle to supply only the type of boiler best suited for the conditions. For this reason we always furnish the most efficient boiler unit in every case.

KROESCHELL BOILERS have no bulky, soot accumulating surfaces—you avoid the disagreeable work and trouble indispensable to cleaning boilers with complicated and tortuous back and forth passages.

The superiority of our boilers has resulted in the removal and abolishment of hundreds of cast iron sectional boilers—in every instance KROESCHELL BOILERS give more heat with the same piping with less fuel.

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

During the last fortnight there has been no sunshine, and both growers and retailers have been worrying about the Christmas stock. The sun has begun to shine again and the hearts of the florists are glad. The dull weather was beginning to affect the color of the flowers and pessimistic reports were coming from the growers. However, all that is changed and the present reports show that there will be an abundance of stock and the retailers can arrange for a big Christmas trade.

Various Notes.

As part of the scheme for the disposing of the Christmas stock, there will be a general publicity campaign. Since the larger florists will probably have no difficulty in disposing of all the stock, the main idea is to assist the smaller members of the club. The people have the money and will spend it at Christmas. The other trades are doing some heavy advertising and the florists cannot be behind in advocating gifts of flowers at Christmas. Unless the people are reminded, they are apt to forget and buy something else.

The Market.

Mums still hold on, but the poor quality at present shows that the end is near. The rose supply is in excess of the demand, especially in the long grades. The prices are good and the quality is excellent. Ophelia, Dunlop, Hoosier and Columbia are the only varieties which clean up at all, these bringing $10 to $30 per hundred. Carnations are moving fairly well at $4 to $7 per hundred, with the supply about equal to the demand. The sweet pea supply is increasing, but all that can be had move readily. Pot plants are beginning to find a good market. Cyclamens, begonias and ferns are the big items at present.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

There is a good demand for flowers, considering the season. With mums off the market, carnations, sweet peas and roses are selling extra well. There is also a demand for potted plants, which consist of cyclamens, mums, ferns and a few primroses.

Columbus florists report an extremely heavy Thanksgiving week and a week of good business following it. It is expected that Christmas week will be a busy one for the trade.

Various Notes.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. reports another family blanket. This firm is doing a good wholesale business.

The Bexley Floral Co. reports a heavy crop of carnations for Christmas.

Underwood Bros. have a new Ford delivery car.

I. D. Seibert, of the Fifth Avenue Floral Co., went to Bellefontaine, O., December 3, for a short visit.

T. J. Ludwig has had his two delivery cars repainted. W. F. F.

WICHITA FALLS, TEX.

At the establishment of the Donnelly Floral Co. a clean and well kept greenhouse is the supply station whence Mrs. and Mrs. Donnelly draw for their trade. Some excellent mums in all colors could still be seen November 27 and Mr. Donnelly reports business brisk, especially in funeral work.

The store of the Wichita Falls Floral Co. is an attractive one and, under the capable management of E. A. Bebb, a good business is done in this thriving city. A range of 20,000 feet of glass helps to fill the store, but a good deal of stock is also shipped in. Some excellent large specimen cyclamens are being displayed, as well as other good plants and cut flower stock. A new Kroeschell boiler was seen at the greenhouses. H. R. R.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The last few days of last week brought a good increase in business. However, conditions are far from satisfactory for this time of the year. Business was chiefly made up of funeral work during the last few days. Although the supply of stock was not large, at no time during the entire week did the demand come up to the supply and there was practically no clean-up in any line of seasonable stock. All members of the trade are looking forward to Christmas and orders have already started to come in. This makes the outlook for the future a little better.

Various Notes.

The Washington Floral Co. is cutting some fine stock at present and its roses, orchids and many other varieties of stock continue to find ready buyers, despite the present market conditions.

George Shaffer was exceedingly busy with funeral work last week. He also had a number of large decorating jobs.

Louis Morat has resumed his duties as superintendent of the government greenhouses at the National Training School for Boys, after an illness. Mr. Morat has held this position for fifteen years.

The Market.

Business was good last week. The demand was only slightly less than that of Thanksgiving week. Some varieties of cut stock are scarce, roses more so than others. Carnations are arriving of fine quality. There has been little call for Paper Whites, but they hold at 6 cents. A few callas are coming in now and some good Easter lilies are to be had. Sweet peas are improving in quality every day. Small quantities of violets complete the list. Shipping trade last week was good.

Poinsettias promise to be unusually good this season. This market seldom sees them with good foliage, but, barring mishaps, within the next two weeks there will be plenty of good blooms.

Various Notes.

The Roberts Rose Co., besides its cut flower trade, is fast developing its business in rose plants out of pots for bedding purposes. The company's slogan is: "Western roses for western conditions." J. T. Roberts says, "We believe that own-root, pot-grown roses are far better in the semi-arid west. They will show a far smaller loss the first year than dormant stock. We have on our list only such varieties as grow vigorously without budding. They include the hybrid teas, polyanthus and climbing roses of all kinds.

Albert Hamberger is cutting fine sweet peas now.

Ben Boldt has a splendid house of poinsettias.

Walter G. Lehrer is cutting good carnations from his new range, on the north side. He reports having done well with his mums this year.

The City Floral Co. has a fine crop of poinsettias, and also quantities of cinerarias that are coming along nicely.

George McNamara, with Frank F. Crump, Colorado Springs, Colo., was a visitor last week.

Elitch Gardens Co. has a fine lot of freesias coming on. R. E. H.

Owing to the continuous dark weather the last two weeks and mums being out of the market, the supply of stock is not equal to the demand. Sweet peas were mostly affected by the dark weather, many of the plants having dropped their buds. There is, however, some stevia coming in, and also Paper Whites.

Over 750 beautiful white mums, not small pompons but good big blooms—all on one plant—from one stalk. As less than half of the blooms can be seen in the picture, the beauty of this plant can only be imagined.

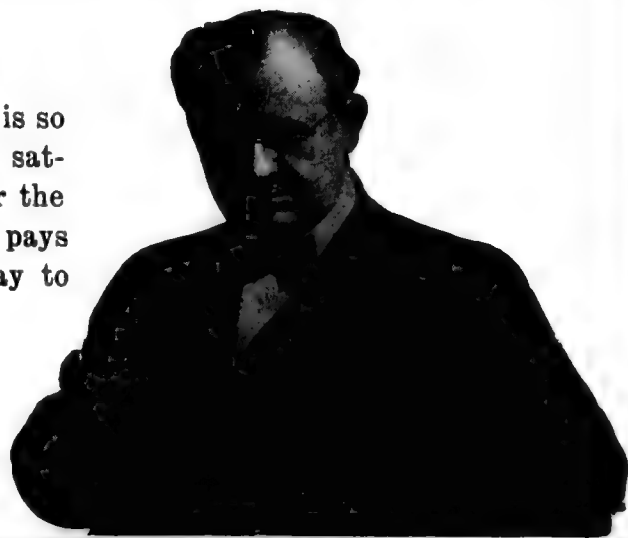

Mr. Donald McNaughton, Superintendent, grew this remarkable prize-winning plant in the Foley Greenhouse of E. S. Moore, of Lake Forest, Ill. This is the beautiful white mum, Elmer Smith's production, which won the Foley Prize at the mum show a few years ago and was named after Philip Foley's youngest daughter by Elmer Smith.

Mr. Rudolf Nagel, Lancaster, Pa., under date of Dec. 14th, 1919, writes us:

"I had last year just a few of your petunias, but I am sure I could have sold thousands of them. They surely came up to your claim and way ahead of my expectation."
